BLOCK SPEAKS FOR MAYOR IN OUSTER CASE

ROOSEVELT ANXIOUS TO CONCLUDE HEARING

BY WALTER T. BROWN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Executive Chamber, Albany, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP)—Paul Block, the publisher, who financed a stock account which made a profit of $246,000 for Mayor James J. Walker, testified at today's session of the Walker ouster hearing that he never had a city contract or asked Mr. Walker for a favor.

Governor Roosevelt, eager to complete the hearing, which has continued nine days, continued the session late today beyond the dinner hour.

Closely Examined

Block said, under questioning by the governor, who will pass on Walker's fitness to retain his office, that he had invested $140,000 in a concern which experimented with tile for subways.

Block, a small, dark complexioned, middle aged man, was closely examined by the governor about his dealings with the Beyer corporation, headed by Dr. Robert M. Beyer. He declared he did not know State Senator John J. Hastings was an officer of the company. Block added that he was to receive 50 per cent of the profits and "supposed" Dr. Beyer would receive the rest. Hastings, a friend of the mayor, was also interested in a bus franchise.

"Do you often engage in business transactions of that sort?" the governor asked.

"In 1927 and 1928 I did," Block answered.

A second business deal, explained by Samuel Ungerleider, financier, another witness, also brought questioning from the governor. Ungerleider said he let Russell T. Sherwood, missing accountant have $32,000 worth of stock which he sold back for the same amount although it had lost $21,000 of its value. There was no record of the guarantee against loss, Ungerleider said, and Mr. Roosevelt asked:

"Was that a customary thing?"

The witness answered "Yes."

"You tell me," the governor persisted, "that that is the usual practice on the stock exchange in New York?"

"It is not the usual practice but it is common," Ungerleider replied. "Among us on the street a man's word is his bond."

Martin Conboy, Roosevelt's counsel, asked why such a verbal agreement was entered into and Ungerleider answered it was because Sherwood was a friend of J. J. McKeon "who had favored us in some transactions in Philadelphia."

McKeon, Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter committee contends, delivered bonds to the mayor in return for official favors.

Block said the mayor had been "a very intimate friend for 17 or 18 years" and for two years had lived in Block's apartment.

The "unknown person" again entered the hearing when Block was questioned about a check for $7,500 which was drawn on the Block-Walker account in favor of that anonymous individual. Walker, himself, testified last week

FARM HOLIDAY WINS CONVERTS

Wisconsin Makes Plans To Join Movement to Get Higher Prices

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 23 (AP)—As softening of its campaign from compulsion to persuasion was demanded in several sectors, the farmers' holiday movement rolled on today into new territory.

Wisconsin, hitherto aloof to the drive to achieve higher prices for farm produce which has blockaded the Sioux City, Iowa, and Omaha, Neb., markets as well as many lesser trading centers, today took steps toward organizing a state unit of the holiday association. Dairymen meeting at Madison with the state council of agriculture voted appointment of a committee of three to call a state-wide organization mass meeting.

A movement aided at the important South St. Paul, Minn., livestock market, the largest of that state, was also underway with the forming of a Dakota county unit of the holiday association.

Major Developments

Other major developments in the farmers' strike on its expanding battle fronts included:

A permanent state-wide holiday association was sought in Nebraska following a mass meeting of farmers at Winnebago. Gov. Charles W. Bryan, however, said the holiday movement was "not wise" and could not "solve the question of prices."

Negotiations at Omaha looking to the free passage of milk shipments through farmers' picket lines in southwestern Iowa.

A letter from Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers Holiday association, who called the strike in Iowa two weeks ago, to Gov. Dan Turner, urging a conference between the Iowa executive and Gov. Olson of Minnesota. The Minnesota executive yesterday proposed martial law as an aid to the farmers' movement. Gov. Olson said at Bemidji, Minn., he would be "delighted' to meet with Gov. Turner. The latter could not be reached.

A marked decline of rail shipments of produce into Sioux City, point of origin of the strike, and no shipments by truck.

Reduction in hog prices on major markets with normal receipts.

Refusal of Sheriff H. T. Wagner of Blackhawk county, in northeastern Iowa, to permit any picketing of roads in that vicinity. One farmer was injured there when a truck, escorted by deputies, crashed

DETROIT MAN NEW CHIEF OF STATE LEGION

KESSLER GETS JOB; GROUP WANTS BONUS

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 23 (AP)—John W. Gilmore, Detroit, is the new commander of the Michigan department of the American Legion.

Gilmore was unanimously elected today at the closing session of the State Legion convention here and Grand Rapids was chosen as the 1933 convention city.

The Legion adopted a resolution favoring immediate payment of the adjusted compensation certificates, and it was specified in the resolution that the Michigan delegates to the National Legion convention in Portland, Ore., in September, be instructed in favor of immediate payment.

The State Legion Auxiliary, also in session, elected Mrs. H. P. Gotfredson, of Lowell, as the new president. She succeeds Mrs. Chester Ripley, of Sault Ste. Marie. Today marked the closing of sessions for both organizations.

On both the election of the Legion commander and the naming of the convention city controversy appeared in the initial balloting. Gilmore was elected unanimously after his opponent, Leo T. Robinson, of Union City, withdrew to avoid what promised to be a lengthy session of balloting. The rules then were suspended to permit his election by acclamation.

Group of Resolutions

Grand Rapids was named as the convention city for 1933 after a committee was unable to make an unanimous choice between that city, Charlevoix and Petoskey, and the decision was put before the convention as a whole. The time of the convention was not decided.

Gilmore, active in Detroit and state Legion affairs for many months, succeeds Leslie P. Kerton, of Bay City, retiring commander.

At the morning session of the convention a group of resolutions were submitted to the convention as a whole, and received endorsement. They included resolutions favoring continued and additional efforts toward national defense, a five-day work week, increased efforts and added state appropriations for child welfare endeavors, an da resolution condemning activities of radical organizations.

Other officers elected by the Legion include: Vice commanders: Don Beardslee, Greenville; Otto Scott, Petoskey; Ted Kessler, Escanaba; Harold Dewitt, Jackson, and Lloyd Stanley, Birmingham; finance officer, Al Joeldersma, Holland; chaplain, Dr. Leslie Doerr, Grand Rapids; historian, Harley Trump, South Haven, and sergeant at arms, Al Hisgen, Kalamazoo.

Resolutions were adopted opposing efforts of the National Economy League to reduce benefits of veterans; favored general adoption of a five-day week and urged a referendum on the eighteenth amendment.

New officers of the Legion Auxiliary include: Mrs. H. P. Gotfredson, Lowell, president; Mrs. Marie Schrumpf, Niles, and Mrs. Lucile Deryke, Milan, vice presidents and Miss Bertha Proestal, Detroit secretary.

TAYLOR VIEWS BUYING WAVE

Movement Can Not Long Be Delayed, Says Steel Head

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the directorate of the United States Steel corporation, said today that a buying movement "cannot long be delayed."

He made this comment in an interview in which he disclosed that the corporation's finance committee had authorized the expenditure of $5,000,000 for plant improvements.

A vacuum of unfilled steel requirements, similar to that which followed the World War, was described by Mr. Taylor. This cheerful comment was his first since he assumed the dominant position in the industry long held by the late E. H. Gary.

Mr. Taylor recalled that the World War created "a great vacuum due to the destruction of physical property," and was followed by a period of active replacement. In the current situation, he explained, "the stoppage of production due to the depression, the consumption of supplies, and the wear and tear from the use of all materials and equipment, are creating a similar vacuum, which, in due course, will have to be filled.

"Then, too, in periods such as the one through which we are now passing, competition necessitates the use of modern equipment. One might look upon this as a time for a thorough house-cleaning. This will be the reason for replacement on a large scale when productive facilities are again called into substantial use. It would seem the buying movement cannot be long delayed."

The action of the directorate of the billion dollar corporation, the world's largest producer of steel, in ordering the regular quarterly dividend on the preferred stock at the meeting July 26, making a record breaking deficit to surplus for the second quarter of the year of more than $26,000,000, had been widely interpreted in Wall Street as indicating confidence in business recovery.

Murder Suspect Is Arrested In Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP)—Joseph Macek, 26, of the last of five Chicagoans charged with murder for the death of Frank Mark, of Joseph, Mich., on Aug. 12, was found in a hospital today suffering from injuries received in a recent automobile accident and was turned over to Sheriff O'Neill, of Berrien county, Michigan.

Louis and John Macek, brother of Joseph, Steve Grod, and Alex Berger were seized several days ago on murder warrants and returned to Michigan.

Calumet Man Shot By St. Paul Police

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 23. (AP)—A man giving his name as George McKenzie, of Calumet, Mich., was shot through both legs by police here late last night when he attempted to evade questioning after the officers had overtaken him in an automobile.

Houghton, Lake, Mich., Aug. 23. (AP)—The body of Robert Em Bell Chicago real estate man who was drowned with his wife in Houghton Lake last Friday, was recovered today. The body of Mrs. Bell was recovered Saturday.

Berlin, Aug. 23 (AP)—The German government swiftly met an attack by Adolf Hitler tonight by issuing a manifesto declaring that severest penalties for political violence would be invoked "against every lawbreaker, regardless of person or party."

This manifesto was in answer to Hitler's vigorous assault on death sentences imposed yesterday on five of his followers who were found guilty by one of the government's emergency speed courts of a political murder.

"Heaven may send up torture upon torture, but our movement will be able to finish this guillotine government," Hitler declared.

Aimed at Hitler

A few hours after he had issued his fiery statement the governments of the Reich and of the state of Prussia joined in a manifesto which, without mentioning him, obviously was aimed at the Nazi leader.

"Acts of violence which seriously prejudiced the authority of the Reich necessitated President Von Hindenburg's emergency decree of August 9 providing severest penalties for political violence," the manifesto said.

"The terms of that decree must be imposed the same moment they were put into effect against every lawbreaker, regardless of person or party. The Reich's government will not allow anyone to revolt against it."

Emphasizing that the government was not willing to yield to political pressure in dealing with the five death sentences imposed by the speed court at Beuthen, the manifesto concluded:

"Violent charges against verdict should be addressed to the originators of bloody occurrences and not to the government which in the interest of all had to resort to such sharp measures. The government will nip in the bud all attempts to tamper with the principles of the constitutional state and to incite political passions."

Before this manifesto was issued the government made it clear that it would not permit justice to be coerced and that it "would not stand for political pressure but would decide solely on the basis of justice whether or not to grant pardons."

Center of Controversy

Beuthen today was a place of feverish excitement. A great crowd

HARBOR GRACE AWAITS FLIERS LONG OVERDUE

(BULLETIN)

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—The New York Times' radio station received a message from Thor Solberg and Carl Petersen at 6 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time) saying they intended to circle around until a fog lifted.

Ninety minutes previously the fliers who left New York today for Harbor Grace, N. F., enroute to Norway reported their position as approximately 80 miles from their goal.

"Fighting 40-mile headwind since leaving Nova Scotia," the message said, "and still fighting it. Very rough. All well."

Harbor Grace, N. F., Aug. 23 (AP)—A driving rain and an impenetrable fog encompassed this haven of trans-Atlantic fliers tonight as feeble flare beckoned, apparently in vain, for two airplanes long overdue.

The planes of Thor Solberg and Clyde Lee, who with companions set out today from New York and Vermont, respectively, with this port their first destination on projected flights to Oslo, Norway, were unreported through the early night.

Solberg and his companion Carl Petersen, passed over Hermitage on the southeastern Newfoundland coast at 5:26 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, enroute to Harbor Grace. Since that time, the night grew darker, the rainfall became heavier and the fog spread its misty blanket between the earth and sky.

Hutchinson Starts Trip

Another report received here said a plane passed over Belleoram, 120 miles away. And yet, three hours later, neither plane had put in an appearance. A flight from Belleoram to Harbor Grace should take about one hour.

Lee, flying with John Hochkon, was not definitely reported from any point over Newfoundland.

Lieut.-Col. George Hutchinson, the third flier to get out today from the United States, arrived at St. John, N. B., his destination, at 4:05 p. m. Eastern Standard Time with his crew and family. He planned to fly to Labrador tomorrow and proceed by easy stages to London.

Hutchinson, was sighted circling above the municipal airport at St. John for 30 minutes before he dropped to the water at the seaplane base. He and his party, which includes his wife, their two young daughters and a crew of three, planned to spend the night in a hotel and leave for Labrador tomorrow morning if weather conditions were propitious. From there they will proceed to England by way of Greenland and Iceland, the trip to take about five days.

Solberg and Peterson and Lee and Bochkon have Oslo, Norway as their ultimate destination.

"Al" Smith Becomes Editor of Magazine

BY ROBERT ST. JOHN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—"Al" Smith became a magazine editor today.

With a grin on his face and a cigar in one corner of his mouth, he sat in his new office and announced himself that he had been signed up as editor-in-chief and monthly contributor to the "New Outlook."

The monthly magazine is an outgrowth of the "Outlook and Independent."

The "Outlook," founded in 1865 by Henry Ward Beecher, was at one time the mouthpiece of Theodore Roosevelt, the late president, who was one of its contributing editors.

"No political questions today," Smith said, as he mopped his forehead with a large green handkerchief, and took his place for the first time behind his new desk

But he did answer one.

"Will you attend the mass reception to Governor Roosevelt at Seagirt, New Jersey, Saturday?" he was asked.

"No," came the emphatic reply.

Then he waved aside a flood of questions about what part he will take in the Roosevelt-Garner campaign.

"I'm stepping out of my political role entirely when I move in here as an editor," he said

"Does that mean this job will prevent you from taking an active part in the Democratic campaign?"

"It doesn't prevent me from

Hermansville Bank Robber Identified As Double Slayer

Minneapolis, Aug. 23 (AP)—John Jacobinski, being taken from Seattle to Menominee, Mich., for robbing the First National Bank of Hermansville, Mich., last May, arrived here tonight from the west coast under guard of two Menominee county officers, who had Jacobinski's arms and legs shackled.

Witnesses here tonight identified Jacobinski as the slayer of Gordon Wilson, a Chicago businessman, in the Minneapolis loop district July 5 when Jacobinski took Wilson's automobile. He also was identified as the slayer of Nels Berlin, Forest Lake, Minn., marshal, during a holdup there April 12.

Jacobinski will be taken to Menominee tomorrow, officers said.

MINE TROUBLE STILL SIZZLES

Franklin County Officials Tell Outsiders Not to Interfere

BY LATHROP MACK,
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Benton, Ill., Aug. 23 (AP)—Officials of Franklin county, having settled their mine wage disputes at least temporarily, tonight renewed warnings to union miners from other sections against executing their plans to interfere.

They appealed to Governor Louis L. Emmerson to halt the threatened "peace march" of several thousand men from northern counties before it could materialize. But they announced their ability and determination to turn back the invaders who are protesting against consummation of a lower wage scale, if or when they reach the county line, and without outside help.

"They're not coming in here," Sheriff Browning Robinson said, "and we won't call for the militia either."

Seven mines dug coal today in this largest producing county of the states. All will be working at capacity tomorrow, with an eighth due to start Thursday.

Call for Volunteers

Officials of the United Mine Workers, 100 percent successful in their effort to put their members back to work at the new $5 daily basis wage scale, expressed their pleasure at the situation. So did merchants and manufacturing men, weary of 18 weeks of idleness in southern Illinois shafts.

In support of their coal diggers, officials of West Frankfort called for volunteers to meet at 7 p. m. tonight and be sworn in as special deputy sheriffs, in opposition to the threatened march from Gillespie. They purchased 1,000 badges for the deputies in the coal-centered city itself.

There was evidence, however, that miners dissatisfied with the new scale, $1.10 a day lower than the old which expired March 31, would welcome the invaders.

It came from I. O. Dudley, ousted president of the Zeigler locals whose members took his advice today and voted five to one to join 400 of their fellow members in the shafts. "If our brothers come down from the north," Dudley told a massing of 1,000 men, "let's remember we once put these mines on strike on one day's notice and it can be done again."

Dudley said he would "rather cut off his right arm" than advise his former colleagues to return to work, but that it was "the best thing to do." He referred to the 400 men who broke ranks and made terms with the operators as "traitors" to the union cause but ended with an appeal that work be resumed.

Officials of the United Mine Workers revoked charters of the two local unions, throwing Dudley out. Zeigler miners spoke bitterly of Sunday night's machine gun raid by deputy sheriffs on union pickets at the Bell and Zoller mines. They called it a "four hour reign of terror," and said "Bell and Hardin counties in Kentucky have nothing on us."

At Gillespie, where the miners are to concentrate before their downstate drive into Franklin county tomorrow, the central strike committee said about 25,000 persons would make the invasion authorities to the contrary.

Dick Reynolds Is Back At His Home

Winston Salem, Aug. 23 (AP)—Young Dick Reynolds arrived home late today, completing a 10,000 mile journey from the African coast, which started when his brother, Smith, was mortally shot here early in the morning of July 6.

The heir to the tobacco millions of the late R. J. Reynolds immediately went into retirement.

His attorney, Stratton Coyner, who accompanied him on the automobile trip from Miami, declined to reveal where his client was spending the night, but said it was possible a statement would be made tomorrow.

NEW THRILLS FOR DAY AND NIGHT SHOWS

ENTIRE PENINSULA IS REPRESENTED IN CROWDS

Increased attendance and enthusiasm for daily and nightly programs is noted as the fifth annual Upper Peninsula State Fair swings into its third dav, and last night a cheering crowd of 5,500 watched the two-and-a-half-hour grandstand spectacle.

Horse races are providing new thrills daily, exhibits have never been better, and the grandstand attractions are in keeping with the rest of the million dollar show. The midway, without which no fair is considered complete, was augmented last night by the arrival of more shows, concessions and rides which will be here for the entertainment of fair visitors during the remainder of the week.

All parts of the peninsula are represented in the daily stream of fair visitors. Today is Menominee, Dickinson and Marquette day, when a special invitation is extended to residents of these three counties. Horse racing today will include the 2:22 and 2:15 classes, with a long list of entries. Horse pulling will be a daily morning feature in front of the grandstand, starting at 10 a. m. Running races will take up the track program Friday and Saturday. The heavy draft horses will compete in trials today, and cattle judging will be completed in the purebred classes. Throughout the main exhibit hall, entries are bedecked with ribbons as the judges complete their work on the prize products.

Opera Star Sings

A cast of 60, featuring several stars who are nationally known, make up the cast of the "Winter Garden Revue", outdoor opera which is on the night grandstand program only. The production provides a variety of singing and dancing entertainment with new, elaborate costumes and settings. There will be a complete change of program beginning Thursday night.

In addition to the "Winter Garden Revue", six vaudeville acts are staged in front of the grandstand. The revue itself has five numbers. Elizabeth O'Donnell, prima donna, is a featured vocalist. Other principals include Cogert and Motto in a popular vaudeville and radio act. Everett Johnson directs the music.

The revue opens with a number entitled "Cook Up A Show", in which three chefs, a number of waitresses and actors decide to mix up the ingredients of a show. Cogert is master of ceremonies. The second number is a Chinese fantasy, in which Miss O'Donnell and the adiago team are featured, aided by a chorus of 20. "Gay Paree" is the third number, also led by Cogert and Motto with their two-man vocal jazz band and an impersonation of the Duncan sisters.

Animal Circus

Martini's Accordianas provide a musical novelty that has been headlined in every part of the world. Three men and two women play piano accordions, and two girls, the Warren Sisters, do several song and dance numbers. Gene Martini heads the act, and the other accordion players are: Carmen Talve, Dominick Zano,

BLOCK SPEAKS FOR MAYOR IN OUSTER CASE

ROOSEVELT ANXIOUS TO CONCLUDE HEARING

BY WALTER T. BROWN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Executive Chamber, Albany, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP)—Paul Block, the publisher, who financed a stock account which made a profit of $246,000 for Mayor James J. Walker, testified at today's session of the Walker ouster hearing that he never had a city contract or asked Mr. Walker for a favor.

Governor Roosevelt, eager to complete the hearing, which has continued nine days, continued the session late today beyond the dinner hour.

Closely Examined

Block said, under questioning by the governor, who will pass on Walker's fitness to retain his office, that he had invested $140,000 in a concern which experimented with tile for subways.

Block, a small, dark complexioned, middle aged man, was closely examined by the governor about his dealings with the Beyer corporation, headed by Dr. Robert M. Beyer. "Do you often engage in business transactions of that sort?" the governor asked.

"In 1927 and 1928 I did," Block answered.

A second business deal, explained by Samuel Ungerleider, financier, another witness, also brought questioning from the governor. Ungerleider said he let Russell T. Sherwood, missing accountant have $32,000 worth of stock which he sold back for the same amount although it had lost $21,000 of its value. There was no record of the guarantee against loss, Ungerleider said, and Mr. Roosevelt asked:

"Was that a customary thing?"

The witness answered "Yes."

"You tell me," the governor persisted, "that that is the usual practice on the stock exchange in New York?"

"It is not the usual practice but it is common," Ungerleider replied. "Among us on the street a man's word is his bond."

McKeon, Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter committee contends, delivered bonds to the mayor in return for official favors.

Block said the mayor had been "a very intimate friend for 17 or 18 years" and for two years had lived in Block's apartment.

The "unknown person" again entered the hearing when Block was questioned about a check for $7,500 which was drawn on the Block-Walker account in favor of that anonymous individual. Walker, himself, testified last week

DETROIT MAN NEW CHIEF OF STATE LEGION

KESSLER GETS JOB; GROUP WANTS BONUS

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 23 (AP)—John W. Gilmore, Detroit, is the new commander of the Michigan department of the American Legion.

Gilmore was unanimously elected today at the closing session of the State Legion convention here and Grand Rapids was chosen as the 1933 convention city.

The Legion adopted a resolution favoring immediate payment of the adjusted compensation certificates, and it was specified in the resolution that the Michigan delegates to the National Legion convention in Portland, Ore., in September, be instructed in favor of immediate payment.

The State Legion Auxiliary, also in session, elected Mrs. H. P. Gotfredson, of Lowell, as the new president. She succeeds Mrs. Chester Ripley, of Sault Ste. Marie. Today marked the closing of sessions for both organizations.

On both the election of the Legion commander and the naming of the convention city controversy appeared in the initial balloting. Gilmore was elected unanimously after his opponent, Leo T. Robinson, of Union City, withdrew to avoid what promised to be a lengthy session of balloting. The rules then were suspended to permit his election by acclamation.

Group of Resolutions

Grand Rapids was named as the convention city for 1933 after a committee was unable to make an unanimous choice between that city, Charlevoix and Petoskey, and the decision was put before the convention as a whole. The time of the convention was not decided.

Gilmore, active in Detroit and state Legion affairs for many months, succeeds Leslie P. Kelsen, of Bay City, retiring commander.

At the morning session of the convention a group of resolutions were submitted to the convention as a whole, and received endorsement. They included resolutions favoring continued and additional efforts toward national defense, a five-day work week, increased efforts and added state appropriations for child welfare endeavors, an da resolution condemning activities of radical organizations.

Other officers elected by the Legion include: Vice commanders: Don Beardslee, Greenville; Otto Scott, Petoskey; Ted Kessler, Escanaba; Harold Dewitt, Jackson, and Lloyd Stanley, Birmingham; finance officer, Al Joeldersna, Holland; chaplain, Dr. Leslie Doerr, Grand Rapids; historian, Harley Trump, South Haven, and sergeant at arms, Al Hisgen, Kalamazoo.

Resolutions were adopted opposing efforts of the National Economy League to reduce benefits of veterans; favored general adoption of a five-day week and urged a referendum on the eighteenth amendment.

New officers of the Legion Auxiliary include: Mrs. H. P. Gotfredson, Lowell, president; Mrs. Marie Schrumpf, Niles, and Mrs. Lucile Deryke, Milan, vice presidents and Miss Bertha Proestal, Detroit secretary.

German Gov't Intends to Back Death Penalty For Political Violence

Berlin, Aug. 23 (AP)—The German government swiftly met an attack by Adolf Hitler tonight by issuing a manifesto declaring that severest penalties for political violence would be invoked "against every lawbreaker, regardless of person or party."

This manifesto was in answer to Hitler's vigorous assault on death sentences imposed yesterday on five of his followers who were found guilty by one of the government's emergency speed courts of a political murder.

"Heaven may send up torture upon torture, but our movement will be able to finish this guillotine government," Hitler declared.

Aimed at Hitler

A few hours after he had issued his fiery statement the governments of the Reich and of the state of Prussia joined in a manifesto which, without mentioning him, obviously was aimed at the Nazi leader.

"Acts of violence which seriously prejudiced the authority of the Reich necessitated President Von Hindenburg's emergency decree of August 9 providing severest penalties for political violence," the manifesto said.

"The terms of that decree must be imposed the same moment they were put into effect against every lawbreaker, regardless of person or party. The Reich's government will not allow anyone to revolt against it."

Emphasizing that the government was not willing to yield to political pressure in dealing with the five death sentences imposed by the speed court at Beuthen, the manifesto concluded:

"Violent charges against verdict should be addressed to the originators of bloody occurrences and not to the government which in the interest of all had to resort to such sharp measures. The government will nip in the bud all attempts to tamper with the principles of the constiutional state and to incite political passions."

Before this manifesto was issued the government made it clear that it would not permit justice to be coerced and that it "would not stand for political pressure but would decide solely on the basis of justice whether or not to grant pardons."

Center of Controversy

TAYLOR VIEWS BUYING WAVE

Movement Can Not Long Be Delayed, Says Steel Head

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the directorate of the United States Steel corporation, said today that a buying movement "cannot long be delayed."

He made this comment in an interview in which he disclosed that the corporation's finance committee had authorized the expenditure of $5,000,000 for plant improvements.

A vacuum of unfilled steel requirements, similar to that which followed the World War, was described by Mr. Taylor. This cheerful comment was his first since he assumed the dominant position in the industry long held by the late E. H. Gary.

Mr. Taylor recalled that the World War created "a great vacuum due to the destruction of physical property," and was followed by a period of active replacement. In the current situation, he explained, "the stoppage of production due to the depression, the consumption of supplies, and the wear and tear from the use of all materials and equipment, are creating a similar vacuum, which, in due course, will have to be filled.

"Then, too, in periods such as the one through which we are now passing, competition necessitates the use of modern equipment. One might look upon this as a time for a thorough house-cleaning. This will be the reason for replacement on a large scale when productive facilities are again called into substantial use. It would seem the buying movement cannot be long delayed."

The action of the directorate of the billion dollar corporation, the world's largest producer of steel, in ordering the regular quarterly dividend on the preferred stock at the meeting July 26, making a record breaking deficit to surplus for the second quarter of the year of more than $26,000,000, had been widely interpreted in Wall Street as indicating confidence in business recovery.

HARBOR GRACE AWAITS FLIERS LONG OVERDUE

(BULLETIN)

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—The New York Times' radio station received a message from Thor Solberg and Carl Petersen at 6 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time) saying they intended to circle around until a fog lifted.

Ninety minutes previously the fliers who left New York today for Harbor Grace, N. F., enroute to Norway reported their position as approximately 80 miles from their goal.

"Fighting 40-mile headwind since leaving Nova Scotia," the message said, "and still fighting it. Very rough. All well."

Harbor Grace, N. F., Aug. 23 (AP)—A driving rain and an impenetrable fog encompassed this haven of trans-Atlantic fliers tonight as feeble flare beckoned, apparently in vain, for two airplanes long overdue.

The planes of Thor Solberg and Clyde Lee, who with companions set out today from New York and Vermont, respectively, with this port their first destination on projected flights to Oslo, Norway, were unreported through the early night.

Solberg and his companion Carl Petersen, passed over Hermitage on the southeastern Newfoundland coast at 5:26 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, enroute to Harbor Grace. Since that time, the night grew darker, the rainfall became heavier and the fog spread its misty blanket between the earth and sky.

Hutchinson Starts Trip

Another report received here said a plane passed over Belleoram, 120 miles away. And yet, three hours later, neither plane had put in an appearance. A flight from Belleoram to Harbor Grace should take about one hour.

Lee, flying with John Hochkon, was not definitely reported from any point over Newfoundland.

Lieut.-Col. George Hutchinson, the third flier to get out today from the United States, arrived at St. John, N. B., his destination, at 4:05 p. m. Eastern Standard Time with his crew and family. He planned to fly to Labrador tomorrow and proceed by easy stages to London.

Hutchinson, was sighted circling above the municipal airport at St. John for 30 minutes before he dropped to the water at the seaplane base. He and his party, which includes his wife, their two young daughters and a crew of three, planned to spend the night in a hotel and leave for Labrador tomorrow morning if weather conditions were propitious. From there they will proceed to England by way of Greenland and Iceland, the trip to take about five days.

Solberg and Peterson and Lee and Bochkon have Oslo, Norway as their ultimate destination.

"Al" Smith Becomes Editor of Magazine

BY ROBERT ST. JOHN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—"Al" Smith became a magazine editor today.

With a grin on his face and a cigar in one corner of his mouth, he sat in his new office and announced himself that he had been signed up as editor-in-chief and monthly contributor to the "New Outlook."

The monthly magazine is an outgrowth of the "Outlook and Independent."

The "Outlook," founded in 1865 by Henry Ward Beecher, was at one time the mouthpiece of Theodore Roosevelt, the late president, who was one of its contributing editors.

"No political questions today," Smith said, as he mopped his forehead with a large green handkerchief, and took his place for the first time behind his new desk.

But he did answer one.

"Will you attend the mass reception to Governor Roosevelt at Seagirt, New Jersey, Saturday?" he was asked.

"No," came the emphatic reply.

Then he waved aside a flood of questions about what part he will take in the Roosevelt-Garner campaign.

"I'm stepping out of my political role entirely when I move in here as an editor," he said.

"Does that mean this job will prevent you from taking an active part in the Democratic campaign?"

Hermansville Bank Robber Identified As Double Slayer

Minneapolis, Aug. 23 (AP)—John Jacobinski, being taken from Seattle to Menominee, Mich., for robbing the First National Bank of Hermansville, Mich., last May, arrived here tonight from the west coast under guard of two Menominee county officers, who had Jacobinski's arms and legs shackled.

Witnesses here tonight identified Jacobinski as the slayer of Gordon Wilson, a Chicago businessman, in the Minneapolis loop district July 5 when Jacobinski took Wilson's automobile. He also was identified as the slayer of Nels Berlin, Forest Lake, Minn., marshal, during a holdup there April 12.

Jacobinski will be taken to Menominee tomorrow, officers said.

MINE TROUBLE STILL SIZZLES

Franklin County Officials Tell Outsiders Not to Interfere

BY LATHROP MACK.
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Benton, Ill., Aug. 23 (AP)—Officials of Franklin county, having settled their mine wage disputes at least temporarily, tonight renewed warnings to union miners from other sections against executing their plans to interfere.

They appealed to Governor Louis L. Emmerson to halt the threatened "peace march" of several thousand men from northern counties before it could materialize. But they announced their ability and determination to turn back the invaders who are protesting against consummation of a lower wage scale, if or when they reach the county line, and without outside help.

"They're not coming in here," Sheriff Browning Robinson said, "and we won't call for the militia either."

Seven mines dug coal today in this largest producing county of the states. All will be working at capacity tomorrow, with an eighth due to start Thursday.

Call for Volunteers

Officials of the United Mine Workers, 100 percent successful in their effort to put their members back to work at the new $5 daily basis wage scale, expressed their pleasure at the situation. So did merchants and manufacturing men, weary of 18 weeks of idleness in southern Illinois shafts.

In support of their coal diggers, officials of West Frankfort called for volunteers to meet at 7 p. m. tonight and be sworn in as special deputy sheriffs, in opposition to the threatened march from Gillespie. They purchased 1,000 badges for the deputies in the coal-centered city itself.

There was evidence, however, that miners dissatisfied with the new scale, $1.10 a day lower than the old which expired March 31, would welcome the invaders.

It came from I. O. Dudley, ousted president of the Zeigler locals whose members took his advice today and voted five to one to join 400 of their fellow members in the shafts. "If our brothers come down from the north," Dudley told a massing of 1,000 men, "let's remember we once put these mines on strike on one day's notice and it can be done again."

Dudley said he would "rather cut off his right arm" than advise his former colleagues to return to work, but that it was "the best thing to do." He referred to the 400 men who broke ranks and made terms with the operators as "traitors" to the union cause but ended with an appeal that work be resumed.

Officials of the United Mine Workers revoked charters of the two local unions, throwing Dudley out. Zeigler miners spoke bitterly of Sunday night's machine gun raid by deputy sheriffs on union pickets at the Bell and Zoller mines. They called it a "four hour reign of terror," and said "Bell and Hardin counties in Kentucky have nothing on us."

At Gillespie, where the miners are to concentrate before their downstate drive into Franklin county tomorrow, the central strike committee said about 25,000 persons would make the invasion—authorities to the contrary.

Dick Reynolds Is Back At His Home

Winston Salem, Aug. 23 (AP)—Young Dick Reynolds arrived home late today, completing a 10,000 mile journey from the African coast, which started when his brother, Smith, was mortally shot here early in the morning of July 6.

The heir to the tobacco millions of the late R. J. Reynolds immediately went into retirement.

His attorney, Stratton Coyner, who accompanied him on the automobile trip from Miami, declined to reveal where his client was spending the night, but said it was possible a statement would be made tomorrow.

NEW THRILLS FOR DAY AND NIGHT SHOWS

ENTIRE PENINSULA IS REPRESENTED IN CROWDS

Increased attendance and enthusiasm for daily and nightly programs is noted as the fifth annual Upper Peninsula State Fair swings into its third day, and last night a cheering crowd of 5,500 watched the two-and-a-half-hour grandstand spectacle.

Horse races are providing new thrills daily, exhibits have never been better, and the grandstand attractions are in keeping with the rest of the million dollar show. The midway, without which no fair is considered complete, was augmented last night by the arrival of more shows, concessions and rides which will be here for the entertainment of fair visitors during the remainder of the week.

All parts of the peninsula are represented in the daily stream of fair visitors. Today is Menominee, Dickinson and Marquette day, when a special invitation is extended to residents of these three counties. Horse racing today will include the 2:22 and 2:15 classes, with a long list of entries. Horse pulling will be a daily morning feature in front of the grandstand, starting at 10 a. m. Running races will take up the track program Friday and Saturday. The heavy draft horses will compete in trials today, and cattle judging will be completed in the purebred classes. Throughout the main exhibit hall, entries are bedecked with ribbons as the judges complete their work on the prize products.

Opera Star Sings

A cast of 60, featuring several stars who are nationally known, make up the cast of the "Winter Garden Revue", outdoor opera which is on the night grandstand program only. The production provides a variety of singing and dancing entertainment with new, elaborate costumes and settings. There will be a complete change of program beginning Thursday night.

In addition to the "Winter Garden Revue", six vaudeville acts are staged in front of the grandstand. The revue itself has five numbers. Elizabeth O'Donnell, prima donna, is a featured vocalist. Other principals include Cogert and Motto in a popular vaudeville and radio act. Everett Johnson directs the music.

The revue opens with a number entitled "Cook Up A Show", in which three chefs, a number of waitresses and actors decide to mix up the ingredients of a show. Cogert is master of ceremonies. The second number is a Chinese fantasy, in which Miss O'Donnell and the adiago team are featured, aided by a chorus of 20. "Gay Paree" is the third number, also led by Cogert and Motto with their two-man vocal jazz band and an impersonation of the Duncan sisters.

Animal Circus

Martini's Accordianas provide a musical novelty that has been headlined in every part of the world. Three men and two women play piano accordions, and two girls, the Warren Sisters, do several song and dance numbers. Gene Martini heads the act, and the other accordion players are: Carmen Talve, Dominick Zano,

WELSH TELLS OF EXPERIENCE

Candidate Is Speaker at Iron Mountain Monday Night

Iron Mountain, Aug. 23 (Special)—Accusing the administration forces of the state of Michigan not only with a ruthless waste of public funds but irregular practice as well, and charging Governor Wilber M. Brucker with "running up and down the state making flowery speeches, attending teas and crowning queens when he should be at Lansing attending to the affairs of state," George W. Welsh, former city manager of Grand Rapids, and Republican candidate for governor, drew frequent applause from a crowd of about 600 persons in St. Paul park last night. The talk marked the conclusion of his visit in Dickinson county.

The speaker, although accompanied to the city by two Detroit newspapermen, appeared at the speakers' stand alone and was met by R. F. Dundon, mayor, who introduced him.

Welsh opened his talk with a reference to his experience during the past three years as city manager at Grand Rapids, and his association particularly with the work of unemployment relief in that community.

Needed Executive

"One of my several duties as city manager at Grand Rapids," he said, "is to care for the welfare of more than 6,000 families who are urgently in need of that help. I took this job because, as early as 1929, they discovered that it was not possible to run the city government efficiently unless they had someone on the job who knew what it was all about. And Grand Rapids, at that time, was $1,311,000 in the red."

Welsh explained that he accepted the job during the first year at a salary of one dollar because, as he put it "that arrangement placed me in a position where I could talk to the men who were commanding needlessly high salaries."

The speaker described his conduct of the office during the first year; told how he eliminated unnecessary offices, cut salaries and wiped out the city's deficit. More than that, he said, there was a balance in the treasury when that much of the program was completed.

Same With State

"That," he said, "is what we found possible to accomplish in the matter of city government. Now what is the situation with regard to your state government? It is precisely the same.

"Your state government," he continued, "is facing the greatest crisis in its history. I come from the second city in the state and I believe I know something about the financial structure of your industrial centers."

Wayne county next year, he said, will pay 49 percent or $14,500,000, of the state property tax. "And during one of the years in which Groesbeck was governor, 1925," he said, "the entire state tax was only $14,500,000."

"Everywhere in this state," he added, "there is evidence that the people are beginning to realize that the present administration at Lansing has been a dismal failure, that it has not measured up and that it has not performed any worthwhile and effective service in this crisis.

Should Be On Job

"You cannot run a city, nor a state nor even a popcorn stand unless you are on the job." It was at this juncture that the candidate made reference to what he termed Governor Brucker's practice of making "flowery speeches, attending tea parties and crowning queens."

"The place for the captain of the ship is upon the bridge deck with his men," he said, "not down in the cabin at the bridge table."

It is far from an idle gesture, he said, to step into a voting booth and place a mark before the name of a candidate.

"Government," he said, "is an agency that can do a lot of good for the people if properly used, and it can do a tremendous harm if improperly used."

through the lines.

Arraignment of two farmers in Boone on charges of maliciously destroying property in connection with the dumping of cream.

Referring to the stopping of a railroad train at Emerson and Nacora, Neb., last night, leaders of the strike instructed that the farmers do no more than picket the highways peaceably.

Picket lines in southwestern Iowa, at the strategically located centers as Council Bluffs, Missouri Valley and Onowa were drawn more closely as the day wore on but sheriffs of several counties declared no violence would be tolerated.

The result was that all but a few trucks passed through the lines.

At Rockford, Iowa, a new sector of the campaign, more than 75 farmers demanded of Manager Lynn Smith that the Rockford creamery observe the holiday by closing. Later they went on similar missions to Nora Springs, Dougherty, and Greene accompanied by Sheriff B. F. Atherton of Floyd county.

Sheriff Wagner of Blackhawk county and a dozen deputies cleared road near the Benson creamery, which last week was the scene of forceful picketing of spiked planks, railroad ties and steel barrels.

Superior Sewer Is Being Repaired

A force of men have been at work since last Monday morning making repairs on the Superior street sewer. There was a cave-in early in the day on Monday in the center of the street just above the sewer. It was found that the sewer pipe was damaged and had let in the quick sand which formed a hollow just above causing the collapse of the surface of the street. A section of the sewer was filled with sand and dirt and this interfered with the disposal of the sewage as rapidly as necessary. This 18 inch trunk sewer was the first laid in Munising. The contract was let to the Shaw-Kendall company of Toledo in August, 1897, for a water works system and 7,500 feet of 12 and 18 inch sewer pipe.

Tim Nester was president of the village at the time. The contract had been awarded for the sum of $27,500 and was to be finished in about sixty days.

Whalen Speaks For McKeighan Here

A crowd of between three and four hundred persons listened to "Nick" Whalen of Flint who spoke in behalf of Mayor William McKeighan of Flint, candidate for governor, the candidate, through some mistake in schedule, being unable to arrive as was advertised. Mr. McKeighan is expected to drive over from Escanaba on Wednesday after filling a speaking date at Escanaba at two o'clock.

Whalen was listened to with attention but with little enthusiasm excepting when a half-humorous turn brought laughter mixed with applause.

Most of the talk concerned itself with the record as major of his candidate although considerable attention was given to the charitable inclinations of Mr. McKeighan especially during his business life as druggist.

"McKeighan is the sort of a man who appeals to the common citizen, he is the special friend of the farmer, the workingman and the small business man," Whalen stated. He named some of the "fourteen points" on which the McKeighan campaign is based, among them being the doing away with a sales tax, doing away with the limitation of the income potation tax, repeal of the eighteenth amendment and old age pensions.

Mr. Whalen was introduced by P. S. Hamilton, president of the village.

BAD FIRE

Fire broke out in the electrical shop of Jeff Bodette about ten o'clock on Monday night and proved a difficult job for the local fighters to control. The structure belongs to Mrs. Frank Harris and is among the older buildings of the town, having been rebuilt several times. Three roofs on it complicated the matter. The Chapman and Gill barber shop and the beauty shop of Leah Lutz as well as the Bodette establishment were put out of business for the time being. Firemen and citizens were able to remove all the fixtures of the barber and beauty shop but most of the Bodette stock was lost.

The amount of damage has not yet been estimated.

A son was born in the local hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Meisner of Engadine on August 21.

NEWBERRY BRIEFS

Mrs. Walter Truettner of Detroit is the guest of Mrs. Frank P. Bohn, arriving on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Axel Peterson of Marquette drove down on Sunday bringing with them Miss Ruth Anderson who has been visiting them, and taking back with them Miss Emma Kalmbach who will visit in Marquette and in Iron Mountain.

GERMAN GOV'T WILL SUPPORT DEATH PENALTY

the majority of which consisted of uniformed Nazis assembled in the streets discussing the death penalties, the first imposed under the government's emergency regulations.

The five condemned men, convicted by an emergency "speed" court at Beuthen of killing a Communist in a political brawl have become the center of a violent controversy. Open threats of reprisals have been voiced by Nazi leaders and every bit of strength the Hitlerites can muster will be used in the fight to save the lives of the men who have become "martyrs" to their cause.

In government circles it was said that no one had done the five condemned men or the Nazi movement worse service than Hitler himself. A government spokesman said Hitler had made it extremely difficult for Chancellor Von Papen to show leniency, as any such move would be regarded as yielding to Nazi pressure.

At the Prussian ministry of justice it was said that there seemed to be one compromise which would satisfy both the government and the Hitlerites, without requiring either to back down.

The slaying for which the men were condemned took place nine minutes after the emergency decree providing the death penalty became effective, it was pointed out. A ministerial spokesman said that if the men could prove they were ignorant of the decree they could petition for a new trial, which would be held in an ordinary court instead of a "speed" court.

Several days probably will elapse before any action is taken by the government.

They planned to stop here for the night, refuel and get away as soon as the weather permitted.

Planned No Race

The latter pair said the almost simultaneous departure of both planes was not with the intention on their part at least, of making a race of the venture.

Two other planes were poised for trans-Atlantic crossings in New York.

J. A. Mollison, Scotch flier who made the first solo flight from Europe to New York last week, had his Moth plane ready at Roosevelt field for the return trip when weather reports met his approval.

A trio composed of William Ulbrich, Dr. Leon Piscullie and Edna Newcomer were prepared to leave New York tomorrow on a non-stop flight to Rome by way of Florence. Miss Newcomer planned to make a parachute jump at Florence in commemoration of Florence Nightingale, the nurse.

When Lee and Bochkon took the air at Berlin only about 100 miles separated them from Solberg and Petersen who were over Portsmouth, N. H., at that time. Later the Solberg-Petersen plane reported passing over Portland, Me. It was sighted over Fort Greville, N. S., at 12:25 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time). Fort Greville is 600 miles from Harbor Grace and is on the north shore of the Bay of Fundy.

A plane believed to have been that of Lee and Bochkon was sighted over St. John at 1:00 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time).

Solberg and Peterson were the first of the trio to take off, leaving the Floyd Bennett airport, New York, at 4:41 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time). Lee and Bochkon hopped off from the Barre-Montpelier airport at Berlin, Vt., at 9:15 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) with knowledge of the departure several hours before of Solberg and Petersen.

Hutchinson and his companions went into the air at 10:07 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time), also from the Floyd Bennett airport. Weather reports available when all three flights got under way were favorable for the first leg.

Solberg, a scion of the old Vikings and Petersen, a veteran radio expert, were flying a huge Sesquiplane. They planned to refuel here and get away at dawn tomorrow.

Aboard An Amphibian

The Lee-Bochkon plane, named the "Green Mountain Boy," is painted red and carries the inscription "Barre-Montpelier, the granite center of the world." Lee and Bochkon planned to put aboard 460 gallons of gasoline here. They figured that would be sufficient for about 4,000 miles or 35 hours flying time. Their objective, Kjeller field, Oslo, is 3,150 miles from this port.

Like Solberg and Petersen, Lee and Bochkon planned a quick getaway from Harbor Grace. They intended to obtain weather reports from Hubert Huntington, navigator, who was their advisor at the Barre-Montpelier airport and who remained at that place.

Hutchinson's "Flying Family" left New York aboard a Sikorsky amphibian, the "City of Richmond." Unless weather conditions were against them, they planned hops on consecutive days from St. John to Labrador, to England, thence to Iceland and finally to London. The distance was estimated at 4,200 miles.

Hutchinson's flight was undertaken with the intention of demonstrating the safety of trans-Atlantic flying over the airmail route charted by the government. His plane is powered with two Pratt Whitney 420 horse-power motors and has a cruising radius of 7 to 7½ hours at 110 miles an hour.

The Hutchinson plane is painted black and silver with the words "Flying Family" on the fuselage. This has been translated into "Familia Volano" on each side of the plane's nose. On the fuselage also is painted a circle with wings containing heads of a man, a woman and two children. The plane's equipment includes long and short-wave radio sets.

Fair Facts

Fred W. Green of Ionia is a firm believer in free fairs. The famous Ionia Free Fair, in which the ex-governor is one of the mainstays, just concluded its seventeenth annual performance last week, and yesterday Fair Fan Green received a message from his partner, Fred Chapman, saying that the Ionia fair made a profit of $5,000 this year. It predicts that free admission at the gate would be a successful move for the Upper Peninsula State Fair, which as governor he helped to inaugurate.

Fair visitors Tuesday, after seeing Fred Green in a box at the Upper Peninsula State Fair, would have felt cheated if they hadn't heard him talk, so August Lundgard, chairman of the fair board, introduced Senator H. J. Rushton, who introduced Mr. Green, who gave a typical Green optimism talk. Then in turn, the Senator introduced other fair visitors. Howard Lawrence, state treasurer, Frank Fitzgerald, secretary of state; Herbert Powell, commissioner of agriculture, George Welsh, of Grand Rapids, Grover M. Rouse of the secretary of state's office, and W. F. Doyle of Menominee.

Bits of Cheer in Business

Hammond, Ind., Aug. 23 (AP)—The Hirsch Shirt corporation has recalled 177 former employes preparatory to capacity operations during the next three months or more.

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 23 (AP)—The Holyoke and Brattleboro, Vt., factories of the C. F. Church Manufacturing company, subsidiary of the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation, have been placed on a full time basis for several months on limited schedule.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 23 (AP)—The Briteway chain of wall paper and paint stores has announced that it will open its eighth store next week here. Damon Raike, president of the company, announced earnings the first six months were three times those of a like period in 1931.

Cincinnati, Aug. 23 (AP)—The American Rolling Mill company plans to start its Ashland, Ky., blast furnace on Sept. 1. It will give employment to approximately 100 men.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—A survey recently completed showed 95 textile mills up to Aug. 12 had added 4,061 employes since July 1. Heads of the mills reported that they expected the up turn to carry through for several months, at least.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—Member banks reporting to the federal reserve system for the week ending August 17 showed a total increase of $25,000,00 in commercial deposits over the preceding week. Time deposits went down $5,000,000, security loans decreased $26,000,000, and other loans dipped $23,000,000.

BLOCK SPEAKS FOR MAYOR IN OUSTER CASE

that the "unknown person" was a woman friend of his.

It developed that the check for $7,500 was missing and Seabury said he never had had it. He established the identity of the receiver through a check stub and testimony of Block taken at a private earing.

The only humorous episode of the long, serious afternoon and evening came when Curtin asked Ungerleider if his repurchase agreements such as Sherwood entered into were not made at a time stocks were going up.

"Yes," the financier replied, "it was a good market."

"You were relying on Republican prosperity," Curtin suggested, smiling.

"It's still Republican prosperity," answered Ungerleider and Roosevelt, the Democratic candidate for president, joined in the laughter.

Ungerleider's name was linked with the Walker case because of his interest in Parmalee company which would have benefitted by a limitation of taxicab operation in New York. Seabury said Walker attempted to limit the cabs.

L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson railroad and a member of the New York City board of taxicab control, testified today the mayor had not sought to influence the board.

Curtin today perfected his briefs for the supreme court which has been called upon by Mayor Walker to pass upon Governor Roosevelt's power of removal. Both Curtin and the attorney general, who is defending the governor's rights, must submit their briefs to Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley tomorrow.

doing anything," he answered quickly. "As editor of this magazine I can do anything I like, because the magazine will not be identified with politics."

He said the purpose of his magazine would be to try to point out the new outlook in all fields of life.

"What is that new outlook," he was asked, and quickly replied.

"I'm going to write that myself."

He said he would do most of his magazine work at night, would dictate all his own articles, would pass on all contributions, and would retain the other connections he hold in the business and financial world.

"We're going to talk about everything and everybody and tell why we like them or don't like them."

"Will you talk about the Hoover-Roosevelt campaign?" he was asked.

"We're going to comment on subjects pressing people for solution. The magazine won't take partisan sides. This has nothing to do with Hoover or Roosevelt or Norman Thomas," Smith said.

AID FORESTS, STATION PLEA

Advocate Use of Forest Lands for Unemployment Relief

On the assumption that forest improvements will assure future dividends (incidentally this is one of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's belief), the Dunbar Forest Experimental Station of the Soo, which again has a neat educational exhibit at the state fair, advocates the utilization of unproductive forest lands for the relief of unemployment in the upper peninsula. P. W. Robbins is again in charge of the exhibit.

Their plan for forest improvement is three-fold: first comes the building of fire lines, second the planting of forests, and third the utilization of slashings.

With some two million acres of timberland in the peninsula in need of protection, it is the contention of station officials that more benefits could be obtained by stopping the dole system and putting the men to work in the woods building fire lines for the protection of this land. It is estimated that the project would give work to some 15,000 laborers throughout the entire winter.

Planting of forests or reforestation is the second phase of the plan and at the present time it is estimated that over a million acres in the peninsula are denuded of forest growth and need planting. However, this would have to be done gradually as this work is still in its infancy and at the present time there are only enough seedlings available to keep a crew of 1,000 men at work during the coming fall.

Some 15,000, it is estimated could also be put to work for the winter in the utilization of slashings, acreage which has already been cut over and on which the second growth now needs thinning. Fuel and other forest products obtained from the slashings can also be utilized by municipal governments for winter fuel supplies for indigent families.

It is advocated that counties, townships and cities rather than gives doles, allow the unemployed to work in the woods building fire lines, planting forests and cutting slashings in payment for the relief they receive. Planting of trees will assure a timber crop in the future and will be an improvement instead of just a temporary improvement. Fire lines will also assure future timber crops through protection and cutting of slashings will do likewise as it enables the young trees to thrive.

WELSH TELLS OF EXPERIENCE

Candidate Is Speaker at Iron Mountain Monday Night

Iron Mountain, Aug. 23 (Special)—Accusing the administration forces of the state of Michigan not only with a ruthless waste of public funds but irregular practice as well, and charging Governor Wilber M. Brucker with "running up and down the state making flowery speeches, attending teas and crowning queens when he should be at Lansing attending to the affairs of state," George W. Welsh, former city manager of Grand Rapids, and Republican candidate for governor, drew frequent applause from a crowd of about 600 persons in St. Paul park last night. The talk marked the conclusion of his visit in Dickinson county.

The speaker, although accompanied to the city by two Detroit newspapermen, appeared at the speakers' stand alone and was met by R. F. Dundon, mayor, who introduced him.

Welsh opened his talk with a reference to his experience during the past three years as city manager at Grand Rapids, and his association particularly with the work of unemployment relief in that community.

Needed Executive

"One of my several duties as city manager at Grand Rapids," he said, "is to care for the welfare of more than 6,000 families who are urgently in need of that help. I took this job because, as early as 1929, they discovered that it was not possible to run the city government efficiently unless they had someone on the job who knew what it was all about. And Grand Rapids, at that time, was $1,311,000 in the red."

Welsh explained that he accepted the job during the first year at a salary of one dollar because, as he put it "that arrangement placed me in a position where I could talk to the men who were commanding needlessly high salaries."

The speaker described his conduct of the office during the first year; told how he eliminated unnecessary offices, cut salaries and wiped out the city's deficit. More than that, he said, there was a balance in the treasury when that much of the program was completed.

Same With State

"That," he said, "is what we found possible to accomplish in the matter of city government. Now what is the situation with regard to your state government? It is precisely the same.

"Your state government," he continued, "is facing the greatest crisis in its history. I come from the second city in the state and I believe I know something about the financial structure of your industrial centers."

Wayne county next year, he said, will pay 49 percent or $14,500,000, of the state property tax. "And during one of the years in which Groespeck was governor, 1925," he said, "the entire state tax was only $14,500,000."

"Everywhere in this state," he added, "there is evidence that the people are beginning to realize that the present administration at Lansing has been a dismal failure, that it has not measured up and that it has not performed any worthwhile and effective service in this crisis.

Should Be On Job

"You cannot run a city, nor a state nor even a popcorn stand unless you are on the job." It was at this juncture that the candidate made reference to what he termed Governor Brucker's practice of making "flowery speeches, attending tea parties and crowning queens."

"The place for the captain of the ship is upon the bridge deck with his men," he said, "not down in the cabin at the bridge table."

It is far from an idle gesture, he said, to step into a voting booth and place a mark before the name of a candidate.

"Government," he said, "is an agency that can do a lot of good for the people if properly used, and it can do a tremendous harm if improperly used."

through the lines.

Arraignment of two farmers in Boone on charges of maliciously destroying property in connection with the dumping of cream.

Referring to the stopping of a railroad train at Emerson and Nacora, Neb., last night, leaders of the strike instructed that the farmers do no more than picket the highways peaceably.

Picket lines in southwestern Iowa, at the strategically located centers as Council Bluffs, Missouri Valley and Onowa were drawn more closely as the day wore on, but sheriffs of several counties declared no violence would be tolerated.

The result was that all but a few trucks passed through the lines.

At Rockford, Iowa, a new sector of the campaign, more than 75 farmers demanded of Manager Lynn Smith that the Rockford creamery observe the holiday by closing. Later they went on similar missions to Nora Springs, Dougherty, and Grene, accompanied by Sheriff B. F. Atherton of Floyd county.

Sheriff Wagner of Blackhawk county and a dozen deputies cleared roads near the Benson creamery, which last week was the scene of forceful picketing of spiked planks, railroad ties, and steel barrels.

Governor Brucker Speaks Here Today

Governor Wilbur M. Brucker will visit here this evening on his second tour of the upper peninsula, and is scheduled to deliver an address at the Legion Country club at 6:45 o'clock. A banquet in his honor will be served at 6 o'clock at the Beach Inn.

Superior Sewer Is Being Repaired

A force of men have been at work since last Monday morning making repairs on the Superior street sewer. There was a cave-in early in the day on Monday in the center of the street just above the sewer. It was found that the sewer pipe was damaged and had let in the quick sand which formed a hollow just above causing the collapse of the surface of the street. A section of the sewer was filled with sand and dirt and this interfered with the disposal of the sewage as rapidly as necessary. This 18 inch trunk sewer was the first laid in Munising. The contract was let to the Shaw-Kendall company of Toledo in August, 1897, for a water works system and 7,500 feet of 12 and 18 inch sewer pipe.

Tim Nester was president of the village at the time. The contract had been awarded for the sum of $27,500 and was to be finished in about sixty days.

Dwight J. Robbins and son, Otho, publishers of the Morenci Observer, were among the tourists who spent a few days here, departing Monday for home.

Miss Lilias Marsh is visiting her sister, Mrs. Fred Fletcher, at L'Anse.

Mrs. F. O. Blunden and Mrs. A. J. Uller of Detroit who have been visiting Mrs. Legal Johnson have returned home.

Whalen Speaks For McKeighan Here

A crowd of between three and four hundred persons listened to "Nick" Whalen of Flint who spoke in behalf of Mayor William McKeighan of Flint, candidate for governor, the candidate, through some mistake in schedule, being unable to arrive as was advertised. Mr. McKeighan is expected to drive over from Escanaba on Wednesday after filling a speaking date at Escanaba at two o'clock.

Whalen was listened to with attention but with little enthusiasm excepting when a half-humorous turn brought laughter mixed with applause.

Most of the talk concerned itself with the record as major of his candidate, although considerable attention was given to the charitable inclinations of Mr. McKeighan, especially during his business life as druggist.

"McKeighan is the sort of a man who appeals to the common citizen, and is the special friend of the farmer, the workingman and the small business man," Whalen stated. He named some of the "fourteen points" on which the McKeighan campaign is based, among them being the doing away with a state tax, doing away with the limitation of the incorporation tax, repeal of the eighteenth amendment and old age pensions.

Mr. Whalen was introduced by P. S. Hamilton, president of the village.

BAD FIRE

Fire broke out in the electrical shop of Jeff Bodette about ten o'clock on Monday night and proved a difficult job for the local fighters to control. The structure belongs to Mrs. Frank Harris and is among the older buildings of the town, having been rebuilt several times. Three roofs on it complicated the matter. The Chapman and Gill barber shop and the beauty shop of Leah Lutz as well as the Bodette establishment were put out of business for the time being. Firemen and citizens were able to remove all the fixtures of the barber and beauty shop but most of the Bodette stock was lost.

The amount of damage has not yet been estimated.

BIRTHS

A son was born in the local hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Meisner of Engadine on August 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shady are the parents of a son born in the Perry-Spinks hospital on August 22. Mr. Shady is in the coast guard service stationed at Whitefish Point.

Fair visitors Tuesday, after seeing Fred Green in a box at the Upper Peninsula State Fair, would have felt cheated if they hadn't heard him talk, so August Lundgaard, chairman of the fair board, introduced Senator H. J. Rushton, who introducted Mr. Green, who gave a typical Green optimism talk. Then in turn, the Senator introduced other fair visitors: Howard Lawrence, state treasurer; Frank Fitzgerald, secretary of state; Herbert Powell, commissioner of agriculture; George Welsh, of Grand Rapids; Grover M. Rouse of the secretary of state's office, and W. F. Doyle of Menominee.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—A pronounced impetus in the foreign buying of copper has been noticed, observers say. In the silver market, active dealings pushed futures upwards 20 to 135 points.

BLOCK SPEAKS FOR MAYOR IN OUSTER CASE

that the "unknown person" was a woman friend of his.

It developed that the check for $7,500 was missing and Seabury said he never had had it. He established the identity of the receiver through a check stub and testimony of Block taken at a private earing.

The only humorous episode of the long, serious afternoon and evening came when Curtin asked Ungerleider if his repurchase agreements such as Sherwood entered into were not made at a time stocks were going up.

"Yes," the financier replied, "it was a good market."

"You were relying on Republican prosperity," Curtin suggested, smiling.

"It's still Republican prosperity," answered Ungerleider and Roosevelt, the Democratic candidate for president, joined in the laughter.

Ungerleider's name was linked with the Walker case because of his interest in Parmalee company which would have benefitted by a limitation of taxicab operation in New York. Seabury said Walker attempted to limit the cabs.

L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson railroad and a member of the New York City board of taxicab control, testified today the mayor had not sought to influence the board.

Curtin today perfected his briefs for the supreme court which has been called upon by Mayor Walker to pass upon Governor Roosevelt's power of removal. Both Curtin and the attorney general, who is defending the governor's rights, must submit their briefs to Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley tomorrow.

doing anything," he answered quickly. "As editor of this magazine I can do anything I like, because the magazine will not be identified with politics."

He said the purpose of his magazine would be to try to point out the new outlook in all fields of life."

"What is that new outlook," he was asked, and quickly replied:

"I'm going to write that myself."

He said he would do most of his magazine work at night, would dictate all his own articles, would pass on all contributions, and would retain the other connections he hold in the business and financial world.

"We're going to talk about everything and everybody and tell why we like them or don't like them."

"Will you talk about the Hoover-Roosevelt campaign?" he was asked.

"We're going to comment on subjects pressing people for solution. The magazine won't take partisan sides. This has nothing to do with Hoover or Roosevelt or Norman Thomas," Smith said.

AID FORESTS, STATION PLEA

Advocate Use of Forest Lands for Unemployment Relief

On the assumption that forest improvements will assure future dividends (incidentally this is one of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's belief), the Dunbar Forest Experimental Station of the Soo, which again has a neat educational exhibit at the state fair, advocates the utilization of unproductive forest lands for the relief of unemployment in the upper peninsula. P. W. Robbins is again in charge of the exhibit.

Their plan for forest improvement is three-fold: first comes the building of fire lines, second the planting of forests, and third the utilization of slashings.

With some two million acres of timberland in the peninsula in need of protection, it is the contention of station officials that more benefits could be obtained by stopping the dole system and putting the men to work in the woods building fire lines for the protection of this land. It is estimated that the project would give work to some 15,000 laborers throughout the entire winter.

Planting of forests or reforestation is the second phase of the plan and at the present time it is estimated that over a million acres in the peninsula are denuded of forest growth and need planting. However, this would have to be done gradually as this work is still in its infancy and at the present time there are only enough seedlings available to keep a crew of 1,000 men at work during the coming fall.

Some 15,000, it is estimated, could also be put to work for the winter in the utilization of slashings, acreage which has already been cut over and on which the second growth now needs thinning. Fuel and other forest products obtained from the slashings can also be utilized by municipal governments for winter fuel supplies for indigent families.

It is advocated that counties, townships and cities rather than gives doles, allow the unemployed to work in the woods building fire lines, planting forests and cutting slashings in payment for the relief they receive. Planting of trees will assure a timber crop in the future and will be an improvement instead of just a temporary improvement. Fire lines will also assure future timber crops through protection and cutting of slashings will do likewise as it enables the young trees to thrive.

Mr. Soderman won fame as a potato grower when he was proclaimed Upper Peninsula champion two years ago. He is serving his first year as fair director.

Local firms represented in the various booths include: De Grand's Hudson-Essex line; Universal Cinder Products building units, Needham Electric Co. utilities; Michigan Bell Telephone Co., Major Utilities Co. washers and radios; Wadhams gasoline and lubricants; Escanaba Paper Co. wallpaper display, Vogue and Cho San beauty shops, Holland Furnaces and air conditioners, Escanaba Daily Press picture gallery; E. L. Brotherton tiles, Moersch and Degnan bathroom fixtures; Charles Gunderson road machinery; The Fair Store grocery; Delta Made dairy products; I. Stephenson Co. builders' materials; Northern Sportsman magaine, Munising; Lauerman's Store.

Sawyer-Stoll, local timber company, has an outdoor exhibit of a rustic fence, and a Chrysler Plymouth showing occupies a tent near the exhibit hall.

WILD LIFE IS BIG ATTRACTION

Natural Assets of State Seen in Conservation Exhibit

Specimens of practically all of Michigan's wild game life—animal, fowl and fish—probably more than most persons, with the exception of confirmed sportsmen, see in a lifetime are again being exhibited by the state conservation department at the upper Peninsula State Fair and the attraction that these displays are to thousands daily reveal in a measure some of the reasons why upper Michigan has proven a magnet to sportsmen, tourists and vacationists.

As in past years, the department of fisheries exhibit is located in the south portion of the exposition building near the main entrance and has a woodland setting with thatched roof and portions of walls of evergreen boughs and the pungent smell of balsam greets all as they enter the building.

Darting about in indirectly lighted pools of running water are all of the species of game fish which inhabit the lakes and streams of the state, several of the species with which the department as worked and stocked lakes and streams in an effort to make Michigan's fishing facilities incomparable.

Big Sturgeon Shown

Among the some 300 members of the finny tribe being shown are brook, brown and rainbow trout, large and small mouth black bass, bluegills, perch, pike perch (commonly called walleyed pike or dory) and others.

Apart from the others and lazing about in a huge sheet iron tank in the center of the display are two sturgeon which are attracting an unusual amount of attention. One is a big fellow four and one-half feet in length and weighing about 40 pounds, while the other, although about 20 inches in length looks almost like a minnow in comparison. Both are from the trout hatchery and rearing station at Thompson near Manistique.

To the west of the exposition building and about 100 feet north of the main grandstand are the wild animals and fowl, enclosed in bough-thatched cages, giving them some protection from the sun's rays.

They're All There

Close to the road and greeting one's eyes first as they start around the enclosure are two graceful, docile little spotted fawns which attract all, young and old alike. Then there are the porcupines, which all, who have ever gone into the woods, have seen innumerable times; a full grown bob-cat, which youngsters seem to think is entirely harmless; two raccoons, a litter of five coyotes, three yearling red fox, a pair of huge timber wolves, three beaver which loll about, most of the time in a bathtub of water, and three cub bears, one of which limps about with a bandaged foot. Four horned owls, one a huge bird and a bunch of mallard ducks, complete the exhibit.

Col. Oliver Visits His Brother Here

Among the distinguished visitorse which this week will bring to Escanaba is Colonel Llewellyn W. Oliver, General Staff Corps, (Cavalry), U. S. Army, who is arriving Thursday morning from Washington, D. C., for a visit with his brother, Clinton B. Oliver, who is a patient at St. Francis hospital.

Colonel Olliver

Colonel Oliver, who is a native of Michigan and whose home address is Escanaba, has an outstanding record of service. Appointed as a cadet from Michigan to the United States Military Academy, West Point, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Infantry following his graduation. In 1900 he was transferred to the Cavalry and has served in that branch of service since, through to the rank of Colonel. During the World War he served as lieutenant colonel and colonel of Infantry, National Army. After its close he was stationed in the Hawaiian Islands as Chief of Staff of the Hawaiian Department, and more recently was transferred to duty in the office of the Chief of Cavalry, Washington, D. C.

Colonel Oliver has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the Navy Cross, in recognition of meritorious and conspicuous service during the World War.

CATTLE JUDGE

E. M. HARMON

Holstein and Brown Swiss cattle at the Upper Peninsula State Fair Dairy barns are being judged by E. M. Harmon, associate editor of Successful Farming, Des Moines, Iowa. Mr. Harmon is known here as a speaker, having appeared on the program of a Delta County Farmers' picnic.

Ben Beno

Actor at Fair Inherits Fortune, But Will Keep Working

A man who has traveled in every country on the European continent and in North and South America, who has just fallen heir to a fortune and who thinks he will just keep on working because he wouldn't know what to do with himself, is the gentleman who is making hundreds gasp each afternoon and evening at the Upper Peninsula State Fair, as he balances on a chair, on a trapeze, high above the heads of his audience in the grandstand.

Ben Beno, billed in all countries and all languages as "the man on the chair in the air," started his balancing career when he was a youngster, joining a circus and developing his act as he gained in training and experience. He has been in the show business for thirty years.

He has never used a net during his act.

"Oh, I've taken a few bad falls," he said Tuesday, smiling as he recalled them, "cut my lip once, knocked out some teeth here. But there's nothing to be nervous about at all."

Fine Scrap Book

One of Ben Beno's prize possessions, which came from a traveling case covered with labels from more cities and countries than you could count, is a press book, with clippings from all parts of the world, usually accompanied by photographs or pen sketches of him. There is a story about his performance before a cannibal tribe, stories of his engagements at Coney Island, Monaco, Dublin, Ireland, Buenes Aires, Portugal, London, Paris, Berlin, central European countries, Australia in fact of his appearances in practically every well known country with the exception of Finland, Iceland and Cuba.

"They treated me fine," he said, speaking of the cannibals before whom he presented his program. "The king wanted to give me three hundred wives and eat me. I wasn't afraid."

Stopped to read a part of a London press notice, he explained that in England he is billed as an Australian because of a natural English prejudice against American performers.

Friend of McLaglen

The scrap book also has pictures and stories of the reunion meeting at Coney Island of Ben Beno and Victor McLaglen, movie star, who, as you probably know, used to be Beno's partner.

"What am I going to do, now that I have some money?" he repeated the question. "Well, I don't know. I still have six more fairs to make. Think maybe I'll just keep right on working. I wouldn't know what to do with myself, otherwise.

"Will I have to keep dodging the women who want a rich husband? Say, do you know I've had twenty-seven proposals already—can you imagine that—" his concern at the sudden attention was genuine. "But there's a little girl down south and I guess there isn't anyone going to take her place."

THEATRES

A war-time pal and a war-time bride fight it out for the possession of a war-time hero in "The Man From Yesterday," a Jaramount picture, with Claudette Colbert, Clive Brook, Andy Devine and Charles Boyer in the leading roles. It opened at the Delft Theatre yesterday.

Miss Colbert, a war nurse, marries Brook in haste during the hectic days in Paris in 1918. They are very much in love, but Brook is called to front line duty. A few weeks later he is reported killed. Claudette turns to Boyer, a young surgeon, for friendship and finds a new love.

While visiting a reclamation hospital years later, Claudette discovers Brook. He has been reduced to poor health by his war experiences, and the only joy of his life is Andy Devine, his devoted buddy, who keeps him cheered with his amusing antics. They are inseparable.

Claudette persuades Brook that her friendship with Boyer is meaningless, and that she will never forget her duty as his wife. She persuades Brook to return with her to Paris. This move takes Andy out of Brook's life temporarily, but the loyalty that started on the battle-field is matched with the loyalty of his recovered wife.

The final scene, which brings Brook and Devine together again, is a terrific heart-wrencher.

REGISTER OVER 6,000 IN CITY

Today is the last day for registration of voters who wish to cast their ballots in the primary election, which will be held Sept. 13.

Yesterday, 170 citizens called at the city clerk's office to re-register, making the total now qualified to vote at more than six thousand. It is estimated that approximately four hundred citizens are not yet recorded on the books.

Caught In Storm, Drift For Hours

Fayette, Mich., Aug. 23 (Special)—While passing through the channel between Squaw Island and Little Summer Island to take care of their nets about 6 o'clock Wednesday morning, the attention of Charles Arnold, William Smith and Sydney Smith, Fayette fishermen, was attracted to several persons on Squaw Island who were excitedly shouting and waving various garments.

The fishermen immediately changed their course and went to the island, two or three hundred feet away. They found there a man from Illinois and two women from Washington Island. They had been cruising in their sail boat Tuesday and had been caught in a storm which tore their sail and disabled their craft.

In this condiion they drifted out close to Poverty Island at which time the wind changed and brought them to Squaw Island where they managed to land Tuesday night after drifting eight or ten miles. There had been a heavy rainstorm Tuesday night while on the island and their only protection available was the torn canvas under which the members of the party huddled during the long hours of the night. They had been without food nearly twenty-four hours but were not suffering seriously. Their deliverers towed them to Washington Island, at which place their needs were supplied.

Attempts Robbery, Takes A Beating

Pontiac, Aug. 23 (AP)—When Theodore Aleau attempted to hold up Charles Sliwoski in his home here Tuesday, Sliwoski, his wife and a boarder jumped on Aleau and beat him severely, after taking a gun away from him. Neighbors heard Aleau fire one shot from the gun, and aided in detaining him.

Fine Scrap Book

One of Ben Beno's prize possessions, which came from a traveling case covered with labels from more cities and countries than you could count, is a press book, with clippings from all parts of the world, usually accompanied by photographs or pen sketches of him. There is a story about his performance before a cannibal tribe, stories of his engagements at Coney Island, Monaco, Dublin, Ireland, Buenes Aires, Portugal, London, Paris, Berlin, central European countries, Australia—in fact of his appearances in practically every well known country with the exception of Finland, Iceland and Cuba.

"They treated me fine," he said, speaking of the cannibals before whom he presented his program. "The king wanted to give me three hundred wives and eat me. I wasn't afraid."

Stopped to read a part of a London press notice, he explained that in England he is billed as an Australian because of a natural English prejudice against American performers.

Friend of McLaglen

The scrap book also has pictures and stories of the reunion meeting at Coney Island of Ben Beno and Victor McLaglen, movie star, who, as you probably know, used to be Beno's partner.

"What am I going to do, now that I have some money?" he repeated the question. "Well, I don't know. I still have six more fairs to make. Think maybe I'll just keep right on working. I wouldn't know what to do with myself, otherwise.

"Will I have to keep dodging the women who want a rich husband? Say, do you know I've had twenty-seven proposals already—can you imagine that—" his concern at the sudden attention was genuine. "But there's a little girl down south and I guess there isn't anyone going to take her place."

THEATRES

A war-time pal and a war-time bride fight it out for the possession of a war-time hero in "The Man From Yesterday," a Jaramount picture, with Claudette Colbert, Clive Brook, Andy Devine and Charles Boyer in the leading roles. It opened at the Delft Theatre yesterday.

Miss Colbert, a war nurse, marries Brook in haste during the hectic days in Paris in 1918. They are very much in love, but Brook is called to front line duty. A few weeks later he is reported killed. Claudette turns to Boyer, a young surgeon, for friendship and finds a new love.

While visiting a reclamation hospital years later, Claudette discovers Brook. He has been reduced to poor health by his war experiences, and the only joy of his life is Andy Devine, his devoted buddy, who keeps him cheered with his amusing antics. They are inseparable.

Claudette persuades Brook that her friendship with Boyer is meaningless, and that she will never forget her duty as his wife. She persuades Brook to return with her to Paris. This move takes Andy out of Brook's life temporarily, but the loyalty that started on the battle-field is matched with the loyalty of his recovered wife.

The final scene, which brings Brook and Devine together again, is a terrific heart-wrencher.

Caught In Storm, Drift For Hours

Fayette, Mich., Aug. 23 (Special)—While passing through the channel between Squaw Island and Little Summer Island to take care of their nets about 6 o'clock Wednesday morning, the attention of Charles Arnold, William Smith and Sydney Smith, Fayette fishermen, was attracted to several persons on Squaw Island who were excitedly shouting and waving various garments.

The fishermen immediately changed their course and went to the island, two or three hundred feet away. They found there a man from Illinois and two women from Washington Island. They had been cruising in their sail boat Tuesday and had been caught in a storm which tore their sail and disabled their craft.

In this condiion they drifted out close to Poverty Island at which time the wind changed and brought them to Squaw Island where they managed to land Tuesday night after drifting eight or ten miles. There had been a heavy rainstorm Tuesday night while on the island and their only protection available was the torn canvas under which the members of the party huddled during the long hours of the night. They had been without food nearly twenty-four hours but were not suffering seriously. Their deliverers towed them to Washington Island, at which place their needs were supplied.

TEMPERANCE PLAN

WITH the election of Jouett Shouse, the "wet" from dry Kansas, to the presidency of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, a new policy in the handling of the liquor problem has been announced by the organization.

Instead of making the mistake of the Prohibitionists, the wet organization intends to work diligently, after the repeal of the 18th amendment is a fact, for the promotion of temperance. It will be recalled that the dry organizations ceased their temperance program upon the enactment of Prohibition, believing that the law would take care of the entire liquor problem. Their line of attack was simply to camp at the national capital and clamor for rigid enforcement of the law, a thing highly desired but proven quite impossible.

Prior to the world war, the cause of temperance was making real progress. Many people were convinced of the dangers of excessive use of alcohol, took the pledge and were solving their personal Prohibition problem themselves. A mistaken notion that the cause of temperance could be furthered by force of law, which gained quite general acceptance following a wave of propaganda from the Anti-Saloon League and other dry organizations, then caused the nation to launch the so-called "noble experiment."

In accepting the presidency of the association, Mr. Shouse explained the new policy as follows: "A constructive opportunity of large possibilities now awaits the association. It applies not merely to the completion of the effort for repeal but equally to what is to be done after repeal is accomplished. All good citizens are anxious to see the inauguration of systems of distribution and sale that will minimize abuses. To that end the Association will give its thorough cooperation. Its interest will not cease with the mere accomplishment of repeal. On the other hand, it will exert itself to the uttermost in support of law and order, proper regulation, and temperance."

The dry organizations of the country might have a chance of regaining public favor and also monetary contributions if they launched a sensible and energetic campaign to educate the masses as to the needs of temperance, not only with the use of liquor but many other things.

HAS GOOD START

THE Upper Peninsula State Fair got away with a good start on Monday, with a large crowd coming from the surrounding territory to take advantage of the free gate admission, which was tried out as an experiment this year. Fair officials expressed themselves at the end of the day as being highly pleased with the results obtained.

The livestock departments, particularly that section devoted to dairy cattle, continue to hold the center of attraction at the state fair. The results of five years' showing are clearly demonstrated in the improvement of livestock exhibited and the knowledge of how to fit the animals for showing at fairs.

Upper Peninsula farmers have entered more dairy cattle than ever in the U. P. fair's history and what will be gratifying to them is that they will not have to face the competition from the experienced showmen from lower Michigan. The entry of lower Michigan exhibits in past years has not been without its benefits, however. The downstate breeders have taken premium money away from the northern farmers, it is true, but they have also shown the exhibitors of this region many of the fine points concerning the show business, from which they have been able to profit since then.

In point of entertainment this year's fair is better than ever, even though it was believed there would be a limit to the high standard of attractions that the management could offer. The "night show," particularly, has won the admiration and enthusiastic applause of fairgoers.

Given favorable weather, the Upper Peninsula State Fair stands to make a good showing for itself this year despite the hard times, which have been making matters difficult for the best state and county fairs in the country.

ILLNESS AND CODDLING

THE management at Marquette Prison is supposed to be as vigilant and competent as any in the country. Yet four convicts testifying at the trial of a fellow prisoner, Stanley Podolski, accused of complicity in the murder of Dr. A. H. Hornbogan during an outbreak, have asserted that the penitentiary has its bootleggers and that whisky is introduced into it by truck. It has been brought out also, that Podolski had access to a typewriter on which, it is asserted, he wrote murder notes.

If there has been so much failure of effective oversight and discipline at Marquette where those in charge are supposed to be doing their best with the opportunities given them to maintain proper conditions, what must be the situation in some of the other places of punishment and correction throughout the United States? Is there cause for wonder because moral degradation, homicidal plots, instruction in criminal life and organized riots and insurrections are common in them?

There is not; and matters never will be better than they are, until the prevailing theory and practice in the management of American penal institutions is materially changed.

Because of policies not always within the control of prison boards and wardens, hard manual labor for convicts is woefully lacking. Work is a great discourager of discontent, plots and outbreaks. A man who has used his muscles all day is more ready to go to sleep at night than he is to brood or foment trouble.

The situation is made worse in many prisons, too, by substitution of a life of actual indulgence, as well as of idleness, for a healthful life of industry. A round of games, shows, radio entertainments, with liberty to visit fellow convicts almost without restraint, not only takes away all the deterrent terror of punishment from those contemplating wrong doing, but once they are in the toils of the law it also divests them of all feeling of wholesome respect for those in command of places of supposed punishment, and dulls any budding feeling of guilt and repentance.

The prisoners in the institutional products of pink tea penology become spoiled and they act as children do who are spoiled. On where they are hopelessly hardened and depraved, they acquire a sneering contempt for authority and feel a constant temptation to measure their strength with warden and guard. Both sorts of prisoners need much the same thing, hard discipline and in extreme cases a touch of the rod.

Ten hours of good hard work each day, privileges only when really earned, liberties which embrace only simple humane treatment with a whipping post in the background, might work a wonderful transformation in conditions in a lot of American prisons.

AMERICANS ADVANCE

On Aug. 24, 1918, American troops formed German positions on the Soissons-Dhuimms road and advanced for more than half a mile. They held their ground despite several furious counter attacks.

British forces smashed through the German lines at Bray, took the town and carried the top of Thiepval ridge. They occupied 10 villages during the operation.

French divisions continued their hammering and made important gains near Crecy.

for LOVE or MONEY

(By NEA Service) BY H. W. CORLEY

CHAPTER XXX

MONA stared at her husband. What could she tell him? Should she say that she had thought him cruel, scheming and revengeful toward his nephew? That she had believed he had married her only to torture both Barry and herself?

She reminded herself that, save for hearsay, she was not even certain that young Barry had ever loved her. The admiring glances, the suave flattery might all have been part of a game, the merest flirtation. By accepting that flirtation for more than it was worth she had lost Steve's love (if she had ever had that) as well as young Barry Townsend's.

All this did not alter the fact that she loved Barry. Now, should she decide against ending this marriage, she could bring Barry into his rightful inheritance.

"Suppose," she said quietly, "that I think this over until after the holidays. Then we can make plans either to remain here as we have been or to start on our honeymoon."

"A Mediterranean cruise?" Townsend suggested eagerly.

"Would you like that?"

"I?" he paused. "Oh, I've been everywhere. Suit yourself, my dear." He added tenderly, "I hope you'll see things my way. I'm not a bad fellow at heart, really." He was silent again. "The bad blood between my brother and I began in the cradle. Then when he stole the woman I was to marry—"

"She must have been willing," Mona pointed out, "or she wouldn't have gone. After all, that wasn't Barry's fault!"

"No. Barry can hardly be blamed for that."

There was no more said on the subject nor was it raised again during the days of preparation for the holiday festivities.

CHRISTMAS came and went merrily. Mr. Townsend had planned a dinner at Twilands with Mona presiding at the table, flushed and lovely, in gleaming white satin and emeralds.

Christmas morning lay gleaming white about them. Snow had fallen and the day was a veritable "Christmas card holiday" as Mrs. Faxon exclaimed. At three o'clock the car arrived for Mona who was to spend the afternoon with her family. The Morans had declined an invitation to Twilands. Ma's new fortunes had taken material form and the neighbors were dropping in for a bit of celebration. Ma was a-flutter with mince pies in the oven, tissue paper and holly everywhere.

Dad, comfortable and smiling, wearing a new silk robe, was seated in his armchair smoking and chatting with one of the boys who had dropped in for "a bit of a laugh and a joke."

The Donahue twins, fresh in starched rompers, were dragging new fire engines up and down the hall amid shouts of glee.

Kitty, it seemed, was entertaining. Mr. Townsend had sent theater tickets and she had departed with a crowd of friends. The telephone rang and Ma answered it. Alice's voice came over the wire.

"Tell her I'll send Jackson to bring her down," Mona ordered, tossing aside her sweet smelling furs.

"You'll not mind?" her mother asked, cautiously covering the transmitter.

"Of course not. He has to wait anyhow. I want to run over to 63rd street a little later."

Mona left shortly after Alice's arrival. A new cheap blue gown hung pathetically about what once had been, in Lottie's terms, "a knockout figure." All the more pathetic, it seemed, because Alice herself did not realize apparently the change that had come over her. Alice had married for love. Well, she had love—and with it struggle and poverty and a hopeless future.

Wondering if she could ever fall into that almost slovenly mode of living, no matter how little money she had, Mona had taken Sonny from her sister and divested him of his wraps.

"Oh, thanks, Min!" Alice said. "You look grand. And your hands—" She glanced at her own grubby fingers with their broken nails and stained palms. "Mine could look nice, too, but I have so little time—"

"I know," Mona said soothingly. "I've been thinking, Al. Maybe you'd like a vacuum cleaner or something."

"But the rug and the chair you sent for Christmas are plenty, Min," Alice said.

"I'll send you a cleaner anyhow," Mona promised. "They make things so much easier, Ma says."

"They do, of course."

The Callahans' tree was still to be admired. Mrs. Casey appeared and invited them all down for ice cream. Lilly Donahue, coming to collect the twins, set a lemon meringue pie down on the table.

"Oh, what fun, really, it is to be poor!" Mona thought to herself. "What friendliness. What neighborliness. Fancy anyone in 63d street dropping in with a pie!"

A LITTLE later Mona stopped to see Lottie who had attended a Christmas Eve celebration with the latest swain and now lay blinking and looking a trifle weary, surrounded by a mass of wilted flowers.

"He sent over practically the whole shop window," Lottie explained. "Now look at them!" Rising, she began arranging her hair before the mirror.

"Hear from South America?" Lottie queried.

"No. Did you?"

"Yes. Maybe you did too. This just came an hour ago." She produced a yellow cablegram in which Steve wished her, rather stiffly, a merry Christmas.

Obligingly Lottie accompanied Mona to the 63d street house but there was no yellow envelope on the hall table.

"That settles it!" Mona thought despairingly. "He doesn't love me. He would have sent a cable at least. He could easily enough."

Her thoughts were bitter as she prepared for the night. Barry did not love her but she loved him. And it lay in her power to arrange his future. Well, she would do it. Her husband and Barry would both be happy. Only she herself would suffer by the arrangement. Suffer? That might be too strong a word. She might learn to love her husband. She could try.

It was 11 o'clock but she could not sleep. The fire she had ordered earlier while she and Lottie talked, still glowed softly and sent little tongues of shadow across the ceiling.

It had been a happy Christmas but now she was alone. She wondered if her husband had found and liked her gift, an Italian leather case fitted with two photographs of herself. Silly to give one's own picture but what was there to give such a man? A man who had everything!

Probably he was reading now. She knew he was a light sleeper, seldom retired early. He had given her jewels, furs, the happiness of making her family happy. She had given him only her portrait.

Suppose she were to call him now and give him, as a Christmas gift, herself? A gift in all likelihood for his last Christmas on earth?

Her mind was made up. She would make him happy. She would call him now and tell him.

FRIENDSHIPS COME

Our friendships come like flow'rs in Spring.
Something that Nature seems to bring
As natural as Summer roses
That now and then a path discloses;
For friends are not the studied thing
That man supposes.

The friendships that we make to make
It seems are always first to break;
It is the accidental meeting,
Some kindred taste, some kindly greeting,
That makes the hours, for friendship's sake,
Seem worth repeating.

I cannot tell you how we met,
The place, the moment, I forget,
I only know we met forever,
'Twas not that we were wise or clever,
Or rich or great or famous, yet
We shall not sever.

So comes a friendship to our lives,
Unsought, unheralded, arrives,
Like Springtime roses, Summer laughter
Becomes a part of roof and rafter
And mind and heart, and so survives
Forever after.

Or where they are hopelessly hardened and depraved, they acquire a sneering contempt for authority and feel a constant temptation to measure their strength with warden and guard. Both sorts of prisoners need much the same thing; hard discipline and in extreme cases a touch of the rod.

Ten hours of good hard work each day, privileges only when really earned, liberties which embrace only simple humane treatment, with a whipping post in the background, might work a wonderful transformation in conditions in a lot of American prisons. —Detroit Free Press.

AMERICANS ADVANCE

On Aug. 24, 1918, American troops stormed German positions on the Soissons-Dheinms road and advanced for more than half amile. They held their ground despite several furious counter attacks.

British forces smashed through the German lines at Bray, took the town and carried the top of Thiepval ridge. They occupied 10 villages during the operation.

French divisions continued their hammering and made important gains near Crecy.

It was announced that the Dutch steamer Gasconier had been sunk by a submarine off the coast of Belgium on Aug. 21. Six lives were lost. The ship was operated by the Belgian relief commission.

for LOVE or MONEY

(By NEA Service) BY H. W. CORLEY

CHAPTER XXX

MONA stared at her husband. What could she tell him? Should she say that she had thought him cruel, scheming and revengeful toward his nephew? That she had believed he had married her only to torture both Barry and herself?

She reminded herself that, save for hearsay, she was not even certain that young Barry had ever loved her. The admiring glances, the suave flattery might all have been part of a game, the merest flirtation. By accepting that flirtation for more than it was worth she had lost Steve's love (if she had ever had that) as well as young Barry Townsend's.

All this did not alter the fact that she loved Barry. Now, should she decide against ending this marriage, she could bring Barry into his rightful inheritance.

"Suppose," she said quietly, "that I think this over until after the holidays. Then we can make plans—either to remain here as we have been or to start on our honeymoon—"

"A Mediterranean cruise?" Townsend suggested eagerly.

"Would you like that?"

"I?" he paused. "Oh, I've been everywhere. Suit yourself, my dear." He added tenderly, "I hope you'll see things my way. I'm not a bad fellow at heart, really." He was silent again. "The bad blood between my brother and I began in the cradle. Then when he stole the woman I was to marry—"

"She must have been willing," Mona pointed out, "or she wouldn't have gone. After all, that wasn't Barry's fault!"

"No, Barry can hardly be blamed for that."

There was no more said on the subject nor was it raised again during the days of preparation for the holiday festivities.

CHRISTMAS came and went merrily. Mr. Townsend had planned a dinner at Twilands with Mona presiding at the table, flushed and lovely, in gleaming white satin and emeralds.

Christmas morning lay gleaming white about them. Snow had fallen and the day was a veritable "Christmas card holiday" as Mrs. Faxon exclaimed. At three o'clock the car arrived for Mona who was to spend the afternoon with her family. The Morans had declined an invitation to Twilands. Ma's new fortunes had taken material form and the neighbors were dropping in for a bit of celebration. Ma was a-flutter with mince pies in the oven, tissue paper and holly everywhere.

Dad, comfortable and smiling, wearing a new silk robe, was seated in his armchair smoking and chatting with one of the boys who had dropped in for "a bit of a laugh and a joke."

The Donahue twins, fresh in starched rompers, were dragging new fire engines up and down the hall amid shouts of glee.

Kitty, it seemed, was entertaining. Mr. Townsend had sent theater tickets and she had departed with a crowd of friends. The telephone rang and Ma answered it. Alice's voice came over the wire.

"Tell her I'll send Jackson to bring her down," Mona ordered, tossing aside her sweet smelling furs.

"You'll not mind?" her mother asked, cautiously covering the transmitter.

"Of course not. He has to wait anyhow. I want to run over to 63rd street a little later."

Mona left shortly after Alice's arrival. A new cheap blue gown hung pathetically about what once had been, in Lottie's terms, "a knockout figure." All the more pathetic, it seemed, because Alice herself did not realize apparently the change that had come over her. Alice had married for love. Well, she had love—and with it struggle and poverty and a hopeless future.

Wondering if she could ever fall into that almost slovenly mode of living, no matter how little money she had, Mona had taken Sonny from her sister and divested him of his wraps.

"Oh, thanks, Min!" Alice said. "You look grand. And your hands—" She glanced at her own grubby fingers with their broken nails and stained palms. "Mine could look nice, too, but I have so little time—"

"I know," Mona said soothingly. "I've been thinking, Al. Maybe you'd like a vacuum cleaner or something."

"But the rug and the chair you sent for Christmas are plenty, Min," Alice said.

"I'll send you a cleaner anyhow," Mona promised. "They make things so much easier, Ma says."

"They do, of course."

The Callahans' tree was still to be admired. Mrs. Casey appeared and invited them all down for ice cream. Lilly Donahue, coming to collect the twins, set a lemon meringue pie down on the table.

"Oh, what fun, really, it is to be poor!" Mona thought to herself. "What friendliness. What neighborliness. Fancy anyone in 63d street dropping in with a pie!"

A LITTLE later Mona stopped to see Lottie who had attended a Christmas Eve celebration with the latest swain and now lay blinking and looking a trifle weary, surrounded by a mass of wilted flowers.

"He sent over practically the whole shop window," Lottie explained. "Now look at them!" Rising, she began arranging her hair before the mirror.

"Hear from South America?" Lottie queried.

"No. Did you?"

"Yes. Maybe you did too. This just came an hour ago." She produced a yellow cablegram in which Steve wished her, rather stiffly, a merry Christmas.

Obligingly Lottie accompanied Mona to the 63d street house but there was no yellow envelope on the hall table.

"That settles it!" Mona thought despairingly. "He doesn't love me. He would have sent a cable at least. He could easily enough."

Her thoughts were bitter as she prepared for the night. Barry did not love her but she loved him. And it lay in her power to arrange his future. Well, she would do it. Her husband and Barry would both be happy. Only she herself would suffer by the arrangement. Suffer? That might be too strong a word. She might learn to love her husband. She could try.

It was 11 o'clock but she could not sleep. The fire she had ordered earlier while she and Lottie talked, still glowed softly and sent little tongues of shadow across the ceiling.

It had been a happy Christmas but now she was alone. She wondered if her husband had found and liked her gift, an Italian leather case fitted with two photographs of herself. Silly to give one's own picture but what was there to give such a man? A man who had everything!

Probably he was reading now. She knew he was a light sleeper, seldom retired early. He had given her jewels, furs, the happiness of making her family happy. She had given him—only her portrait.

Suppose she were to call him now and give him, as a Christmas gift, herself? A gift in all likelihood for his last Christmas on earth?

Her mind was made up. She would make him happy. She would call him now and tell him.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By Douglas Malloch

FRIENDSHIPS COME

Our friendships come like flow'rs in Spring,
Something that Nature seems to bring
As natural as Summer roses
That now and then a path discloses;
For friends are not the studied thing
That man supposes.

The friendships that we make to make
It seems are always first to break;
It is the accidental meeting,
Some kindred taste, some kindly greeting,
That makes the hours, for friendship's sake,
Seem worth repeating.

I cannot tell you how we met,
The place, the moment, I forget,
I only know we met forever,
'Twas not that we were wise or clever,
Or rich or great or famous, yet
We shall not sever.

So comes a friendship to our lives,
Unsought, unheralded, arrives,
Like Springtime roses, Summer laughter
Becomes a part of roof and rafter
And mind and heart, and so survives
Forever after.

VISITS FAIR

NOTED VISITORS AT STATE FAIR

Welsh and McKeighan Attend Expo; No Speeches Made

Two Republican candidates for governor—George W. Welsh, former city manager of Grand Rapids, and William MacKeighan of Flint—met and exchanged greetings at the Upper Peninsula State Fair, which yesterday was the gathering place of state and county politicians of both Republican and Democratic parties.

No speeches were given by the candidates in front of the grandstand because of the policy of the fair management, which has been not to permit such political activity. The various candidates and other notable personages, however, were introduced from the platform to fairgoers.

Former Governor Fred W. Green, Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald, State Treasurer Howard Lawrence, and Grove Rouse, member of the secretary of state office staff, composed one of the parties that visited the fair yesterday.

Other visitors were: Herbert E. Powell, commissioner of agriculture; W. F. Doyle, Menominee, candidate for state senate; Ray Gillespie, Sault Ste. Marie, candidate for congress.

Mr. Welsh came to Escanaba yesterday morning from Iron Mountain, where he addressed a group of citizens. He left last night for Milwaukee, from where he will take a plane for a hurried trip to Grand Rapids.

Governor Wilber M. Brucker will be a guest of the fair on Thursday, which has been designated as Governor's Day.

A short talk was delivered in front of the grandstand by former Governor Green. He discussed the present economic situation briefly, and predicted that better times were not far distant. He was enthusiastically applauded by his audience.

Gustafson Named

Iron Mountain G. A. Gustafson, contractor, was named president of the Iron Mountain Chamber of Commerce at the annual election of officers held this noon at the Milliman hotel by the board of directors. He succeeds J. A. Payant.

Others elected were Frank Blair, vice-president, succeeding Gustafson, and Leo H. Mortensen, treasurer, succeeding A. B. Bracco. Charles P. Stino was re-engaged as secretary.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN ART

Crafts and Antiques Are From All Parts of Peninsula

With an entry list that is far larger than that of any previous year the Arts and Antiques department of the Upper Peninsula State Fair is again one of the chief centers of interest in the main exhibition building. There are so many entries that in spite of enlarged space there is no room to give the various articles the display that is merited, yet the whole presents a fine appearance.

That the department is accomplishing its purpose in fostering an interest in art and encouraging competition is seen in the constantly rising quality of the work exhibited. From all parts of the peninsula and especially Menominee county there has been an increase in the number of paintings entered. Artists and students of art are showing some very fine work with all mediums represented.

The woodcraft class shows a marked improvement in the class of articles shown with a fine circular staircase with a complete replica of a church vieing for attention. The little church is complete, has hardwood floor, a double row of pews, a carved altar and even a sacristy beside the altar.

In the fine display of inlaid woodwork are some of the most noteworthy pieces of the exhibit. Many of the pieces are entered from Marquette. Inlaid tilt-top tables, checker boards, and jewel caskets all show very good craftsmanship. Boats entered this year are far above any shown before and the model airplanes also are in keeping.

Odd entries that prove of interest to the fishermen among the visitors are a four and one-half foot stuffed muskallonge that weighed 45 pounds when caught and several preserved musky and pickerel heads. There is also a stuffed peacock, lording it over a corner of the exhibit.

Among the interesting antiques a group of pistols and other arms are being shown by a Gladstone family. These weapons were taken from the crew of the infamous Captain Kidd, at the time of their execution in England in the 17th century. Other arms shown are old powder horns, swords, a rebel revolver of Civil War days and a number of pistols.

A number of fine pieces of Antique needle work catch the eyes of the ladies. In the case on a nearby shelf are a number of rare old books and periodicals including a copy of the Youth's Companion from 1860.

Antique silver and copper pieces show a large number of the utensils used by the people of from one to three hundred years ago. A wedding dress that is over eighty years old and in very fine state of preservation is the prize of the apparel group, and the delicate jewelry worn by the ladies of former ages tell us of their tastes.

A local worker in metal is exhibiting two working models, one of a log loader and the other of a stationary engine.

These yearly displays are not only leading the people of this peninsula to make better things but to restore and preserve the old. One of the most common remarks heard by the workers in this department is to the effect that the visitor has something 'just like' some article shown or perhaps older. Always there is an expressed determination to take the antique out of the attic and bring it to the next fair.

Fair officials in charge of this department are: Mr. W. A. Munro, Munising, director in charge; Mrs. Charles Hammar and Mrs. Grace English, superintendents.

DELTA COUNTY TEAMS QUALIFY

Horse Pulling Contests Prove Popular With Fair Visitors

Five Delta county teams were among those surviving the trials in the lightweight horse pulling contest at the state fairgrounds Tuesday morning. There were 11 entries in the event, and seven were chosen as qualifiers after the other four had been eliminated. Eliminations in the heavyweight class will be held this morning, starting at 10 o'clock, with finals Thursday and Friday.

The owners of teams surviving the try-out Tuesday were: Albert Cayer, Osier; Nelson Izzard, Pickford; Fred Knauff, Bark River; George Izzard, Pickford; Napoleon Boudah, Rapid River; Alex Charron, Danforth; August Severinson, Danforth.

Other entries were: Napoleon Hicks, Michigamme; Lewis Burcar, Flat Rock; Nels Johnson, Danforth; Everett Fuller, Stephenson.

The pulling track this year is just inside the race track opposite the grandstand, and yesterday a good sized crowd applauded the teams from the stand as the horses successfully accomplished heavy pulls. The 2,200 pound weights were used in all the trials yesterday. A heavier pull will be handed out for the heavy draft teams, and entries indicate the peninsula record will be broken this year.

Spectators at the contests Tuesday included Fred W. Green, former Michigan governor; Herbert E. Powell, state commissioner of agriculture; Howard Lawrence, state treasurer, and Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state.

ATTENDS FAIR

WORK OF CLUBS IS DISPLAYED

4-H Exhibits at Fair Bigger and Better This Year

More exhibits and of better quality than ever before are on display at the 4-H club booths at the state fairgrounds in the exhibition building. Among the various projects displayed in the exhibition building by the 4-H clubs of the peninsula are gardening, handicraft, needlework, potato growing, clothing, forestry and food study.

Awards have been made in many of the projects while in the cattle barns Thursday is the big day for the 4-H club calf members when prizes to the lower peninsula will be awarded to seven members.

In the potato project, Dickinson county with five exhibits leads the display. Schoolcraft and Menominee counties each have three exhibits. The sweepstake prize in the potato project was awarded to Steve Paul of Stephenson with a set of Irish Cobblers.

Individual potato project winners were: Steve Paul, Stephenson, first; John Tanguay, Cooks, second, and Clara Von Cranenbroeck of Dickinson county, third.

Three excellent displays in the forestry project are the works of North Lake, Norway Lake, and Cooks members. The Norway Lake exhibit was made by Arvid Johnson and the Cooks exhibit, a miniature forest with a miniature log cabin, is the work of John Tanguay.

The clothing exhibits are much more numerous than in any of the preceding years in all of the various divisions. Schoolcraft, Gogebic, Houghton, Baraga, Chippewa counties are represented in the first year work and Gogebic, Houghton and Baraga in the second year project. The third year project is wool dresses and there are 16 of these on display.

A sewing deminstration on the second floor of the exhibit building is presented by Anne and Ethel Michau of Wells. Both of these girls have been very prominent in 4-H club work for several years.

Prizes have been awarded in the handicraft projects. Individual prizes for members in first year handicraft are as follows: Ernest Sharron, Wilson, first; Richard Potvin, Bark River second; Orville Hakes, Bark River, third; Norman Ray, Blaney, fourth; and Junior Windling, Pine Ridge, fifth.

In the second year handicraft the prizes were awarded as follows: Leo Sikarski, Pequaming, first; Robert Tobin, Nahma, second; Francis Trombley, Menominee, third; Clarence Forgetti, Menominee, fourth; and Jack Vezina Cooks, fifth.

Two Menominee clubs, one from Chippewa and one from Delta are represented in the handicraft projects for first year members. The club awards are: Wilson, first; Nadeau, second; Chippewa, third, Nahma, fourth; and Schoolcraft, fifth.

Among the special pieces of handicraft work made by the members in the advanced class include a settee and chair by Mitchell Dervouin, Delta county; card table inlaid with a checker and chess board by Alphonse Houle of Harris, and a bed made by Ed Paraski who is a state champion.

Prizes in advanced handicraft were: Alphonse Houle, Harris first; Mitchell Dervouin Delta second; David Otrovodes, Menominee third; Oscar Larson Delta, fourth; and William Truckey, Nahma, fifth.

In the gardening projects Marquette, Dickinson, Iron, Gogebic, Alger, Delta and Baraga counties are represented. There are more garden exhibits and of much better quality on display this year than at any other previous exposition here. One of the features is the Escanaba 4-H club exhibition arranged by Henry Wylie.

The placings have not yet been made in the garden projects.

Awards have not been made yet in either the canning or food study projects but there are more exhibits of excellent quality than in previous years.

3 NOTED STARS SEEN IN REVUE

Judge's Daughter Is Prima Donna; Radio Team in Show

Two prominent musical comedy and radio stars and the daughter of a former Chicago judge are among principals of the Upper Peninsula State Fair's night show, Edgar I. Schooley's "Winter Garden Revue."

Miss Elizabeth O'Donnell, prima donna, is a Chicago teacher, but has spent several years on the stage in vaudeville and in several musical comedies, spending each summer with outdoor revues. She appeared with the Schooley revue here last summer.

Prefers Teaching

She teaches the fourth grade. "It's hard to say whether I prefer theatrical work to teaching, but if I must choose, I think I should decide on the classroom.

"Work on this side of the footlights, however, is very interesting and I see no reason why a parent should object to his daughter finding a career there."

Her father was the late Patrich H. O'Donnell, a well known criminal lawyer and judge. Despite the fact that Chicago owes her six months' salary for teaching, she plans to return there as a teacher in September.

Feature Cogert and Motto

The names, Cogert and Motto, are well known to radio fans and to lovers of phonograph music. They have recorded many songs and appear regularly over NBC and Columbia hook-ups.

Henry Cogert and Dick Motto have been together for 10 years, starring in vaudeville acts and appearing in several musical comedies. They were stars of Shubert's "Sweetheart Time," and "Gay Paree."

They recently completed a series of two-reel talkies for Pathe and have recorded for Brunswick, Okeh, Columbia and Pathe. Their laughing song, "O' Katherina," broke all records for Okeh, selling 110,000 on the first issue. They receive weekly royalties from their recordings. They will sing this laughing song at the revue Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Serious Offstage

Although both men are noted comedians, offstage they are just as serious as comics are supposed to be. Restless, they are constantly working out new gags and numbers, often with other members of the cast.

Cogert, well known as a song writer, always carries paper with him and is often seated on a trunk or on the ground, working out new lyrics. He has just received word that the Hilton sisters, Siamese twins, have purchased rights to his song, "I Can't Do Without You," which the boys use here.

They write all their own material and several of the numbers used in "Sensations" are theirs.

No Jealousy Here

Cogert is master of ceremonies for the revue. Each man has a lot to say about his partner, but it is hard to get either to speak of his own work or career. To Cogert, Motto is one of the greatest men in the business, while Motto feels that Cogert is unequalled.

Stockmen From Various Parts of State Display Flocks

Again this year, sheep men from all over the state have cooperated with fair officials to make the sheep exhibit at the fifth annual Upper Peninsula State Fair one of the largest and finest ever seen in the upper peninsula.

In total of entries the exhibit is about the same, numbering about 85 animals, but the quality of the entries is improving year by year, and W. W. Blake Arkcoll, Marquette, director in charge, yesterday praised the exhibitors for the manner in which they had prepared their entries.

Among the entries that are attracting attention are those of Wheaton Bros., of Charlotte, Mich., who are exhibiting Hampshires again. Last year the Wheatons were the exhibitors of the grand champion Hampshire ram. Five breeds are being shown by Gould of Beachwood and Blanchard and Brown from near Beachwood are showing a fine flock of Cheviots.

Two exhibitors from Chippewa county are among those competing for the honors and prize money in this display. They are W. E. Dickinson, who has on display a fine looking bunch of ten Oxford Downs, and Fred Shurmen who is showing a group of five Oxford Downs.

VISITS FAIR

NOTED VISITORS AT STATE FAIR

Welsh and McKeighan Attend Expo; No Speeches Made

Two Republican candidates for governor—George W. Welsh, former city manager of Grand Rapids, and William MacKeighan of Flint—met and exchanged greetings at the Upper Peninsula State Fair, which yesterday was the gathering place of state and county politicians of both Republican and Democratic parties.

No speeches were given by the candidates in front of the grandstand because of the policy of the fair management, which has been not to permit such political activity. The various candidates and other notable personages, however, were introduced from the platform to fairgoers.

Former Governor Fred W. Green, Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald, State Treasurer Howard Lawrence, and Grove Rouse, member of the secretary of state office staff, composed one of the parties that visited the fair yesterday.

Other visitors were: Herbert E. Powell, commissioner of agriculture; W. F. Doyle, Menominee, candidate for state senate; Ray Gillespie, Sault Ste. Marie, candidate for congress.

Mr. Welsh came to Escanaba yesterday morning from Iron Mountain, where he addressed a group of citizens. He left last night for Milwaukee, from where he will take a plane for a hurried trip to Grand Rapids.

Governor Wilber M. Brucker will be a guest of the fair on Thursday, which has been designated as Governor's Day.

A short talk was delivered in front of the grandstand by former Governor Green. He discussed the present economic situation briefly, and predicted that better times were not far distant. He was enthusiastically applauded by his audience.

Gustafson Named

Iron Mountain—G. A. Gustafson, contractor, was named president of the Iron Mountain Chamber of Commerce at the annual election of officers held this noon at the Milliman hotel by the board of directors. He succeeds J. A. Payant.

Others elected were Frank Blair, vice-president, succeeding Gustafson, and Leo H. Mortensen, treasurer, succeeding A. B. Bracco. Charles P. Stine was re-engaged as secretary.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN ART

Crafts and Antiques Are From All Parts of Peninsula

With an entry list that is far larger than that of any previous year the Arts and Antiques department of the Upper Peninsula State Fair is again one of the chief centers of interest in the main exhibition building. There are so many entries that in spite of enlarged space there is no room to give the various articles the display that is merited, yet the whole presents a fine appearance.

That the department is accomplishing its purpose in fostering an interest in art and encouraging competition is seen in the constantly rising quality of the work exhibited. From all parts of the peninsula and especially Menominee county there has been an increase in the number of paintings entered. Artists and students of art are showing some very fine work with all mediums represented.

The woodcraft class shows a marked improvement in the class of articles shown with a fine circular staircase with a complete replica of a church vieing for attention. The little church is complete, has hardwood floor, a double row of pews, a carved altar and even a sacristy beside the altar.

In the fine display of inlaid woodwork are some of the most noteworthy pieces of the exhibit. Many of the pieces are entered from Marquette. Inlaid tilt-top tables, checker boards, and jewel caskets all show very good craftsmanship. Boats entered this year are far above any shown before and the model airplanes also are in keeping.

Odd entries that prove of interest to the fishermen among the visitors are a four and one-half foot stuffed muskallonge that weighed 45 pounds when caught and several preserved musky and pickerel heads. There is also a stuffed peacock, lording it over a corner of the exhibit.

Among the interesting antiques a group of pistols and other arms are being shown by a Gladstone family. These weapons were taken from the crew of the infamous Captain Kidd, at the time of their execution in England in the 17th century. Other arms shown are old powder horns, swords, a rebel revolver of Civil War days and a number of pistols.

A number of fine pieces of Antique needle work catch the eyes of the ladies. In the case on a nearby shelf are a number of rare old books and periodicals including a copy of the Youth's Companion from 1860.

Antique silver and copper pieces show a large number of the utensils used by the people of from one to three hundred years ago. A wedding dress that is over eighty years old and in very fine state of preservation is the prize of the apparel group, and the delicate jewelry worn by the ladies of former ages tell us of their tastes.

A local worker in metal is exhibiting two working models, one of a log loader and the other of a stationary engine.

These yearly displays are not only leading the people of this peninsula to make better things but to restore and preserve the old. One of the most common remarks heard by the workers in this department is to the effect that the visitor has something 'just like' some article shown or perhaps older. Always there is an expressed determination to take the antique out of the attic and bring it to the next fair.

Fair officials in charge of this department are: Mr. W. A. Munro, Munising, director in charge; Mrs. Charles Hammar and Mrs. Grace English, superintendents.

DELTA COUNTY TEAMS QUALIFY

Horse Pulling Contests Prove Popular With Fair Visitors

Five Delta county teams were among those surviving the trials in the lightweight horse pulling contest at the state fairgrounds Tuesday morning. There were 11 entries in the event, and seven were chosen as qualifiers after the other four had been eliminated. Eliminations in the heavyweight class will be held this morning, starting at 10 o'clock, with finals Thursday and Friday.

The owners of teams surviving the try-out Tuesday were: Albert Cayer, Osier; Nelson Izzard, Pickford; Fred Knauff, Bark River; George Izzard, Pickford; Napoleon Boudah, Rapid River; Alex Charron, Danforth; August Severinson, Danforth.

Other entries were: Napoleon Hicks, Michigamme; Lewis Burcar, Flat Rock; Nels Johnson, Danforth; Everett Fuller, Stephenson.

The pulling track this year is just inside the race track opposite the grandstand, and yesterday a good sized crowd applauded the teams from the stand as the horses successfully accomplished heavy pulls. The 2,200 pound weights were used in all the trials yesterday. A heavier pull will be handed out for the heavy draft teams, and entries indicate the peninsula record will be broken this year.

Spectators at the contests Tuesday included Fred W. Green, former Michigan governor; Herbert E. Powell, state commissioner of agriculture; Howard Lawrence, state treasurer, and Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state.

ATTENDS FAIR

WORK OF CLUBS IS DISPLAYED

4-H Exhibits at Fair Bigger and Better This Year

More exhibits and of better quality than ever before are on display at the 4-H club booths at the state fairgrounds in the exhibition building. Among the various projects displayed in the exhibition building by the 4-H clubs of the peninsula are gardening, handicraft, needlework, potato growing, clothing, forestry and food study.

Awards have been made in many of the projects while in the cattle barns Thursday is the big day for the 4-H club calf members when prizes to the lower peninsula will be awarded to seven members.

In the potato project, Dickinson county with five exhibits leads the display. Schoolcraft and Menominee counties each have three exhibits. The sweepstake prize in the potato project was awarded to Steve Paul of Stephenson with a set of Irish Cobblers.

Individual potato project winners were: Steve Paul, Stephenson, first; John Tanguay, Cooks, second; and Clara Von Cranenbroeck of Dickinson county, third.

Three excellent displays in the forestry project are the works of North Lake, Norway Lake, and Cooks members. The Norway Lake exhibit was made by Arvid Johnson and the Cooks exhibit, a miniature forest with a miniature log cabin, is the work of John Tanguay.

The clothing exhibits are much more numerous than in any of the preceding years in all of the various divisions. Schoolcraft, Gogebic, Houghton, Baraga, Chippewa counties are represented in the first year work and Gogebic, Houghton and Baraga in the second year project. The third year project is wool dresses and there are 16 of these on display.

A sewing deminstration on the second floor of the exhibit building is presented by Anne and Ethel Michau of Wells. Both of these girls have been very prominent in 4-H club work for several years.

Prizes have been awarded in the handicraft projects. Individual prizes for members in first year handicraft are as follows: Ernest Sharron, Wilson, first; Richard Potvin, Bark River, second; Orville Hakes, Bark River, third; Norman Ray, Blaney, fourth; and Junior Windling, Pine Ridge, fifth.

In the second year handicraft the prizes were awarded as follows: Leo Sikarski, Pequaming, first; Robert Tobin, Nahma, second; Francis Trombley, Menominee, third; Clarence Forgetti, Menominee, fourth; and Jack Vezina, Cooks, fifth.

Two Menominee clubs, one from Chippewa and one from Delta are represented in the handicraft projects for first year members. The club awards are: Wilson, first; Nadeau, second; Chippewa, third; Nahma, fourth; and Schoolcraft, fifth.

Among the special pieces of handicraft work made by the members in the advanced class include a settee and chair by Mitchell Derouin, Delta county; card table inlaid with a checker and chess board by Alphonse Houle of Harris, and a bed made by Ed Paraski who is a state champion.

Prizes in advanced handicraft were: Alphonse Houle, Harris, first; Mitchell Derouin Delta second; David Otrovodes, Menominee, third; Oscar Larson Delta, fourth; and William Truckey, Nahma, fifth.

In the gardening projects Marquette, Dickinson, Iron, Gogebic, Alger, Delta and Baraga counties are represented. There are more garden exhibits and of much better quality on display this year than at any other previous exposition here. One of the features is the Escanaba 4-H club exhibition arranged by Henry Wylie.

The placings have not yet been made in the garden projects.

Awards have not been made yet in either the canning or food study projects but there are more exhibits of excellent quality than in previous years.

3 NOTED STARS SEEN IN REVUE

Judge's Daughter Is Prima Donna; Radio Team in Show

Two prominent musical comedy and radio stars and the daughter of a former Chicago judge are among principals of the Upper Peninsula State Fair's night show, Edgar I. Schooley's "Winter Garden Revue."

Miss Elizabeth O'Donnell, prima donna, is a Chicago teacher, but has spent severol years on the stage in vaudeville and in several musical comedies, spending each summer with outdoor revues. She appeared with the Schooley revue here last summer.

Prefers Teaching

She teaches the fourth grade. "It's hard to say whether I prefer theatrical work to teaching, but if I must choose, I think I should decide on the classroom.

"Work on this side of the footlights, however, is very interesting and I see no reason why a parent should object to his daughter finding a career there."

Her father was the late Patrich H. O'Donnell, a well known criminal lawyer and judge. Despite the fact that Chicago owes her six months' salary for teaching, she plans to return there as a teacher in September.

Feature Cogert and Motto

The names, Cogert and Motto, are well known to radio fans and to lovers of phonograph music. They have recorded many songs and appear regularly over NBC and Columbia hook-ups.

Henry Cogert and Dick Motto have been together for 10 years, starring in vaudeville acts and appearing in several musical comedies. They were stars of Shubert's "Sweetheart Time," and "Gay Paree."

They recently completed a series of two-reel talkies for Pathe and have recorded for Brunswick, Okeh, Columbia and Pathe. Their laughing song, "O! Katherina," broke all records for Okeh, selling 110,000 on the first issue. They receive weekly royalties from their recordings. They will sing this laughing song at the revue Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Serious Offstage

Although both men are noted comedians, offstage they are just as serious as comics are supposed to be. Restless, they are constantly working out new gags and numbers, often with other members of the cast.

Cogert, well known as a song writer, always carries paper with him and is often seated on a trunk or on the ground, working out new lyrics. He has just received word that the Hilton sisters, Siamese twins, have purchased rights to his song, "I Can't Do Without You," which the boys use here.

They write all their own material and several of the numbers used in "Sensations" are theirs.

No Jealousy Here

Cogert is master of ceremonies for the revue. Each man has a lot to say about his partner, but it is hard to get either to speak of his own work or career. To Cogert, Motto is one of the greatest men in the business, while Motto feels that Cogert is unequalled.

This is one of the reasons they have remained together, reaching the top of the ladder, say their co-workers. The other reasons are apparent when you see them working together at the fair, giving their imitations of various stage stars and demonstrating their impression of a two-man jazz band.

Quilts and Rugs Feature Display Of Needlework

The most beautiful display of quilts ever seen at the Upper Peninsula State Fair and a display of rugs, equally beautiful, are featuring the needlework exhibit which is attracting the interest of hundreds of visitors at the fair every afternoon and evening.

The exhibit is the largest in the history of the fair, Mrs. Dan Dewey superintendent in charge said Tuesday, and even with additional space given the department, it is impossible to fully display all entries.

There are over one hundred patchwork quilts, beautiful designs worked out in tiny painstaking stitches, and finished with lovely quilting. The Lone Star pattern this year is a favorite, as well as the flower garden and the wedding ring design. One spread, of dainty pastel shade, is made of 2400 tiny puffed blocks. The Sunbonnet baby pattern is also a favorite with the quilt makers with at least four of these entered.

The rugs are another exhibit of beautiful handwork of exquisite coloring and design. There are lovely hooked rugs of blended coloring, crocheted rugs, and other braided and woven, all of them well made.

The display includes over 100 pairs of pillow cases with hand work, cut work of embroidery, to say nothing of clothing, and hand knit articles of al kinds.

Judging of the entries has been started, Miss Myrtle Richards in charge.

Mrs. Matt Petersen and Mrs. W. J. McGraw are assistant superintendents working with Mrs. Dewey Alvin L. Rummel of Ironwood is director in charge of the department.

Complete Meal In Canned Goods Exhibit at Fair

Everything to feed a family from the first course through dessert is contained in the shining glass jars which arranged in orderly rows on pyramided display racks, form the canned goods section of the domestic economics department at the Upper Peninsula State Fair.

The display is the largest since the state fair came into being and its entries, Mrs. Jacob Ammel who is superintendent of the section, declared Tuesday that the exhibit far surpasses in excellence those of previous years.

Fruits and vegetables this year take the preference over pickles and relishes, housewives evidently looking to the food value of their canned goods, rather than the tasty extras. The display of canned raspberries is remarkably fine, and the wild fruit this year is almost the size of the domestic fruit, in fact, the two are so nearly alike that it is hard to distinguish.

Other fruits include blueberries, rhubarb, apples, gooseberries, currants, peaches, pears and plums, and there are a number of entries of bottled fruit juices. In the vegetable display are some wonderful looking canned goods corn on the cob, whole carrots, and sliced corn and cubed carrots as well, rich red beets, cauliflower, green peas, beans, greens of all kinds, entries in which are increasing, as well as squash and pumpkin. There are honey and maple syrup entries, and even canned mushrooms and canned eggs. Meats are canned chicken, pork and beef, and pork and beans. The pickle group which is much smaller this year, includes a fine variety and jells, jams and conserves are particularly fine.

Judging of the canned goods which is in charge of Miss Cecelia Pepin, who specialized in home economics at Northern State Teachers' college, Marquette, started Tuesday afternoon.

Color Perception Found Sharper In Women Than Men

Cedar Rapids, Iowa (AP) One can easily distinguish an orange from a red apple, but to determine where red leaves off and orange begins on a whirling spectrometer is an entirely different matter.

Dr. LeRoy D. Weld, head of the Coe college physics department, has conducted experiments for several years in spectrum color discrimination and observes that women generally are inclined to be more accurate than men in distinguishing between colors.

Yet, among 38 persons he recently tested the two smallest deviations from the average were by men.

Dr. Weld is trying to standardize the five wave-length boundaries between the six spectrum colors: red, orange, yellow, green, blue and purple for the use of scientists in their laboratory experiments.

Color Important Note In Styles; New Hues Appear

BY BARBARA BEAUFORT
(Associated Press Fashion Editor)

Paris (AP) Color is the most important note in the style world these days. New hues have appeared on fashion's color card, and two-toned costumes have replaced the vogue for one color outfits.

The matching ensemble idea (frock, coat and accessories all one hue) no longer dominates the scene. Today many of the costumes in which smart women appear at the races and at fashionable restaurants combine two colors, at least one of them brilliant.

Reds (cerise, geranium and wine) and greens (chartreuse, leaf and emerald) are very much in vogue.

Such unusual combination as chocolate brown and forget-me-not blue, wine red and dusty pink, green and orange, beige and chalky orange and black and American beauty red are seen where smart Parisians gather.

One of the smartest costumes seen during the Grand Racing week, which launches many of the coming season's styles, was a frock of knitted black silk topped with a scarf of American beauty red and worn with a velvet toque and knitted silk gloves of the same bright color.

One smart Parisian combined a wool frock of dull green with a bright orange scarf and gloves and an openwork turban of twisted green and orange wool strands.

Another wore a frock of wine-colored crepe with a scarf of dusty pink crepe, wine colored gloves, hose and slippers and a velvet toque of the same hue trimmed with a bow of dusty pink velvet.

A SWEET RECIPE

A sugar recipe that is as delicious as it is simple requires a five-cent bar of unsweetened chocolate, which usually measures four squares or one half pound, one box of powdered sugar one tablespoon of butter yolk of one egg and enough condensed milk to moisten the mixture. Melt the chocolate in a cup by holding it over a pan of hot water before you mix it in with the other things. Mold the fudge until it is thick and firm. If you want to use this principle in making a cake icing, add enough milk so the mixture will be soft enough to spread on a cake.

Novel Touches in Accessories Liven Summer's Clothing

By BARBARA BEAUFORT
(Associated Press Fashion Editor)

Paris, (AP) Accessories for summer clothes are taking on new angles.

Belts of straw, shoes of printed silk, cotton gloves and flower dog collars are all used to make costume incidentals as novel as frocks themselves are plain.

Belts and Bags in Ensembles

Belt and bag ensembles are one of the favorite novelties. A bag of white straw trimmed with appliqued bands of black patent leather has an accompanying white straw belt clasped with a black gunmetal button to be worn with a black crepe frock and a white straw hat.

Another belt and bag ensemble is made of green horsehair trimmed with white celluloid and worn with a green and white print frock.

Gloves are short, plain and made of a wider range of fabrics than ever before. Linen gloves with suede palms and fingers, white pique gauntlets with voile hands, crocheted cotton and heavy knitted silk slip-ons are all newer notes in the glove category than kid or suede models.

Flowers Used Interestingly

Flowers are used in a dozen different ways. A dog collar of white chrysanthemums finishes a simple black crepe frock, a cravat of nasturtiums is worn with a brown crepe, while boutonnieres of carved ivory, oilcloth, reptile skin and starched pique are seen on the broad lapels of wool tailleurs.

The flower trim is equally smart on formal clothes. A black chiffon dinner dress has two stark white lilies nestling on the shoulder, the decolletage of a cream crepe is rimmed with blue cornflowers and a black crepe afternoon gown is caught with a cluster of six pink roses at the base of the vee neckline.

Feather Necklets Return To Vogue

Paris (AP)—Ostrich feather necklets are the next thing in the feathered mode. Sometimes of one color and sometimes of two, they are worn close about the throat with the uncurled fronds falling over the corsage of the evening frock.

The Comtess de Ginesty wears one of these new necklets in red and black, and Princess Troubetskoy wears a white one with a dance frock of white marocain.

Tempting Foods In Fine Display Of Baked Goods

Candies, cakes, cookies and pies that make you hungry just to look at them, and breads and rolls of all kinds, feature the baked goods section of the Upper Peninsula State Fair's home economics department.

The candies this year lead in the number of entries with the pies a close second. There is every variety of home-made candy, tempting to see and delicious to taste, and there is every kind of pie with appetizing fillings and golden flaky crusts.

Cakes are of a wide variety, too with the light angel foods and sunshine cakes, carefully iced, attracting much attention, and cookies also form an attractive part of the display.

The center of interest in the bread and roll display is a large loaf of bread, enough to feed a family of eight. Grouped around this are delicious breads of all kinds and tasty rolls of a wide variety.

Judging of the exhibits in this section was completed Tuesday afternoon by Miss Cecilia Pepin, home economics expert, and the prize winners will be announced later in the week.

Mrs. Oscar Kraus is superintendent of this section and Mrs. J. O. Groos is assistant superintendent.

Quilts and Rugs Feature Display Of Needlework

The most beautiful display of quilts ever seen at the Upper Peninsula State Fair and a display of rugs, equally beautiful, are featuring the needlework exhibit which is attracting the interest of hundreds of visitors at the fair every afternoon and evening.

The exhibit is the largest in the history of the fair, Mrs. Dan Dewey, superintendent in charge, said Tuesday, and even with additional space given the department, it is impossible to fully display all entries.

There are over one hundred patchwork quilts, beautiful designs worked out in tiny painstaking stitches, and finished with lovely quilting. The Lone Star pattern this year is a favorite, as well as the flower garden and the wedding ring design. One spread, of dainty pastel shade, is made of 2400 tiny puffed blocks. The Sunbonnet baby pattern is also a favorite with the quilt makers with at least four of these entered.

The rugs are another exhibit of beautiful handwork of exquisite coloring and design. There are lovely hooked rugs of blended coloring, crocheted rugs, and other braided and woven, all of them well made.

The display includes over 100 pairs of pillow cases with hand work, cut work of embroidery, to say nothing of clothing, and hand knit articles of al kinds.

Judging of the entries has been started, Miss Myrtle Richards in charge.

Mrs. Matt Petersen and Mrs. W. J. McGraw are assistant superintendents working with Mrs. Dewey. Alvin L. Rummel of Ironwood is director in charge of the department.

Births

Announcement has been received here of the birth of a son, on Monday, August 22, to Mr. and Mrs. George Howard of Newark, N. J. Mother and baby are both doing fine. The son has been named Robert Michael. Mrs. Howard is the former Bernice Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Mitchell, 624 South Ninth street.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rouse, 929 Stephenson avenue. Both mother and baby are reported as doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bredahl of Gladstone are the parents of a daughter, born Monday at the St. Francis hospital.

A son was born Sunday at St. Francis hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Benny Petraites of Cornell.

LIGHT UTILITY PROFITS LESS

Earnings Go Down in Spite of Lowered Operating Costs

Increased costs of electric energy and decreased consumption for the first four months of the current year are reflected in a marked falling off of net profits, as compared with the same period a year ago, according to the electric utility report filed with the City Commission Monday night by City Manager F. R. Buechner. The net profit for this year is $684.57, while last year the amount was $1,122.83.

Except for the fact that distribution and utilization costs have been cut materially during the present year, the profits would have been entirely wiped out and possibly a loss would have been incurred, the report shows.

For the current year, sales of electric energy have totalled $14,574.49, while a year ago the sales amounted to $15,958.66. In spite of the decreased sales, however, the cost of energy rose from $7,104.20 to $7,272.60. To offset these decreases in revenues and increases in energy costs, distribution, utilization and administration cost totals were reduced from $7,731.63, in 1931, to $6,617.32 in 1932.

Every item of cost, with the exception of maintenance of street lamps and commercial administration was cut. The recent storm which destroyed numerous street lights brought up the costs of street lamp maintenance.

Current Purchased in 1931, $7,104.20; in 1932, $7,272.60.

Distribution:

Superintendence, 1931, $764; 1932, $708.80.

Maintenance Lines, 1931, $1,023.67; 1932, $425.34.

Maintenance Service, 1931, $517.11; 1932, $309.49.

Transformers - meters, 1931, $199.36; 1932, $104.16.

Miscellaneous Supplies, 1931, $463.53; 1932, $423.82.

Depreciation, 1931, $972.48; 1932, $1000.72.

Maintenance Street Lamps, 1931, $267.40; 1932, $321.07.

Administration

Commercial, 1931, $331.45; 1932, $345.23.

General, 1931, $1480.00, 1932, $1333.36.

Giant Brook Trout Caught in the Days

The grand daddy of them all has been caught.

Saturday evening Victor Bergstrom, 901 Minnesota Avenue, hooked and landed a brook trout that weighed 6½ pounds and measured 22 inches in length. It was caught on an angle worm in the Days River not more than 4 miles from Gladstone.

The trout was a beautiful specimen, its markings being perfect. The skin was much darker than the smaller trout and the meat was a bright pink.

Bergstrom almost lost the big boy, he says. After hooking him he played the fish slowly into shallow water. The fish appeared thoroughly exhausted from the struggle and Bergstrom proceeded to haul him in. With a final lurch the trout was free—but just for a moment. When Bergsrom saw he was off the hook, he forgot all about the niceties and pounced on the fish, thus saving himself the trouble of trying to make people believe he really had hooked a big one that got away.

Pertinent Comment

The suggestions for a comprehensive program of sports that would afford recreation throughout the year, made Monday by Dr. Otto S. Hult, should be given more than passing consideration. To merely accept the suggestions as good, without making any effort to carry them out, will result in no benefit to the community.

But, as is often the case, unless the individuals who are already carrying on a large part of the civic activity can be induced to add to their burden, the study given by Dr. Hult to the question of a constructive recreational program will have been wasted effort.

To analogize, the willing horse must do most of the work, whether it is pulling the plow or pushing forward a constructive civic program. The lazy horses lie back in the tugs when work is to be done, but are always ready to grab the lump of sugar that may be forthcoming if the work is successfully carried out.

Fortunately this city has a large number of willing horses who are giving their energy to the advancement of the community, and, in spite of the present conditions which have driven them to close application of their own businesses, never fail to respond to the call for more and more effort.

But, willing horses are being over-worked, while their lazy compatriots waste energy that might be constructively applied. If all would leap forward to the touch of the whip of community need a thousand times more could be accomplished and public improvements, both sociological and material, would require but half the effort.

What the community needs more than ever today, is people who will work like willing horses, be patient and gentle like willing horses, and use just common horse sense and lots of it.

Appoint Members Of Election Boards

Election boards to supervise the primary election on Sept. 13 were named by the City Commission Monday night. The number on each board was reduced from five to four and the salary was fixed at $6.00 per day for each member. At the primary, two years ago, the pay was $7.00.

The adoption of the new permanent registration system in Gladstone has made possible the reduction in the number of board members it was explained by City Manager F. R. Buechner. It was suggested by the City Manager that only one poll clerk and three inspectors be appointed. The poll clerk will also be chairman of the board.

A school of instruction will be held for the election board members prior to the primary. Mr. Buechner states. At that time the new election procedure will be explained and the changes in the election laws pointed out.

The names of election board members were announced as follows:

First Precinct: Erick M. Johnson, poll clerk and chairman, Albert Smith, Claus Anderson and George Olson, inspectors.

Third Precinct: D. J. Calder, poll clerk and chairman, Wilford Ambeau, Mrs. John Strand and Harold Peterson inspectors.

BAN SIDEWALK DISPLAYS HERE

Commission Introduces Ordinance to Stop Obstruction of Walks

Merchandise displays on the sidewalks of Gladstone will be prohibited in the future, under the provisions of an ordinance introduced at the Monday night session of the City Commission. The new regulation, which is an amendment to Ordinance No. 125, which relates to "deposit and removal of substances from public thoroughfare and obstruction of streets and sidewalks" provides "That it shall be unlawful and a violation of this ordinance for any person, firm or corporation to obstruct or incumber any sidewalk, street, alley or public land or approach thereto or any other public ground within the city of Gladstone, with any boxes, merchandise, lumber, wood, coal or vehicles maintained thereon."

Under Ordinance No. 125 the city had exempted a three foot strip on the sidewalk, adjacent to the building, on which merchants were permitted to display their wares.

According to members of the City Commission, the purpose of the new law is to remove unsightly displays and obstructions from the walks within the business district.

Legal parking of vehicles is exempt from the provisions of the ordinance and placing of articles on the walks is not prohibited when they are being transferred to or from a business building.

The odinance also provides that the City Manager may grant temporary permits to utilize a portion of any street, alley or sidewalk, for the construction or repair of buildings.

Review Assessment Roll September 12

A review of the assessment roll and a hearing for the benefit of property owners within the assessment district affected by the construction of the Montana avenue sewer between 11th and 14th streets, will be held Monday evening, Sept. 12, under the provisions of a resolution adopted Monday night by the Commission.

Forty lots are assessed for the construction costs of the sewer all but one being required to pay $50.54. In the case of L. E. Folsom, owner of a lot cornering on 11th and Montana, a charge of only $29.71 will be made. The lesser assessment on this lot is due to the fact that connection is made on the 11th avenue sewer and no lateral need be constructed.

The assessment for this sewer job is the lowest in the recent history of Gladstone.

LIGHT UTILITY PROFITS LESS

Earnings Go Down in Spite of Lowered Operating Costs

Increased costs of electric energy and decreased consumption for the first four months of the current year are reflected in a marked falling off of net profits, as compared with the same period a year ago, according to the electric utility report filed with the City Commission Monday night by City Manager F. R. Buechner. The net profit for this year is $684.57, while last year the amount was $1,122.83.

Except for the fact that distribution and utilization costs have been cut materially during the present year, the profits would have been entirely wiped out and possibly a loss would have been incurred, the report shows.

For the current year, sales of electric energy have totalled $14,574.49, while a year ago the sales amounted to $15,958.66. In spite of the decreased sales, however, the cost of energy rose from $7,104.20 to $7,272.60. To offset these decreases in revenues and increases in energy costs, distribution, utilization and administration cost totals were reduced from $7,731.63, in 1931, to $6,617.32 in 1932.

Every item of cost, with the exception of maintenance of street lamps and commercial administration was cut. The recent storm which destroyed numerous street lights brought up the costs of street lamp maintenance.

The following table of comparative costs, taken from the city records, shows the reductions that have been made in order to keep the plant on a paying basis:

Current Purchased in 1931, $7,104.20; in 1932, $7,272.60.

Distribution:

Superintendence, 1931, $764; 1932, $708.80.

Maintenance Lines, 1931, $1,023.67; 1932, $425.34.

Maintenance Service, 1931, $517.11; 1932, 309.49.

Transformers - meters, 1931, $199.36; 1932, $104.16.

Miscellaneous Supplies, 1931, $463.53; 1932, $423.82.

Depreciation, 1931, $972.48; 1932, $1060.72.

Maintenance Street Lamps, 1931, $267.40; 1932, $321.07.

Administration:

Commercial, 1931, $331.45; 1932, $345.23.

General, 1931, $1480.00; 1932, $1333.36.

Giant Brook Trout Caught in the Days

The grand daddy of them all has been caught.

Saturday evening Victor Bergstrom, 901 Minnesota Avenue, hooked and landed a brook trout that weighed 6½ pounds and measured 22 inches in length. It was caught on an angle worm in the Days River not more than 4 miles from Gladstone.

The trout was a beautiful specimen, its markings being perfect. The skin was much darker than the smaller trout and the meat was a bright pink.

Bergstrom almost lost the big boy, he says. After hooking him he played the fish slowly into shallow water. The fish appeared thoroughly exhausted from the struggle and Bergstrom proceeded to haul him in. With a final lurch the trout was free—but just for a moment. When Bergstrom saw he was off the hook, he forgot all about the niceties and pounced on the fish, thus saving himself the trouble of trying to make people believe he really had hooked a big one that got away.

Pertinent Comment

The suggestions for a comprehensive program of sports that would afford recreation throughout the year, made Monday by Dr. Otto S. Hult, should be given more than passing consideration. To merely accept the suggestions as good, without making any effort to carry them out, will result in no benefit to the community.

But, as is often the case, unless the individuals who are already carrying on a large part of the civic activity can be induced to add to their burden, the study given by Dr. Hult to the question of a constructive recreational program will have been wasted effort.

To analogize, the willing horse must do most of the work, whether it is pulling the plow or pushing forward a constructive civic program. The lazy horses lie back in the tugs when work is to be done, but are always ready to grab the lump of sugar that may be forthcoming if the work is successfully carried out.

Fortunately this city has a large number of willing horses who are giving their energy to the advancement of the community, and, in spite of the present conditions which have driven them to close application of their own businesses, never fail to respond to the call for more and more effort.

But, willing horses are being over-worked, while their lazy compatriots waste energy that might be constructively applied. If all would leap forward to the touch of the whip of community need a thousand times more could be accomplished and public improvements, both sociological and material, would require but half the effort.

What the community needs more than ever today, is people who will work like willing horses, be patient and gentle like willing horses, and use just common horse sense and lots of it.

Appoint Members Of Election Boards

Election boards to supervise the primary election on Sept. 13 were named by the City Commission Monday night. The number on each board was reduced from five to four and the salary was fixed at $6.00 per day for each member. At the primary, two years ago, the pay was $7.00.

The adoption of the new permanent registration system in Gladstone has made possible the reduction in the number of board members it was explained by City Manager F. R. Buechner. It was suggested by the City Manager that only one poll clerk and three inspectors be appointed. The poll clerk will also be chairman of the board.

A school of instruction will be held for the election board members prior to the primary, Mr. Buechner states. At that time the new election procedure will be explained and the changes in the election laws pointed out.

The names of election board members were announced as follows:

First Precinct: Erick M. Johnson, poll clerk and chairman; Albert Smith, Claus Anderson and George Olson, inspectors.

Third Precinct: D. J. Calder, poll clerk and chairman; Wilford Ambeau, Mrs. John Strand and Harold Peterson inspectors.

BAN SIDEWALK DISPLAYS HERE

Commission Introduces Ordinance to Stop Obstruction of Walks

Merchandise displays on the sidewalks of Gladstone will be prohibited in the future, under the provisions of an ordinance introduced at the Monday night session of the City Commission. The new regulation, which is an amendment to Ordinance No. 125, which relates to "deposit and removal of substances from public thoroughfare and obstruction of streets and sidewalks" provides "That it shall be unlawful and a violation of this ordinance for any person, firm or corporation to obstruct or incumber any sidewalk, street, alley or public land or approach thereto or any other public ground within the city of Gladstone, with any boxes, merchandise, lumber, wood, coal or vehicles maintained thereon."

Under Ordinance No. 125 the city had exempted a three foot strip on the sidewalk, adjacent to the building, on which merchants were permitted to display their wares.

According to members of the City Commission, the purpose of the new law is to remove unsightly displays and obstructions from the walks within the business district.

Legal parking of vehicles is exempt from the provisions of the ordinance and placing of articles on the walks is not prohibited when they are being transferred to or from a business building.

The ordinance also provides that the City Manager may grant temporary permits to utilize a portion of any street, alley or sidewalk, for the construction or repair of buildings.

Review Assessment Roll September 12

A review of the assessment roll and a hearing for the benefit of property owners within the assessment district affected by the construction of the Montana avenue sewer between 11th and 14th streets, will be held Monday evening, Sept. 12, under the provisions of a resolution adopted Monday night by the Commission.

Forty lots are assessed for the construction costs of the sewer all but one being required to pay $50.54. In the case of L. E. Folsom, owner of a lot cornering on 11th and Montana, a charge of only $29.71 will be made. The lesser assessment on this lot is due to the fact that connection is made on the 11th avenue sewer and no lateral need be constructed.

The assessment for this sewer job is the lowest in the recent history of Gladstone.

Issue Premium List Of Schoolcraft Fair

The Twenty-First Annual Schoolcraft county fair will be held this year at the fair grounds on Thursday and Friday, September 15 and 16. Wednesday, September 14, will be entry day. Premium lists are being mailed this week.

The fair, which of necessity will not be as large as some held in former years, will nevertheless continue an unbroken span of 21 consecutive annual showings. Fair officials urge the cooperation of both farmers and business men in making this year's fair a fine success and point out that the scope of a fair does not necessarily determine its success.

BRIEFLY TOLD

Oddfellows Meeting—The local Odd Fellows lodge will hold a meeting this evening at eight o'clock in the lodge rooms. Every member is urged to attend as important business matters will be discussed.

Club Meets—The Past Noble Grands of the Rebekah lodge will meet this evening at the home of Mrs. Fred Burley, Manistique Heights, for their regular meeting. Every member is requested to be present.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Aug. 23, (AP) The bull campaign in stocks again reached violent proportions today, attracting a large volume of profit taking in the afternoon while final prices were under the day's best, there were numerous net gains of 1 to 3 points.

The turnover reached 4,570,295 shares, the largest, with the exception of the 5,500,000-share turnover of Aug. 8, since the autumn of 1930. The bull drive shifted from the rails to utilities and industrials, and several issues were pushed into new high ground for the autumn recovery, although a number of the leaders met considerable selling around the peak levels reached two weeks ago.

Taylor Interviewed

The afternoon setback in stocks was accompanied by heavy profit taking in railroad bonds, although the general bond list again closed irregularly higher, in active trading. Commodities also eased off somewhat, after morning strength, which tended to accelerate profit taking in shares. Both cotton and wheat, however, closed slightly higher.

Probably the outstanding business news of the day came after the close of the market, when Myron C. Traylor, chairman of the directorate of U. S. Steel, said in an interview, "It would seem the buying movement cannot be long delayed." Mr. Traylor disclosed that the corporation's finance committee had authorized a $5,000,000 plant-improvement program.

The bullish demonstrations in shares rotated from group to group, with particular activity developing in some of the farm implements, metals, oil and lower priced industrials. Buying of the metals was helped by firmer prices for copper futures in London, and marking up of domestic lead prices by a leading producer.

U. S. Steel closed up only a fraction, after showing a temporary loss of a point. American Telephone closed off a small fraction, after having shown a temporary gain or more than 2 in the rails, such recent firm features as New York Central, New Haven, and Canadian Pacific were off fractionally.

Newest Treatment Of Child Offender Explained to Vets

One of the most important and interesting child-welfare conferences in the work of that national activity of the American Legion is scheduled to be held at 2:30 p. m., in Parlor D, Public Auditorium, in Portland, Ore., September 11th, the Sunday when Legionnaires and Auxiliary members from all parts of the world will gather for the opening of the two national conventions the following day. All, including the public are invited to attend this conference.

An outstanding speaker at the conference will be Judge Carl Britt Hyatt, former judge of the juvenile court, of Asheville, N. C., and a consultant on the staff of the children's bureau of the United States department of labor. He was appointed to his present position after the United States attorney general had requested aid of the bureau in developing plans for federal and state co-operation in dealing with juvenile offenders who violated federal laws.

Judge Hyatt's subject at the Legion conference will be: "New Treatment of the Federal Juvenile offender."

A few months ago the attorney general announced a new policy according to which all cases of federal juvenile offenders were to be referred to their home communities if such communities would accept the responsibility of caring for them and had the facilities to do so properly. On June 8th of this year, the attorney general's policy was validated and its execution greatly facilitated through the passage by the Congress of the act entitled "Transportation of certain juvenile offenders to states under the laws of which they have committed offenses, or are delinquent, and for other purposes." On June 11th President Hoover signed this act giving it immediate effect.

BAND LEADER

AL SWEET

Former circus band director, radio performer, and composer, Al Sweet is leading the Escanaba municipal band in their state fair appearances this week. The guest conductor will be remembered by many circus fans for the snappy and colorful band he headed for the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus a number of seasons ago.

Between his activities as a judge for band tournaments and directing his own band, Sweet has found time to present many interesting and enjoyable radio programs. He has also written several marches and a number of popular songs, his "Little House on the Hill" number sweeping the country a couple of years ago as one of the best sellers in that line of music.

Al Sweet believes in good band music. He claims that the public has never grown tired of real music, music that comes to the listeners direct and not via the disc. He is a sticker for flashy uniforms also, and one of his ideas along this line is carried out in the Escanaba band while he is at the Fair.

Curb Mart Extends Gains On Wide Front

New York, Aug. 23, (AP)—The curb market today followed up its rally by extending its gains on a broad front, a number of leading stocks advancing 1 to around 4 points.

Sales totaled 540,000 shares against 320,000 yesterday, or within striking distance of the heavy trading days of a fortnight ago. There was considerable profit taking in the afternoon, but the list held much of its advance.

The industrials again trailed the utilities in point of popularity, but nevertheless scored some good gains. Humble Oil reached a new high for 1932, closing at 52 for a net gain of 4 points. Gulf was 70½. Imperial and International Petroleum made fractional gains. Standard of Indiana, after touching a new high, closed unchanged.

Aluminum Co. gained 1½ net, closing at 58¾, but at one time passed through its previous 1932 maximum figure with a spurt to 62.

Newmont Mining, which recently sold down as low as 4 3-8, joined the select list of stocks attaining new highs for the year when it advanced through 18. It closed at 17 3-8 for a fractional net gain. The Ford issues and Swift International were quietly firm.

NEW CONTINENT

Rome—We can expect another continent to rise up out of the earth in the South Atlantic ocean, according to predictions of Prof. Ugo Mondello, noted Italian geologist. He says the new continent is the requel to the recent volcanic disturbance in South America.

(X) New high for year.

New York, Aug. 23, (AP)—The bond market again soared toward the heights today and, in the face of heavy profit taking in the speculative rails, retained substantial gains.

Sales totalled $19,595,000, the largest aggregate since last December, and the average for 60 corporate loans advanced seven-tenths of a point, and was less than a point under the high mark for the year. The average for 20 principal utilities attained a new 1932 top.

Railroad issues set the market pace throughout most of the session, many of the low-priced loans advancing from 1 to 5 or more points in broad trading. In the last hour, however, a number of the fast movers gave way to realizing and closed fractionally lower on the day. Others resisted the profit takers and held advances ranging from 1 to as high as 12 points.

When the carriers started to weaken, the industrials and utilities stepped into the limelight. Adams Express 4s were up more than 10 points and gains of 1 to 3 or more points were registered by loans of Armour & Co., Dodge Bros., International Paper, International Telephone, Laclede Gas, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Detroit Edison, Morris & Co., Paramount Broadway, Pure Oil, Republic Steel, Union Oil, Vanadium, Warner Bros. and Western Union.

TAKING the little French telephone from the night table Mona spoke the Twilands number. The telephone at Twilands rang in the hall and in the butler's pantry but at night, she knew, it was switched to her husband's bedroom.

The operator repeated the ringing. "They do not answer," she droned.

"I said 9709," Mona insisted. "Are you sure you're ringing that number?"

At that instant the ringing was cut short. "Hello," said a strange voice.

"Is this Twilands?" An ominous fear overwhelmed the girl. She scarcely knew why. The voice was not familiar.

"Yes, Madame."

Madame! A strange voice would have, in all likelihood, have said "Miss." Someone was speaking who had recognized her!

"I wish to speak with Mr. Townsend. Has he retired?"

There was a silence. Mona could sense rather than hear a slight rustle, as though the telephone had changed hands. She could hear quick breathing against the transmitter. Then another voice smote her ear.

"Is that you, John?" she asked quickly.

"Mrs. Townsend? This is Dr. Dunn speaking. Your husband Mr. Garretson is on his way now to tell you."

"But my husband!" Mona gasped. "Is he ill? Wait--central, you've cut me off. Is he ill? Answer me!"

"I received the signal to disconnect," the operator's voice came in a monotone. "Shall I try them again?"

"Never mind," Mona said. She replaced the receiver. Dressing slowly, she awaited the coming of her husband's lawyer. Already she knew what he was coming to tell her.

New York, Aug. 23, (AP)—The bull campaign in stocks again reached violent proportions today, attracting a large volume of profit taking in the afternoon while final prices were under the day's best, there were numerous net gains of 1 to 3 points.

The turnover reached 4,570,295 shares, the largest, with the exception of the 5,500,000-share turnover of Aug. 8, since the autumn of 1930. The bull drive shifted from the rails to utilities and industrials, and several issues were pushed into new high ground for the autumn recovery, although a number of the leaders met considerable selling around the peak levels reached two weeks ago.

Taylor Interviewed

The afternoon setback in stocks was accompanied by heavy profit taking in railroad bonds, although the general bond list again closed irregularly higher, in active trading. Commodities also eased off somewhat, after morning strength, which tended to accelerate profit taking in shares. Both cotton and wheat, however, closed slightly higher.

Probably the outstanding business news of the day came after the close of the market, when Myron C. Traylor, chairman of the directorate of U. S. Steel, said in an interview, "it would seem the buying movement cannot be long delayed." Mr. Traylor disclosed that the corporation's finance committee had authorized a $5,000,000 plant-improvement program.

The bullish demonstrations in shares rotated from group to group, with particular activity developing in some of the farm implements, metals, oil and lower priced industrials. Buying of the metals was helped by firmer prices for copper futures in London, and marking up of domestic lead prices by a leading producer.

U. S. Steel closed up only a fraction, after showing a temporary loss of a point. American Telephone closed off a small fraction, after having shown a temporary gain or more than 2 in the rails, such recent firm features as New York Central, New Haven, and Canadian Pacific were off fractionally.

Newest Treatment Of Child Offender Explained to Vets

One of the most important and interesting child-welfare conferences in the work of that national activity of the American Legion is scheduled to be held at 2:30 p. m., in Parlor D, Public Auditorium, in Portland, Ore., September 11th, the Sunday when Legionnaires and Auxiliary members from all parts of the world will gather for the opening of the two national conventions the following day. All, including the public are invited to attend this conference.

An outstanding speaker at the conference will be Judge Carl Britt Hyatt, former judge of the juvenile court, of Asheville, N. C., and a consultant on the staff of the children's bureau of the United States department of labor. He was appointed to his present position after the United States attorney general had requested aid of the bureau in developing plans for federal and state co-operation in dealing with juvenile offenders who violated federal laws.

Judge Hyatt's subject at the Legion conference will be: "New Treatment of the Federal Juvenile offender."

A few months ago the attorney general announced a new policy according to which all cases of federal juvenile offenders were to be referred to their home communities if such communities would accept the responsibility of caring for them and had the facilities to do so properly. On June 8th of this year, the attorney general's policy was validated and its execution greatly facilitated through the passage by the Congress of the act entitled "Transportation of certain juvenile offenders to states under the laws of which they have committed offenses, or are delinquent, and for other purposes." On June 11th President Hoover signed this act giving it immediate effect.

BAND LEADER

AL SWEET

Former circus band director, radio performer, and composer, Al Sweet is leading the Escanaba municipal band in their state fair appearances this week. The guest conductor will be remembered by many circus fans for the snappy and colorful band he headed for the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus a number of seasons ago.

Between his activities as a judge for band tournaments and directing his own band, Sweet has found time to present many interesting and enjoyable radio programs. He has also written several marches and a number of popular songs, his "Little House on the Hill" number sweeping the country a couple of years ago as one of the best sellers in that line of music.

Al Sweet believes in good band music. He claims that the public has never grown tired of real music, music that comes to the listeners direct and not via the disc. He is a sticker for flashy uniforms also, and one of his ideas along this line is carried out in the Escanaba band while he is at the Fair.

Curb Mart Extends Gains On Wide Front

New York, Aug. 23, (AP)—The curb market today followed up its rally by extending its gains on a broad front, a number of leading stocks advancing 1 to around 4 points.

Sales totaled 540,000 shares against 320,000 yesterday, or within striking distance of the heavy trading days of a fortnight ago. There was considerable profit taking in the afternoon, but the list held much of its advance.

The industrials again trailed the utilities in point of popularity, but nevertheless scored some good gains. Humble Oil reached a new high for 1932, closing at 52 for a net gain of 4 points. Gulf was 70½. Imperial and International Petroleum made fractional gains. Standard of Indiana, after touching a new high, closed unchanged.

Aluminum Co. gained 1½ net, closing at 58¼, but at one time passed through its previous 1932 maximum figure with a spurt to 63.

Newmont Mining, which recently sold down as low as 4 3-8, joined the select list of stocks attaining new highs for the year when it advanced through 18. It closed at 17 3-8 for a fractional net gain. The Ford issues and Swift International were quietly firm.

NEW CONTINENT

Rome—We can expect another continent to rise up out of the earth in the South Atlantic ocean, according to predictions of Prof. Ugo Mondello, noted Italian geologist. He says the new continent is the requel to the recent volcanic disturbance in South America.

(X) New high for year.

New York, Aug. 23, (AP)—The bond market again soared toward the heights today and, in the face of heavy profit taking in the speculative rails, retained substantial gains.

Sales totalled $19,595,000, the largest aggregate since last December, and the average for 60 corporate loans advanced seventenths of a point, and was less than a point under the high mark for the year. The average for 20 principal utilities attained a new 1932 top.

Railroad issues set the market pace throughout most of the session, many of the low-priced loans advancing from 1 to 5 or more points in broad trading. In the last hour, however, a number of the fast movers gave way to realizing and closed fractionally lower on the day. Others resisted the profit takers and held advances ranging from 1 to as high as 12 points.

When the carriers started to weaken, the industrials and utilities stepped into the limelight. Adams Express 4s were up more than 10 points and gains of 1 to 3 or more points were registered by loans of Armour & Co., Dodge Bros., International Paper, International Telephone, Laclede Gas, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Detroit Edison, Morris & Co., Paramount Broadway, Pure Oil, Republic Steel, Union Oil, Vanadium, Warner Bros. and Western Union.

TAKING the little French telephone from the night table Mona spoke the Twilands number. The telephone at Twilands rang in the hall and in the butler's pantry but at night, she knew, it was switched to her husband's bedroom.

The operator repeated the ringing. "They do not answer," she droned.

"I said 9709," Mona insisted. "Are you sure you're ringing that number?"

At that instant the ringing was cut short. "Hello," said a strange voice.

"Is this Twilands?" An ominous fear overwhelmed the girl. She scarcely knew why. The voice was not familiar.

"Yes, Madame."

Madame! A strange voice would have, in all likelihood, have said "Miss." Someone was speaking who had recognized her!

"I wish to speak with Mr. Townsend. Has he retired?"

There was a silence. Mona could sense rather than hear a slight rustle, as though the telephone had changed hands. She could hear quick breathing against the transmitter. Then another voice smote her ear.

"Is that you, John?" she asked quickly.

"Mrs. Townsend? This is Dr. Dunn speaking. Your husband—Mr. Garretson is on his way now to tell you—"

"But my husband!" Mona gasped. "Is he ill? Wait—central, you've cut me off. Is he ill? Answer me!"

"I received the signal to disconnect," the operator's voice came in a monotone. "Shall I try them again?"

"Never mind," Mona said. She replaced the receiver. Dressing slowly, she awaited the coming of her husband's lawyer. Already she knew what he was coming to tell her.

HARRIS MIGHT BE DISLODGED

Donie Bush Looks Like Possibility as Next Tiger Manager

Detroit, Aug. 23 (AP) Stanley R. "Bucky" Harris, manager of the Detroit Tigers, is one of the American league pilots not yet signed for next year and gossips among Tiger followers are making the most of that possibly innocent circumstance.

Some of them purport to have inside information that Walter Johnson is not slated to return to the helm of the Washington Senators next year and that contingent has assigned Harris to the post. Johnson, the story goes, has broken with the Washington management over the trades in which the Senators lost the services of pitchers Bump Hadley and Carl Fischer.

Bush Has First Call

There is a wide divergence of opinion as to the identity of the Tigers' next manager, should Harris not return, the guesses including Babe Ruth, Donie Bush, Rogers Hornsby and Dan Howley.

Donie Bush, who was the Tiger hortstop in the days when the Bengals were the terrors of the American league, is given first call by the volunteer manager pickers. Some of them credit Bush with laying the foundation for the Senators team with which Harris won his first pennant in Washington. Then Bush won a pennant in his own right at Pittsburgh, did a credible job of managing the White Sox and is making a success as manager of Minneapolis in the American association.

There is little on which even the most gabby gossips can hang their predictions that Ruth, Hornsby or Howley will pilot the Tigers.

And then, of course, there is the possibility that the Tigers will begin their perennial pennant chase next year under the management of Stanley R. "Bucky" Harris and so far there is no tangible evidence to indicate that it won't happen just that way.

World's Harness Records Broken

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 23 (AP) World's harness racing records were broken today during the second day of grand circuit racing at the Illinois state fair.

Rose Marie Abbe, owned by E. A. Bostain, Chattanooga, Tenn., and driven by Jake Rodman, travelled the second heat of the 2.15 St. Nicholas hotel pace in 2.00½ to set a world's race record for pacing mares.

Two world's records tumbled in the handicap trot, which was forced into an extra trial when Scotsman, Lalter Cox's bay colt, stepped the second heat in 2.05. Lock Hunter, with a handicap of 100 feet, won the frist heat in 2.06¾ and the third in 2:06¼. These three heats constituted the three fastest ever recorded in a handicap event.

Jay Cohn Advances In Tennis Tourney

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 23 (AP)—Jay Cohn, Santa Monica, Calif., favorite, made it a triumphal march today in the Michigan open tennis tournament, advancing to the semi-finals round in the junior singles and to the quarter finals in the men's singles.

George O'Connell, Chicago, a ranking western player, and a late entrant, was another favorite to reach the quarter finals in the men's singles. Jack Harris, Chicago, winner of the Michigan Riviera title at Charlevoix, became ill enroute and is out of the singles play, although he hopes to enter the doubles. Warren "Skinny" Byrum, Kalamazoo, advanced along the comeback trail with a 7-5, 6-1 victory over Seymour Seigel, Grand Rapids.

Tigers Win Rubber Game Of Present Series At Boston.

Boston, Aug. 23 (AP)- Tommy Bridges was stingy with hits today and, with relief pitcher George Uhle aiding, the Detroit Tigers turned back the Red Sox, 5 to 4 in the rubber game of the series here.

Bridges allowed only four hits in the seven innings he pitched, although he sandwiched in six passes. Uhle held the Sox to a lone safety after Bridges had given way to Muddy Ruel as a pinch batsman in the first of the eighth.

The Tigers hit Welch hard for seven and a half innings and won the game before they succumbed to Weiland's relief pitching.

Davis singled in the first, advanced on a pass to Gehringer and a wild pitch by Welch and scored on Webb's single. Then Bridges walked Olson, who scored on Stumpf's double. Olson also brought in the second Sox run, walking, advancing on a hunt and scoring on Alexander's double.

Rogell opened the Tiger fourth with a double and scored on Rhiel's single. Rhiel scored on Davis' single. Again it was Olson who tied the score in the fifth, singling, advancing on White's error and an infield out and scoring on Stumpf's fly.

The Sox took the lead in the sixth, Oliver walker, reached second on hunts by Warstler and Tate and scored on Welch's fly. The Tigers won the game in the eighth. Rogell beat out a hot roller, Rhiel singled and so did Haywerth, scoring Rogell. Ruel pinch batted for Bridges and singled, Weiland relieved Welch and Davis promptly bounded one over the pitcher's head to score Rhil.

Dragoons Again Win From Cooks

Manistique, Aug. 22 The Manistique Dragoons won their second consecutive game from Cooks Sunday afternoon, giving them two straight wins in the final round which will decide the championship of the eastern division of the Four County league, winning handily, 7-3. Chartier allowed but seven scattered hits and whiffed 11 Cooks batters, while Deloria permitted 12 safeties and fanned six.

Cooks took the lead in the first inning when they bunched two safeties to count twice. The Dragoons tallied one in the first and tied the count in the second when they shoved over another run. Cooks scored their final tally of the game in the third to again put them in a short lived lead, the locals tying the count in their half of the inning. Thereafter Chartier held the visitors completely at bay while the Dragoons counted in every inning with the exception of the seventh.

Three doubleheaders remain on the schedule for the completion of the final round of games. Next Sunday the Dragoons will journey to Trenary where they will hook up in a twin bill on the latter's diamond.

MISS AMERICA IS GIVEN TEST

Gar Wood Experiments On Two Types of Propellors

Detroit, Aug. 23 (AP) Gar Wood took his Miss America X, newest American bid for the Harmsworth trophy for high powered speed boats, out to the St. Clair river today for concentrated tests on two types of propellors, while Kaye Don, British challenger, took a day off and let his mechanics have their way with Miss England III, the world's fastest motorboat.

The Harmsworth race between the two pilots is still ten days away, but neither is overlooking the possibility of a defect in their motors just before race time. Mechanics have been tuning Don's boat since its first trial Monday, in which he reached a speed of 115 miles an hour Wood has been making short runs near his boathouse at Algonac, testing propellors and his four 12-cylinder motors.

First Heat Sept. 3

Don will go over the course, laid out in Lake St. Clair, at the head of Belle Isle, Wednesday morning in another test run. He has pronounced the Miss England "in fine shape," but wants to make runs at least every other day until the first heat of the race, Sept 3. A second heat will be run on Sept. 5, and a third, if necessary on Sept. 6. The course is seven and one-half nautical miles in length, and the boats will circle the course five times.

Neither pilot has stated the maximum speed he expects from his craft. Don holds the world's speed record for a mile straightaway of 119.81, while Wood has been clocked by observers near Algonac at speeds estimated from 120 to 125 miles an hour.

Today Wood did not attempt to speed up his boat, contenting himself with testing the propellors under reduced speed. Don said he might "open her up a little" tomorrow when he circles the course, "just to get the feel of the route."

MALONE BEATS PHILS BY 5-1

Cubs Sweep Series and Extend Lead Over Brooklyn

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP) Big Pat Malone held Philadelphia to six hits today, beat them 5 to 1, and boosted the Chicago Cubs to a lead of three and one-half games over the idle Brooklyn Dodgers in the National league pennant race.

Outside of a home run by Hal Lee in the seventh inning, Malone was so effective that the slugging Phillies spent the afternoon striking out or popping out. His pitching worked so well that the Cubs set a new National league record of only one assist in a nine inning game. The achievement also equalled the major league record, by the Chicago White Sox of 1919 and the Cleveland Indians of 1924.

Manager Charlie Grimm, at first, had only three putouts at first base, two on foul flies, and the third one with one out in the ninth when Koenig tossed out Lee to get the only assist. Malone fanned eight batsmen and participated in the attack with a double which scored two runs in the seventh.

The Cubs started the scoring in the third when they got a run on three Phillie errors and a single by Kiki Cuyler, Don Hurst, the leading fielding first baseman of the National league, was charged with two of the misplays. The winning run was scored in the sixth. Jurges drawing a pass and counting on a double by Moore.

The lead of three and one half games was the biggest set up by the Cubs since the drive, started on foreign territory, that headed them toward the top of the league.

Grimm Signed Up to Manage Cubs in 1933

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP) Two of the happiest men in baseball, on their own say so, sat back in their chairs today and watched ink dry on a piece of paper that settled management of the Chicago Cubs for another year.

They were William L. Veeck, president of the club, and Charley Grimm, who succeeded Rogers Hornsby as manager not more than a month ago. Grimm signed a one year contract for the season of 1933. President Veeck said he received a substantial increase in salary, which it is understood, will be $30,000.

Popular Manager

The Cubs have flourished under Grimm's management. When he succeeded Hornsby, they were in second place and when he signed today they were leading the National league pennant race by a margin of three games. Grimm, first baseman with the club since 1925, has become one of the most popular managers that ever piloted a Chicago National league club. He holds the admiration of the players and of the fans.

"If you knew how I wanted this chance, you would know how I feel," Grimm smilingly said. "We'll win the pennant this year or bust."

President Veeck characterized Grimm as "the best fighter of the league." Since taking over the club the Cubs have won 16 out of 21 games, including today's victory.

"We are highly satisfied with the way Grimm has handled the team," President Veeck said. "Not only have the Cubs won games under his direction, but the players are enthusiastic. We felt that Grimm should be signed at the time instead of going into the wastes with all of the managerial speculation. The fact that he is signed should contribute to the peace of mind of his players."

Grimm's appointment for next year came two days in advance of his thirty-third birthday.

Senators Win Long Game from Indians

Washington, Aug. 23 (AP) The Washington Senators pounded three Cleveland pitchers for 14 hits today, but were forced to go 13 innings to win 5 to 4.

A single by Rice sent Manush home with the winning run with only one out. The victory gave Washington three out of the five game series and ten out of the 19 games played between the two teams this season.

LEHMAN GRABS TOURNEY MEDAL

Chicago Golfer Turns in 66 in Second Round At Rockford

BY PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 23 (AP) Two storms hit the western amateur golf championship today.

One, a wicked blow from the west, ripped the score sheets off the board and blew three of them into the other; the other was stirred up by Johnny Lehman of Chicago, who stormed the dugouts of the championship Rockford Country club course with a sizzling 66 that gave him the tournament medal with a record smashing 36 hole total of 137 shots.

Lehman's total, knitted with a 71 yesterday and his great 66 today, chipped two shots from the all-time western medal record established at Lochmoor, Detroit, by Dexter Cummings, veteran Chicago star, in 1925.

Qualifiers Benched

"Dick" Martin, Chicago, looked like a cinch for the medal earlier when he posted a 68 for a total to 140 shots. The record-setting field of 187 starters, shot such consistently good golf that the 152 class had to play off to get in the match play bracket of 32.

Beyond Lehman's score, which gave him nine under fours for the last 27 holes, the qualifiers were bunched within an area of 12 shots. George Dawson, Chicago, and Charlie Seaver, Stanford university football star and member of the Walker Cup team, tied for third place with 141's. Pete Jordon, Des Moines, finished fifth with 145.

Gehrig and Lazzeri Star As Yanks Win

New York, Aug. 23 (AP) Faced with a losing streak that threatened to mount to two straight, Tony Lazzeri and Lou Gehrig took the cause of the Yankees in hand today and belted out an 8 to 7 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

Gehrig pounded out his 27th home run of the season with Babe Ruth on first in the fifth to pull the Yanks back in the ball game and tie the score after George Pipgras had allowed the Browns a pair of runs in the first and two more in the fifth.

In the seventh, after the Browns had driven Pipgras to cover and led 7 to 4, Lazzeri tripled with two out to score Babe Ruth and Earle Combs. Then in the ninth he belted another triple to center with one out to drive home the last two runs the Yanks needed to win.

No Upsets Mark Day at Brooklyn Tennis Tournament

BY BILL KING
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 23 (AP)—The remainder of the chaff was threshed out of the 51st annual national doubles tennis championship at Longwood today and all of the wheat was harvested for the quarter final round.

For the second time in a week Sidney Wood of New York, and Lester Stoeffen Los Angeles, blasted Japanese hopes by eliminating Takeo Kuwabara and Jiro Satoh. A few days ago at Newport, the American youngsters trounced the Japs in four sets. They needed but three today, 6-3, 7-5, 6-3, to advance against the defending champions, Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn.

Austin-Perry Win

These titlists had a light workout defeating Talcott Banks of Hartford, Conn., and Walter W. Weld, Boston, 6-0, 6-2, 6-1. The second seeded Americans, Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, both of California moved on by upsetting H. H. Hyde and John Gow of Hartford, 6-1, 6-4, 9-7.

Two foreign teams were among the eight sets of survivors. Henry W. "Bunny" Austin and Frederick J. Perry of England, won as they pleased against Platt Spencer and Austin Darcy of Boston, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2, but Henri Cochet and Marcel Bernard of France, had to play overtime to eliminate the smooth-working Turner brothers from Brookline, 6-2, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1.

In tomorrow's international tilts, Austin and Perry will clash with George Lott and Frank Shields, the fourth seeded Americans, and Cochet and his young partner will carry the tricolor in action against Gregory Mangin and Berkeley Bell, last year's runner-ups.

The other quarter-final will be an all-California battle, Vines and Gledhill versus Jack Tidball and Elbert Lewis.

HARRIS MIGHT BE DISLODGED

Donie Bush Looks Like Possibility as Next Tiger Manager

Detroit, Aug. 23 (AP)—Stanley R. "Bucky" Harris, manager of the Detroit Tigers, is one of the American league pilots not yet signed for next year and gossips among Tiger followers are making the most of that possibly innocent circumstance.

Some of them purport to have inside information that Walter Johnson is not slated to return to the helm of the Washington Senators next year and that contingent has assigned Harris to the post. Johnson, the story goes, has broken with the Washington management over the trades in which the Senators lost the services of pitchers Bump Hadley and Carl Fischer.

Bush Has First Call

There is a wide divergence of opinion as to the identity of the Tigers' next manager, should Harris not return, the guesses including Babe Ruth, Donie Bush, Rogers Hornsby and Dan Howley.

Donie Bush, who was the Tiger shortstop in the days when the Bengals were the terrors of the American league, is given first call by the volunteer manager pickers. Some of them credit Bush with laying the foundation for the Senators team with which Harris won his first pennant in Washington. Then Bush won a pennant in his own right at Pittsburgh, did a credible job of managing the White Sox and is making a success as manager of Minneapolis in the American association.

There is little on which even the most gabby gossips can hang their predictions that Ruth, Hornsby or Howley will pilot the Tigers.

And then, of course, there is the possibility that the Tigers will begin their perennial pennant chase next year under the management of Stanley R. "Bucky" Harris and so far there is no tangible evidence to indicate that it won't happen just that way.

World's Harness Records Broken

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 23 (AP)—World's harness racing records were broken today during the second day of grand circuit racing at the Illinois state fair.

Rose Marie Abbe, owned by E. A. Bostain, Chattanooga, Tenn., and driven by Jake Rodman, travelled the second heat of the 2.15 St. Nicholas hotel pace in 2.00½ to set a world's race record for pacing mares.

Two world's records tumbled in the handicap trot, which was forced into an extra trial when Scotsman, Lalter Cox's bay colt, stepped the second heat in 2.05. Lock Bunter, with a handicap of 100 feet, won the frist heat in 2.06¾ and the third in 2:06¼. These three heats constituted the three fastest ever recorded in a handicap event.

Jay Cohn Advances In Tennis Tourney

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 23 (AP)—Jay Cohn, Santa Monica, Calif., favorite, made it a triumphal march today in the Michigan open tennis tournament, advancing to the semi-finals round in the junior singles and to the quarter finals in the men's singles.

George O'Connell, Chicago, a ranking western player, and a late entrant, was another favorite to reach the quarter finals in the men's singles. Jack Harris, Chicago, winner of the Michigan Riviera title at Charlevoix, became ill enroute and is out of the singles play, although he hopes to enter the doubles. Warren "Skinny" Byrum, Kalamazoo, advanced along the comeback trail with a 7-5, 6-1 victory over Seymour Seigel, Grand Rapids.

Tigers Win Rubber Game Of Present Series At Boston

Boston, Aug. 23 (AP)—Tommy Bridges was stingy with hits today and, with relief pitcher George Uhle aiding, the Detroit Tigers turned back the Red Sox, 5 to 4 in the rubber game of the series here.

Bridges allowed only four hits in the seven innings he pitched, although he sandwiched in six passes. Uhle held the Sox to a lone safety after Bridges had given way to Muddy Ruel as a pinch batsman in the first of the eighth.

The Tigers hit Welch hard for seven and a half innings and won the game before they succumbed to Weiland's relief pitching.

Davis singled in the first, advanced on a pass to Gehringer and a wild pitch by Welch and scored on Webb's single. Then Bridges walked Olson, who scored on Stumpf's double. Olson also brought in the second Sox run, walking, advancing on a bunt and scoring on Alexander's double.

Rogell opened the Tiger fourth with a double and scored on Rhiel's single. Rhiel scored on Davis' single. Again it was Olson who tied the score in the fifth, singling, advancing on White's error and an infield out and scoring on Stumpf's fly.

The Sox took the lead in the sixth. Oliver walker, reached second on bunts by Warstler and Tate and scored on Welch's fly. The Tigers won the game in the eighth. Rogell beat out a hot roller. Rhiel singled and so did Hayworth, scoring Rogell. Ruel pinch batted for Bridges and singled. Weiland relieved Welch and Davis promptly bounded one over the pitcher's head to score Rhil.

Dragoons Again Win From Cooks

Manistique, Aug. 22 — The Manistique Dragoons won their second consecutive game from Cooks Sunday afternoon, giving them two straight wins in the final round which will decide the championship of the eastern division of the Four County league, winning handily, 7-3. Chartier allowed but seven scattered hits and whiffed 11 Cooks batters, while Deloria permitted 12 safeties and fanned six.

Cooks took the lead in the first inning when they bunched two safeties to count twice. The Dragoons tallied one in the first and tied the count in the second when they shoved over another run. Cooks scored their final tally of the game in the third to again put them in a short lived lead, the locals tying the count in their half of the inning. Thereafter Chartier held the visitors completely at bay while the Dragoons counted in every inning with the exception of the seventh.

Three doubleheaders remain on the schedule for the completion of the final round of games. Next Sunday the Dragoons will journey to Trenary where they will hook up in a twin bill on the latter's diamond.

MISS AMERICA IS GIVEN TEST

Gar Wood Experiments On Two Types of Propellers

Detroit, Aug. 23 (AP)—Gar Wood took his Miss America X, newest American bid for the Harmsworth trophy for high powered speed boats, out to the St. Clair river today for concentrated tests on two types of propellers, while Kaye Don, British challenger, took a day off and let his mechanics have their way with Miss England III, the world's fastest motorboat.

The Harmsworth race between the two pilots is still ten days away, but neither is overlooking the possibility of a defect in their motors just before race time. Mechanics have been tuning Don's boat since its first trial Monday, in which he reached a speed of 115 miles an hour. Wood has been making short runs near his boathouse at Algonac, testing propellors and his four 12-cylinder motors.

First Heat Sept. 3

Don will go over the course, laid out in Lake St. Clair, at the head of Belle Isle, Wednesday morning in another test run. He has pronounced the Miss England "in fine shape," but wants to make runs at least every other day until the first heat of the race, Sept 3. A second heat will be run on Sept. 5, and a third, if necessary on Sept. 6. The course is seven and one-half nautical miles in length, and the boats will circle the course five times.

Neither pilot has stated the maximum speed he expects from his craft. Don holds the world's speed record for a mile straightaway of 119.81, while Wood has been clocked by observers near Algonac at speeds estimated from 120 to 125 miles an hour.

Today Wood did not attempt to speed up his boat, contenting himself with testing the propellors under reduced speed. Don said he might "open her up a little" tomorrow when he circles the course, "just to get the feel of the route."

MALONE BEATS PHILS BY 5-1

Cubs Sweep Series and Extend Lead Over Brooklyn

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP)—Big Pat Malone held Philadelphia to six hits today, beat them 5 to 1, and boosted the Chicago Cubs to a lead of three and one-half games over the idle Brooklyn Dodgers in the National league pennant race.

Outside of a home run by Hal Lee in the seventh inning, Malone was so effective that the slugging Phillies spent the afternoon striking out or popping out. His pitching worked so well that the Cubs set a new National league record of only one assist in a nine inning game. The achievement also equalled the major league record, by the Chicago White Sox of 1919 and the Cleveland Indians of 1924.

Manager Charlie Grimm, at first, had only three putouts at first base, two on foul flies, and the third one with one out in the ninth when Koenig tossed out Lee to get the only assist. Malone fanned eight batsmen and participated in the attack with a double which scored two runs in the seventh.

The Cubs started the scoring in the third when they got a run on three Phillie errors and a single by Kiki Cuyler, Don Hurst, the leading fielding first baseman of the National league, was charged with two of the misplays. The winning run was scored in the sixth, Jurges drawing a pass and counting on a double by Moore.

The lead of three and one-half games was the biggest set up by the Cubs since the drive, started on foreign territory, that headed them toward the top of the league.

Grimm Signed Up to Manage Cubs in 1933

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP)—Two of the happiest men in baseball, on their own say so, sat back in their chairs today and watched ink dry on a piece of paper that settled management of the Chicago Cubs for another year.

They were William L. Veeck, president of the club, and Charley Grimm, who succeeded Rogers Hornsby as manager not more than a month ago. Grimm signed a one year contract for the season of 1933. President Veeck said he received a substantial increase in salary, which, it is understood, will be $30,000.

Popular Manager

The Cubs have flourished under Grimm's management. When he succeeded Hornsby, they were in second place and when he signed today they were leading the National league pennant race by a margin of three games. Grimm, first baseman with the club since 1925, has become one of the most popular managers that ever piloted a Chicago National league club. He holds the admiration of the players and of the fans.

"If you knew how I wanted this chance, you would know how I feel," Grimm smilingly said. "We'll win the pennant this year or bust."

President Veeck characterized Grimm as "the best fighter of the league." Since taking over the club, the Cubs have won 16 out of 21 games, including today's victory.

"We are highly satisfied with the way Grimm has handled the team," President Veeck said. "Not only have the Cubs won games under his direction, but the players are enthusiastic. We felt that Grimm should be signed at this time instead of going into the winter with all of the managerial speculation. The fact that he is signed should contribute to the peace of mind of his players."

Grimm's appointment for next year came two days in advance of his thirty-third birthday.

Senators Win Long Game from Indians

Washington, Aug. 23 (AP)—The Washington Senators pounded three Cleveland pitchers for 14 hits today, but were forced to go 13 innings to win 5 to 4.

A single by Rice sent Manush home with the winning run with only one out. The victory gave Washington three out of the five-game series and ten out of the 19 games played between the two teams this season.

LEHMAN GRABS TOURNEY MEDAL

Chicago Golfer Turns in 66 in Second Round At Rockford

BY PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 23 (AP)—Two storms hit the western amateur golf championship today.

One, a wicked blow from the west, ripped the score sheets off the board and blew three of them into the ether; the other was stirred up by Johnny Lehman of Chicago, who stormed the dugouts of the championship Rockford Country club course with a sizzling 66 that gave him the tournament medal with a record-smashing 36 hole total of 137 shots.

Lehman's total, knitted with a 71 yesterday and his great 66 today, chipped two shots from the all-time western medal record established at Lochmoor, Detroit, by Dexter Cummings, veteran Chicago star, in 1925.

Qualifiers Benched

"Dick" Martin, Chicago, looked like a cinch for the medal earlier when he posted a 68 for a total to 140 shots. The record-setting field of 187 starters shot such consistently good golf that the 152 class had to play off to get in the match play bracket of 32.

Beyond Lehman's score, which gave him nine under fours for the last 27 holes, the qualifiers were bunched within an area of 12 shots. George Dawson, Chicago, and Charlie Seaver, Stanford university football star and member of the Walker Cup team, tied for third place with 143's. Pete Jordon, Des Moines, finished fifth with 145.

Gehrig and Lazzeri Star As Yanks Win

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—Faced with a losing streak that threatened to mount to two straight, Tony Lazzeri and Lou Gehrig took the cause of the Yankees in hand today and belted out an 8 to 7 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

Gehrig pounded out his 27th home run of the season with Babe Ruth on first in the fifth to pull the Yanks back in the ball game and tie the score after George Pipgras had allowed the Browns a pair of runs in the first and two more in the fifth.

In the seventh, after the Browns had driven Pipgras to cover and led 7 to 4, Lazzeri tripled with two out to score Babe Ruth and Earle Combs. Then in the ninth he belted another triple to center with one out to drive home the last two runs the Yanks needed to win.

NET FAVORITES WIN IN DOUBLES

No Upsets Mark Day at Brooklyn Tennis Tournament

BY BILL KING
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 23 (AP)—The remainder of the chaff was threshed out of the 51st annual national doubles tennis championship at Longwood today and all of the wheat was harvested for the quarter-final round.

For the second time in a week Sidney Wood of New York, and Lester Stoeffen, Los Angeles, blasted Japanese hopes by eliminating Takeo Kuwabara and Jiro Satoh. A few days ago at Newport, the American youngsters trounced the Japs in four sets. They needed but three today, 6-3, 7-5, 6-3, to advance against the defending champions, Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn.

Austin-Perry Win

These titlists had a light workout defeating Talcott Banks of Hartford, Conn., and Walter W. Wald, Boston, 6-0, 6-2, 6-1. The second seeded Americans, Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, both of California, moved on by upsetting H. H. Hyde and John Gow of Hartford, 6-1, 6-4, 9-7.

Two foreign teams were among the eight sets of survivors. Henry W. "Bunny" Austin and Frederick J. Perry of England, won as they pleased against Platt Spencer and Austin Darcy of Boston, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2, but Henri Cochet and Marcel Bernard of France, had to play overtime to eliminate the smooth-working Turner brothers from Brookline, 6-2, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1.

In tomorrow's international tilts, Austin and Perry will clash with George Lott and Frank Shields, the fourth-seded Americans, and Cochet and his young partner will carry the tri-color in action against Gregory Mangin and Berkeley Bell, last year's runner-ups.

The other quarter-final will be an all-California battle, Vines and Gledhill versus Jack Tidball and Elbert Lewis.

U. S. EXHIBITS AT STATE FAIR

Action Displays Emphasize Livestock and Health Work

Colorful action exhibits ranging from a miniature forest fire to a revolving globe showing the dairy production of different countries, and a flashing "Stop" and "Go" sign on the highway to health are in the display of the U. S. Department of Agriculture stressing livestock and food subjects, being shown at the Upper Peninsula State Fair in Escanaba this week.

The exhibits, all of them educational in nature, display in striking fashion, results of work by the department. The majority of them deal with cattle, sheep, and poultry. Miscellaneous exhibits treat of food and health. The displays fill a freight car when packed for shipment.

World Banquet

The exhibit "World's Dairy Banquet" pictures the relatively low consumption of dairy products in the United States. At a large banquet table around which 10 nations sit, Uncle Sam is shown as the slighted guest. The representative of each nation is shown in national costume and in front of each is the daily per capita consumption of that nation of milk, butter and cheese. Sweden consumes most milk, Canada most butter and Switzerland most cheese.

"Our Average is Low" says the exhibit by that name on the annual milk production of cows in the United States. It compares the average production in this country with other nations on a slowly revolving globe showing the nations of the world. Near each nation is a cow with figures showing the average milk production. Cows in the Netherlands produce on an average 7,585 pounds of milk yearly; those in the United States average only 4,500.

In the exhibit, "Finishing Cattle for Beef," the Bureau of Agricultural Economics shows that 84 per cent of the cost of fattening a steer is feed cost. Other costs shown are 5.5 per cent for labor, 6 per cent for interest, and 4.5 per cent for other costs.

The shadowy outlines of 200 pigs passing every hour through the neck of a giant hour glass illustrate the enormous losses from hog cholera in the United States. "Yet this disease is preventable," says the exhibit on "Hog Cholera Control." It explains practical preventive measures.

Egg Exhibit

"The Clean-up Squad" is an exhibit which shows that sheep eat feeds otherwise wasted, turn stubble and inaccessible pastures into mutton and wool, kill weeds and leave fertility on the high spots where it is most needed.

Just why a bad egg gets bad is clearer after seeing the exhibit "Good Management Eliminates Egg Losses." In this an egg 25 inches long showing first one side and then the other, centers the exhibit and tells the story that fertile eggs spoil quicker than infertile ones. One side of the egg shows the infertile egg in good condition; opposite is the fertile side which, in the same time, has developed blood rings and other bad egg conditions.

"Forest Fires" realistically imitates a hot forest fire with colored silk strips shimmering in orange light to represent flames and their shadows as smoke. The exhibit carries the warning, "Keep the playgrounds green. Our lumber, furniture, firewood, magazines and daily papers come from the forests. Don't let the forests burn. Of all our forest fires, 18.6 per cent are caused by carelessness with matches, cigarettes, and pipe ashes."

A spicy exhibit "Vinegar, Pickles, and Sauerkraut" represents a kitchen and shows the different steps needed in making various foods.

Nutrition Exhibit

"Stop" says a red traffic light pointing to signs of poor nutrition. "Go" says a green traffic light pointing to signs of good nutrition. These traffic lights in the exhibit "Food and Health" indicate that some of the signs of good nutrition in children are: Straight sturdy legs, straight back, strong white teeth, bright sparkling eyes, and healthy appetite.

The exhibit, "Avian Tuberculosis," calls attention to the estimated incidence of infection among poultry. An electrically operated shadow device gives an X-Ray effect of lesions where tuberculosis is found. Watch glass specimens of actual diseased tissue are shown in the exhibit. Pictures emphasize the fact that unsanitary chicken houses and runs are contributing factors in the spread of avian tuberculosis.

In the exhibit, "The Milk Factory," the talking cow, who tells how and why she is a milk factory is shown with all her motors running. She says her production depends largely upon the ingredients in her feed. She shows in a mechanical way how dairy feed is ground, mixed, and digested, and how the useful materials eventually get to the storage room to be reassembled in the form of milk. Bossy talks clearly, though the voice is not her own.

Woman Injured As Car Blows A Tire West Of Escanaba

Enroute to Escanaba for the fair Tuesday, a car driven by Avel Carlstedt of Des Moines, Iowa, turned over when a left rear tire blew out. Mrs. Carlstedt was cut about the head and received treatment at St. Francis hospital. She was able to leave at 4 p. m. Seven other passengers in the car received only minor bruises. The accident occurred on US 2-41, about two miles west of the city. Deputy Henry Breault of the sheriff's department was called to investigate.

U. S. EXHIBITS AT STATE FAIR

Action Displays Emphasize Livestock and Health Work

Colorful action exhibits ranging from a miniature forest fire to a revolving globe showing the dairy production of different countries, and a flashing "Stop" and "Go" sign on the highway to health are in the display of the U. S. Department of Agriculture stressing livestock and food subjects, being shown at the Upper Peninsula State Fair in Escanaba this week.

The exhibits, all of them educational in nature, display in striking fashion, results of work by the department. The majority of them deal with cattle, sheep, and poultry. Miscellaneous exhibits treat of food and health. The displays fill a freight car when packed for shipment.

World Banquet

The exhibit "World's Dairy Banquet" pictures the relatively low consumption of dairy products in the United States. At a large banquet table around which 10 nations sit, Uncle Sam is shown as the slighted guest. The representative of each nation is shown in national costume and in front of each is the daily per capita consumption of that nation of milk, butter and cheese. Sweden consumes most milk, Canada most butter and Switzerland most cheese.

"Our Average is Low" says the exhibit by that name on the annual milk production of cows in the United States. It compares the average production in this country with other nations on a slowly revolving globe showing the nations of the world. Near each nation is a cow with figures showing the average milk production. Cows in the Netherlands produce on an average 7,585 pounds of milk yearly; those in the United States average only 4,500.

In the exhibit, "Finishing Cattle for Beef," the Bureau of Agricultural Economics shows that 84 per cent of the cost of fattening a steer is feed cost. Other costs shown are 5.5 per cent for labor, 6 per cent for interest, and 4.5 per cent for other costs.

The shadowy outlines of 200 pigs passing every hour through the neck of a giant hour glass illustrate the enormous losses from hog cholera in the United States. "Yet this disease is preventable," says the exhibit on "Hog Cholera Control." It explains practical preventive measures.

Egg Exhibit

"The Clean-up Squad" is an exhibit which shows that sheep eat feeds otherwise wasted, turn stubble and inaccessible pastures into mutton and wool, kill weeds and leave fertility on the high spots where it is most needed.

Just why a bad egg gets bad is clearer after seeing the exhibit "Good Management Eliminates Egg Losses." In this an egg 25 inches long showing first one side and then the other, centers the exhibit and tells the story that fertile eggs spoil quicker than infertile ones. One side of the egg shows the infertile egg in good condition; opposite is the fertile side which, in the same time, has developed blood rings and other bad egg conditions.

"Forest Fires" realistically imitates a hot forest fire with colored silk strips shimmering in orange light to represent flames and their shadows as smoke. The exhibit carries the warning, "Keep the playgrounds green. Our lumber, furniture, firewood, magazines and daily papers come from the forests. Don't let the forests burn. Of all our forest fires, 18.6 per cent are caused by carelessness with matches, cigarettes, and pipe ashes."

A spicy exhibit "Vinegar, Pickles, and Sauerkraut" represents a kitchen and shows the different steps needed in making various foods.

Nutrition Exhibit

"Stop" says a red traffic light pointing to signs of poor nutrition. "Go" says a green traffic light pointing to signs of good nutrition. These traffic lights in the exhibit "Food and Health" indicate that some of the signs of good nutrition in children are: Straight sturdy legs, straight back, strong white teeth, bright sparkling eyes, and healthy appetite.

The exhibit, "Avian Tuberculosis," calls attention to the estimated incidence of infection among poultry. An electrically operated shadow device gives an X-Ray effect of lesions where tuberculosis is found. Watch glass specimens of actual diseased tissue are shown in the exhibit. Pictures emphasize the fact that insanitary chicken houses and runs are contributing factors in the spread of avian tuberculosis.

In the exhibit, "The Milk Factory," the talking cow, who tells how and why she is a milk factory is shown with all her motors running. She says her production depends largely upon the ingredients in her feed. She shows in a mechanical way how dairy feed is ground, mixed, and digested, and how the useful materials eventually get to the storage room to be reassembled in the form of milk. Bossy talks clearly, though the voice is not her own.

DR. A. SANDERS, JR.

Judging from exhibits at the state fair here this week, horses are staging a comeback. There are more entries than ever before, and competition is keen. Dr. A. Sanders jr., of Menominee county is the director in charge of the horse department.

Woman Injured As Car Blows A Tire West Of Escanaba

Enroute to Escanaba for the fair Tuesday, a car driven by Avel Carlstedt of Des Moines, Iowa, turned over when a left rear tire blew out. Mrs. Carlstedt was cut about the head and received treatment at St. Francis hospital. She was able to leave at 4 p. m. Seven other passengers in the car received only minor bruises. The accident occurred on US 2-41, about two miles west of the city. Deputy Henry Breault of the sheriff's department was called to investigate.

A material that does not stop the ultraviolet rays from the sun, resembling glass and not as fragile, has been made from natural gas at the Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, Pa.

40-HOUR WEEK APPROVED BY NATIONAL C-C

ORGANIZATION ALSO OPPOSES PAYMENT OF BONUS

Washington, Sept. 23. (AP)—Approval of the forty hour week in industry, and opposition to payment of the soldiers' bonus before maturity in 1945, were voted today by the directorate of the chamber of commerce of the United States.

Action was taken on the five-day week and eight-hour day soon after President Hoover had sought through Henry I. Harriman, president of the chamber, to align it squarely behind efforts to decrease unemployment and speed up business momentum.

Signs of Improvement

Harriman said the president had asked the chamber's aid for special business and industrial committees in boosting employment, speeding railroad purchases and otherwise giving impetus to business which Harriman reported "is picking up."

The chamber's head said "there are signs of improvement in many sections but we are not sure how long this sweep will last." He described the midwest as "the sore spot."

"In New England we have 160,000 textile workers on the job who were not working two months ago," Harriman said. "The electric power business is a good indication, and September will show more business there than in the same period last year.

"Texas is happier and Southern California is doing more business than heretofore. For the first time in two years sales of real estate are picking up in southern California. The wid-west is the sore spot but that will get better, too."

Walter C. Teagle, chairman of the committee formed by representatives of the various federal reserve districts to ease credit, sat as a member of the chamber's board.

Approving the shortened work week to increase employment, the board limited the time it would be operative under its plan to "the present emergency of excessive unemployment."

While discussing other means of spreading work, the board made no specific recommendations but authorized immediate collection of data on the subject. Efforts of the Teagle group were indorsed.

Rebukes Veterans

The American Federation of Labor, a number of other organizations and some prominent figures in public life had previously recommended the 40 hour week, but the chamber, representing organized employers, had never acted on it before.

Flatly opposing payment of the bonus, as urged by the recent American Legion convention, the board also urged a $400,000,000 cut in federal expenditures for the veterans of the World War, the Spanish American war, the Boxer Rebellion and the Philippine In-

Non-Partisan Railway Inquiry With Coolidge As Leader is Probable

BY VICTOR EUBANK
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Formation of a national railway commission, headed by former President Calvin Coolidge, was understood in Wall Street today to have been virtually completed and a formal announcement was expected within the next few days.

The commission, which is to make a thorough study of the national transportation problem with the view of later recommending congressional action to eradicate the existing sore spots, is to be sponsored, it was said, by the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, other large financial institutions, insurance companies and important public organizations.

No Salaries for Probers

While the details of the proposed inquiry are being rather closely guarded, it was variously reported that agreement had been reached on the following:

1. The commission will be non-partisan and free in every respect and will act upon its own initiative in conducting the railway inquiry.
2. The commissioners will receive no salaries or other compensation for their work, but will contribute their services as a public duty.
3. The railroads themselves will have no part in the formation of the commission nor its activities and will be asked to furnish information only, through testimony and statistics.
4. The commission will particularly stress the point that it is representing no one organization or political party; that, fundamentally, it is acting on behalf of the public and the thousands of security holders effected by the operations of the carriers.
5. The expense of the inquiry will be provided by the various sponsoring organizations, and the initial sum to be provided for this purpose may be as much as $100,000, although this has not been actually decided.

An investigating commission has, for some time, been under consideration by the large banks and insurance companies whose portfolios consist largely of railroad securities.

It was at first proposed that Mr. Coolidge form a committee of one to take over the inquiry. It was understood that the former chief executive, however, when first approached several weeks ago on the matter, suggested that the idea was a good one, but that he believed it would be better to have a commission composed of several prominent national figures.

In the meantime, it was said, Mr. Coolidge has been in close touch with the sponsors of the proposal and has even suggested some names for the commission. Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York, was mentioned at one time, as were a well-known financier, a newspaper publisher and a famous economic authority.

Originally it was thought the commission of five was suggested. It is believed the latter number was finally decided upon, although this is only a conjecture broached in the financial district.

The commission is expected to start work shortly after the formal announcement of its organization is forthcoming.

HUSBAND KILLS WIFE'S LOVER

Detroit Man Says He Is Glad All Three Shots Found the Mark

Detroit, Sept. 23. (AP)—Firing three times with an automatic shotgun into a closed automobile Albert Talbot, 59, today shot and killed James Settle, 33, as his estranged wife, Mrs. Eliza Talbot looked on.

The shooting occurred as Settle was leaving his home and while Mrs. Talbot tried to shield Settle. She had seen Talbot approach carrying his shotgun and rushed to the car parked at the curb.

Settle, instead of leaving the car, sought to start it. Before he could get it under way the three charges crashed through a window.

"Did I hit him all three times?" Talbot asked at the Chene street police station. Assured that he had, Talbot said:

"Good; I thought I missed him the first time."

He accused Settle not only of breaking up his home but of teaching his wife to drink, smoke and neglect her four children.

Talbot and his wife had been estranged for more than a year. He said she had gone to live with Settle while he was receiving medical treatment at Brighton, Mich., for an illness of several years standing.

"I didn't want to shoot him, but he deserved shooting," Talbot said in a statement at the police station. "I was willing to let her go if she didn't want to live with me, but she wasn't living the right kind of life with him."

Mrs. Talbot who is 36 years old was burned by powder and cut by glass from one of the broken windows of Settle's car. She was taken to Receiving hospital for treatment.

18 Boys In Huddle Struck By Lightning

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Eighteen boys in a football "huddle" on the athletic field of Woodmere academy were felled by lightning today. One of them, Edward Fox, 18, never regained consciousness and died a few hours later.

The boys were holding "skull practice" with Thomas N. Barrows, headmaster of their school on Long Island. Some were backed up against a wire screen and they all had their heads together, their arms around each other, forming a perfect circuit for electric shock.

DETROIT GETS RELIEF FUNDS

$1,800,000 R. F. C. Loan Is Received by Welfare Department

Detroit, Sept. 23 (AP)—The city of Detroit today received a check for $1,800,000 from the reconstruction finance corporation, the first loan made directly to a municipality, and prepared at once to apply the loan to funds needed by the welfare department.

Meanwhile, plans went on for obtaining further aid from the R. F. C. for additional welfare funds needed during the period of the next fiscal year. City officials said a petition seeking the additional funds has been prepared and sent to Governor Wilber M. Brucker for further procedure, following a stormy verbal encounter here Wednesday between the governor and Mayor Frank Murphy.

Charles L. Williams, city treasurer, said that checks would be issued immediately from the loan to grocers to whom the welfare department is indebted for nearly $750,000 expended in welfare orders.

City administration leaders desire to borrow $10,374,000 from the R. F. C. to finance the welfare department for the winter. The governor and Mayor Murphy entered into an argument Wednesday over the methods by which the funds might be obtained.

Another suggestion for obtaining funds from the R. F. C. came today from Robert D. Wardell, member of the Wayne county board of supervisors, who proposed that the board obtain a loan of $28,000,000 from the corporation for the purpose of carrying to immediate conclusion the widening of five major trunk line highways in Detroit under the state highway plan. The loan, he said, could be paid in ten years through application to it of amounts received yearly by the state from the gasoline tax and by the county from the weight tax. The board referred Wardell's suggestion, made in the form of a resolution, to the ways and means and the road committees for study.

EASTERN ROADS REACH ACCORD

Modified Plan for Consolidation Finally Accepted

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Sept. 23. (AP)—Executives of the eastern trunk line railroads announced after a long session today that they had reached an accord on the modified plan recently approved by the interstate commerce commission for consolidating all carriers in this territory into four major systems.

A brief statement issued after the meeting said the heads of the four systems—New York Central, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake & Ohio and Baltimore & Ohio—had "agreed and composed" all differences among themselves arising from the plan. It was added that the plan did not include the New England lines except the Boston & Albany railroad, leased to New York Central, and that the question was not considered. This referred to the Pennsylvania's directly or indirectly owned holdings of New York, New Haven & Hartford and Boston & Maine, which the commerce commission ruled should be disposed of by the Pennsylvania as a condition to fulfillment of its merger plan.

Despite the failure of the executives to supply details of the "differences" on which agreemnt was reached, railroad circles were inclined to regard the results of the session as a longer step forward in the tortuous path leading to actual unification. The stock market also reflected this opinion, as leading rail stocks, after showing strength through most of the session, closed $1 to $2 a share higher in anticipation of developments at the meeting.

Railroad circles have understood that the differences which were finally ironed out today related principally to the I. C. C.'s awards of trackage rights among the four trunk lines, and to the divided allocation of some of the smaller roads to the trunk lines.

Gossip in railroad circles had said that each of the trunk lines had some complaint over the trackage rights granted it under the commission's plan, and the executives in the course of their meetings over the past two months had devoted to a solution of these problems.

SEEK CAUSES FOR COLLAPSE OF INSULL, INC.

STOCKHOLDERS LOST 300 MILLIONS IN DEBACLE

Chicago, Sept. 23 (AP)—The spotlights of bankruptcy court, of government and state investigat- began today to search out the causes of the failure of corporation Securities Company and Insull Utilities Investments, Inc., whose debacle cost their stockholders 300 million dollars.

Adjudging both companies bankrupt today, U. S. District Judge Walter C. Lindley asserted from his Danville, Ill., home he would personally direct the bankruptcy proceedings so far as time permits, appointing no referee.

He told the stockholder to abandon hope of any recovery.

"There is no change of reorganization," the court stated in memoranda accompanying the decrees. "There is no possibility that assets of sufficient character or amount as to bring the stockholders any return whatsoever will ever be realized. Apparently the most that can be hoped for is a distribution of dividends amongst creditors."

Favored List Causes Stir

Under the bankruptcy act, Judge Lindley pointed out, "suits may be instituted to recover preferences, to set aside transfers, and to determine priority of liens."

Publication of a "favored list of 205" customers who were allowed to buy Insull Utility Investment stock at the subscription price of $12 a share created a stir today, but it was pointed out that most of these were Insull officers, associated and employes pledged not to sell for 2 years, and that the underwriting practice was not unusual. The shares were listed at $30 and reached a one time peak of $149 in 1929.

Publication of the list, however, resulted in the removal of two Insull receivers by Judge Lindley. The names of both receivers were contained on the roster. The former receivers are George A. Cooke, who was removed as co-receiver of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Patrick J. Lucey, former co-receiver of corporation securities. Their removal left Calvin Fentress as sole receiver for the Utility Investments and Raymond F. McNally for Corporation Securities. Judge Lindley made no comment as to the reason for the removals.

GANDHI WEAKER, STRIKE GOES ON

Nationalist Leader Is Ill After 82 Hours Without Food

Poona, India, Sept. 23 (AP)—Disquieting news that the Mahatma M. K. Gandhi had taken a sharp turn for the worse came from Yeroda jail tonight after the Nationalist leader had gone for 82 hours without food in protest against the electoral system devised for Indian legislatures by the British government.

The Mahatma was afflicted with nausea and giddiness. His voice was becoming more feeble and it was with difficulty that he kept his eyes open.

The news of his condition resulted in a sudden dash to the jail on the part of political leaders representing the caste Hindus and the untouchables, who were conferring about an electoral scheme of their own in the hope it might prove acceptable to the Mahatma.

Seek Agreement

The particular point in the British electoral scheme to which the Mahatma objected is the establishment of separate electorates for the depressed classes. The representatives of the untouchables and the caste Hindus had reached a point when they went to the prison tonight at which the Mahatma's advise was imperative.

The feeble and wasted mystic received them, heard their stories and made suggestions of his own. The meeting took place under a mango tree in the prison yard and lasted 40 minutes. The negotiations will be resumed tomorrow.

Strong hopes were expressed that it would be possible tomorrow to sign an agreement and cable it immediately to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

The effect of this optimism was clearly visible in Mr. Gandhi. Calling upon his reserves of nervous energy, he threw off his earlier weakness and conversed excitedly with his intimates until a late hour.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sept. 23. (AP)—Circuit Judge Herbert W. Runnels declined today to pass sentence on two liquor law violators until after the November election when it will be determined whether the state's prohibition laws shall be repealed.

He said he could not conscientuously sentence the prisoners to serve six months in jail, not knowing whether the law will be in effect at the expiration of their terms.

The defendants, Fenton Grant and George Bertram signed waivers permitting officers to search their homes and cars at any time.

Judge Runnels sentenced Melvin Kabot, Two Rivers, Wis., to serve four years in Marquete branch prison for negligent homicide and Albert Porter, Sault carpenter, to five years in Marquette prison for manslaughter.

CURTIS PLEADS FOR PRESIDENT

Tells Crowd in Kentucky Hoover Should Be Re-Elected

Hopkinsville, Ky., Sept. 23 (AP)—A plea for the people of the United States to support the president in a time of depression as they do during a war was made here tonight by Vice President Charles Curtis as he and Representative Maurice H. Thatcher made their second speeches of the day in opening the Republican campaign in Kentucky.

Thatcher is the Republican senatorial nominee. Both speakers, addressing a crowd of several thousand, termed the present economic condition a world-wide one and Curtis drew applause when he said that when the Spanish war started men of all parties forgot politics and "in congress only one man voted against giving President McKinley full authority to carry the war to a successful conclusion. Democrats just as whole-heartedly as Republicans." During the World war, he said, a 72 percent Republican vote was cast to aid President Wilson's war measures and a 67 percent Democratic vote.

Patriotism Above Politics

"In times of war and in times of depression," Curtis continued, "the people of the United States put patriotism above politics, and for this reason we were the last nation to feel the effects of this world-wide depression and will be the first to recover."

Thatcher told the audience the majority of Democrats were "as patriotic as Republicans" but said that "for seventy years a Republican administration has proven better for this country."

Earlier in the day the vice president spoke at Bowling Green, stressing agriculture, the tariff and the reconstruction finance corporation were stressed.

Declaring agriculture and manufacturing are mutally dependent on each other and are without conflict

WANTS GOV'T AND BUSINESS TO COOPERATE

CANDIDATE SPEAKS AT LUNCHEON IN SAN FRANCISCO

W. B. RAGSDALE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

San Francisco, Sept. 23 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt said today it was the task of government to assist business in the development of an economic declaration of rights under which the responsible heads of finance and industry would work together in the public interest.

The exposition of the Democratic presidential nominee's views was given before the commonwealth club here in an address which preceded his appearance at a Democratic women's reception and at a public meeting in the civic auditorium tonight.

Incidentally the New York governor's visit developed an exchange of friendly words between him and Senator Hiram Johnson, Republican of California.

Praised By Johnson

In his Sacramento address yesterday Mr. Roosevelt praised Senator Johnson for his progressivism and referred to him as "long a warrior in the ranks of true American progress."

Commenting on Roosevelt's remark the California senator who only the day before had delivered an address criticising the government's foreign debt and relief policies, said:

"The attitude of Mr. Roosevelt is in sharp contrast with that Mr. Hoover has maintained toward progressivism and progressives in California. x x x Governor Roosevelt was very gracious and generous in his address at Sacramento. I personally immensely appreciate what he said, and I am sure it is equally appreciated by the progressive Republicans of this state."

In his luncheon address Governor Roosevelt said:

"Every man has a right to his own property; which means a right to be assured, to the fullest extent attainable in the safety of his savings.

"By no other means can men carry the burdens of those parts of life which, in the nature of things, afford no chance of labor; childhood, sickness, old age. In all thought of property this right is paramount; all other property rights must yield to it.

"If in accord with this principle, we must restrict the operations of the speculator, the manipulator, even the financier, I believe we must accept the restriction as needful, not to hamper individualism but to protect it.

Must Work Together

"This implication is, briefly, that the responsible heads of finance and industry, instead of acting each for himself, must work together to achieve the common end.

"They must where necessary, sacrifice this or that private advantage; and in reciprocal self-denial must seek a general advantage. It is here that formal government—political government if you choose—comes in. Whenever in the pursuit of this objective the lone wolf, the unethical competitor, the reckless promoter, the Ishmael or Insull whose hand is against every man's, declines to join in achieving an end recognized as being for the public welfare, and threatens to drag the industry back to a state of anarchy, the government may properly be asked to apply restraint.

"Likewise should the group

PRISON GUARD UNDER ARREST

Convict Also Accused of Counterfeiting 50-Cent Pieces

Detroit, Sept. 23 (AP)—An alleged counterfeiting plot which secret service men said had its inception within the walls of Michigan state prison at Jackson, was revealed today with the arraignment of Irving W. Favorite, 45, prison guard.

Investigators said Favorite and Frank Briggs, 44, a convict, had signed confessions in which they told of making molds for spurious 50 cent pieces in the prison garage, where Favorite was a guard and Briggs was employed. Both denied passing any of the coins, secret service men said, but quoted the man as saying the plan was for Favorite to distribute the bogus money and divide the proceeds with Briggs.

Favorite pleaded not guilty before U. S. Commissioner J. Stanley Hurd today to charges of making and possessing counterfeit money, and furnished $2,000 bond for his examination Oct. 1.

He had been in custody since Wednesday night when an investigation by prison authorities, state police and secret service agents culminated in his arrest as he left work.

George F. Boos, secret service agent, said a mold and six bogus half-dollars were found in the cabin where Favorite lived near Eaton Rapids.

Boos said Briggs was eligible for parole when the alleged plot was discovered. He was placed in a punishment cell and probably will be prosecuted on a counterfeiting charge when his term, for automobile theft, is up. His home is in Jackson.

Favorite had been employed as a guard for three years and Warden Harry Jackson said his record was good.

Norman Thomas Is Heard By Officials Of City Schools

Traverse City, Mich., Sept. 23 (AP)—Norman Thomas, Socialist party candidate for president, told city superintendents of schools in their annual state convention here tonight that in spite of vast mechanical developments, "we still are thinking in terms of the civilization of the covered wagon."

"Until teachers are honest with themselves and their students," he said "and until they get over their fear of the chamber of commerce and until schools gets over their mischievious business of sterilizing the whole process of education by excluding all matters considered controversial, the gap between informal and broad education will not be closed."

The nation is too prone, Thomas said, "to hold the teacher responsible for the child's education in citizenship while the child is exposed outside of schools to the standards of the street, the market place, the movies, and to the standards of the God 'success'."

Stepmother Found Guilty Of Murder

Grayson, Ky., Sept. 23 (AP)—Found guilty of murder in connection with the hanging of her stepson, Mrs. Eliza Rickey, 37, today was given a sentence of life imprisonment by a jury in Carter circuit court here.

The body of the stepson, Roy Rickey, 10, was found last month hanging from a tree near the Rickey home at Soldier, Ky. The boy's father, Clyde Rickey, and another man, Jim Andy Day, also are accused of murder in connection with the boy's death.

Simple Living Is Happy Living—Shaw

East Lansing, Sept. 23 (AP)—Dr. Robert S. Shaw, president of Michigan State college, told a group of freshmen Friday that the greatest lesson of adversity is "that in order to live happily we must live simple" during the "wild orgy of unprecedented prosperity," he said, "the world has not done much thinking of the right sort."

Corduroy Company Orders Dividend

Grand Rapids, Sept. 23 (AP)—A dividend of 25 cents per share on prior preferred stock, the first paid by the company in several years, was announced Friday by the Corduroy Rubber company here. Payment, the announcement said, will be entirely from current profits and not from surplus. Employment at the plant is reported at its peak for the year.

Dogs Trying To Aid Rescue Of British Subjects In China

Nawchwang, Manchuria, Sept. 23 (AP)—Two dogs were doing their best today to help a couple of British subjects, one being their mistress, gain freedom from Chinese bandits who are holding them for ransom.

The dogs belong to Mrs. Pawley, who, with Charles Corkran, is believed held in a peasant's hut about thirty miles from here.

One of the dogs, a big Alsatian, turned up at the home of the woman's father today. It has been barking almost continuously as though to indicate it could lead rescuers to its mistress.

WANTS GOV'T AND BUSINESS TO COOPERATE

ever use its collective power contrary to the public welfare, the government must be swift to enter and protect the public interest.

"The government should assume the function of economic regulation only as a last resort, to be tried only when private initiative, inspired by high responsibility, with such assistance and balance as government can give, has finally failed.

He said the history of the last half century was largely one of a "group of financial Titans whose methods were not scrutinized with too much care and who were honored in proportion as they produced the results, irrespective of what means they used."

"The financiers who pushed the railroads to the Pacific were always ruthless, often wasteful, and frequently corrupt; but they did build railroads and we have them today," he said, adding that the railroads were subsidized in various ways, a merchant marine was assisted to foster shipping and that the tariff was proposed to help "our infant industry."

Gov't In Business

"Some of my friends tell me that they do not want the government in business," he continued. "With this I agree, but I wonder whether they realize the implications of the past.

"For while it has been American doctrine that government must not go into business in competition with private enterprises, still it has been traditional particularly in Republican administrations for business urgently to ask the government to put at private disposal all kinds of governmental assistance."

He added that the same man who says he does not want to see the government in business had no hesitancy to demand tariff on his product or to take advantage of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to ask for a loan.

The New York governor spoke of the fight that Theodore Roosevelt, the "first great Republican progressive," made against trusts and said that he had been forced to work out a difference between good trusts and bad trusts.

"Wilson, he said "saw in the highly centralized economic system the despot of the twentieth century.

In his own analysis of the situation, the New York governor said:

"Put plainly, we are steering a course toward economic oligarchy, if we are not there already.

"As I see it, the task of government in its relation to business is to assist in the development of an economic declaration of rights, an economic constitutional order.

"This is the common task of statesman and business man. It is the minimum requirement of a more permanently safe order of things."

MENTIONS SMITH

San Francisco, Sept. 23, (AP)—In a speech here tonight Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for president referred to Alfred E. Smith, the 1928 standard bearer, as "a great citizen and a great governor."

The reference was the first in the western campaign tour to the man whom Roosevelt succeeded as governor of New York and who was his rival for the presidential nomination this year. The attitude of former Governor Smith in the present campaign has been a subject of great interest since he remarked merely that he would support the ticket and added in response to a question that "that includes the nominees."

As the governor began his speech before more than 12,000 persons in the civic auditorium, there was a roar of applause.

Drop Indictment Against Former Treasury Official

Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—The justice department today obtained dismissal of an indictment returned in 1929 against Daniel R. Crissinger of Marion, Ohio, former comptroller of the currency and governor of the federal reserve board, on a charge of "using the mails to defraud."

The charge against Crissinger, indicted with six others as a director of E. H. Smith Co., Washington investment brokers, was nolle prossed at the instance of Nell Burkinshaw, special assistant to Attorney General Mitchell, in District of Columbia supreme court.

While no reason was given, testimony at the trial of G. Bryan Pitts, former head of the Smith Co., who is now serving a prison sentence, was to the effect that the former treasury official had no part in the company's active management.

Feeble Minded Son Killed By Farmer

Lancaster, Wis., Sept. 23 (AP)—Will Keehner, 49, farmer, confessed today, Sheriff Joseph Grer said, he had killed his eight year old son, Martin, "because the boy was feeble minded."

Keehner told authorities he led the boy into a clump of woods and battered his head with stones on Sept. 6 or 7. Then he buried the body in a gully under stones and leaves, he said. The body was found just as Keehner said he had left it.

"The boy was incurable, so I thought he would be better off dead," Keehner said. "I tried to get him into an institution and couldn't."

SEAWAYS PACT WINS APPROVAL

Harbors Association Is All in Favor of Its Ratification

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 23 (AP)—Members of the Great Lakes Harbors association were called upon to do their utmost to secure early ratification of the St. Lawrence seaways treaty in a resolution approved at the final session of the convention today.

It asked members to inform "the senators of their respective states and senate committees on foreign relations of their interest in, and desire for, an early ratification of said treaty by the United States senate."

Another resolution said "we rejoice over the fact the St. Lawrence seaway has reached the stage of agreement where the two countries, the United States and Canada, have signed a treaty for its realization x x."

In the resolution calling for support for ratification, the convention said: "The Great Lakes Harbors association owes a sacred duty and obligation to more than 40,000,000 people resident in the Great Lakes basin and in neighboring states and provinces of Canada, whose commerce naturally flows through this seaway, to employ its utmost efforts to procure an early ratification of said treaty."

The resolution declared:

"It hereby pledges itself to use every legitimate and proper means to promote said ratification, and particularly to present the facts with relation to said treaty to the people it serves. It pledges itself to cooperate loyally with the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater association to this end."

The convention also passed a resolution urging that the supreme court ruling on diversion of water by the city of Chicago be regarded as final.

Detroit was selected for next year's convention city.

Heavy Majority In New York Predicted For Gov. Roosevelt

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—The largest majority New York City ever gave a political candidate was predicted today for Governor Roosevelt by chiefs of the Democratic dry organizations, after they had held a campaign strategy meeting at national headquarters.

John H. McCooey, Brooklyn leader, national committeeman and spokesman for the group, was asked about reports the organizations would "knife" Roosevelt because of the James J. Walker ouster case.

"That's ridiculous," he replied. "There is no such thought in the minds of any of the men who were here."

"We're going to roll up the biggest majority New York ever saw for Roosevelt."

"Do you agree?" John F. Curry, Tammany chief, was asked.

"Well," the gray-haired leader replied, with a smile, "Mr. McCooey's usually right."

Resigns Honorary Legion Membership

Newport, R. I., Sept. 23 (AP)—Admiral William S. Sims, U. S. N., retired, commander of the American naval forces overseas during the World war, today made public a letter in which he resigned his honorary membership in the American Legion as a protest against the Legion's stand on the bonus.

Admiral Sims now is a member of the national advisory council of the National Economy League, which is dedicated to reducing the costs of government.

His action followed upon his denunciation in Boston yesterday of the system of Spanish-American war pensions as a "steal of the nastiest kind and an outrage to American taxpayers."

Expect Mrs. Borah To Regain Health

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 23 (AP)—Except for possible complications, the chances for Mrs. William E. Borah to recover from the attack of psittacosis or parrot fever were reported today by her physicians as good and increasing.

Her temperature was normal early in the day, but rose slightly later, a condition which the attending physician, Dr. Ralph Falk, said was expected.

Serum sent by air mail from the bureau of public health in Washington will arrive early tomorrow morning and an additional supply was ordered today for use in case the wife of Idaho's senior senator suffers a relapse.

Banker Sought On Charge Of Fraud Kills Wife and Self

Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 23 (AP)—The bodies of Henry Brown, former cashier of the closed Memphis (Mich.) State Bank, and his wife were found late today in an automobile parked in an orchard near Emmett.

Officials said Brown apparently had shot his wife through the head with a rifle, then shot himself in the mouth.

The discovery was made while officers were seeking Brown on a warrant issued today in Macomb county charging him with embezzling $500 of bank funds. County officers said Brown had admitted misappropriating more than $1,300 over a period of a year and a half.

Chicago, Sept. 23 (AP)—The Chicago Association of Commerce reported "a marked pickup in the millinery tride with pay rates up 10 percent in some instances." The increase was described as "considerable larger than seasonal." Increased activity by distributors of groceries also was reported.

"To accede to demands for immediate cash payment of this unmatured obligation," the board said of the bonus, "would place the staggering load of $2,200,000,000 on the treasury, with consequent strain upon national credit and an unbalancing of the budget which might result in national disaster, would necessitate increase in taxation, and would be unfair to the veterans themselves.

"The immediate payment of the unmatured debt represented by these certificates will intensify the demand, already being made, for straight old-time pension legislation, certain to be pressed more vigorously when the veterans experience decreased earning capacity due to old age."

LODGE RECORDS BEFORE COURT

Gov't Trying to Show Davis Involved in Lottery Case

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—On court order overruling a witness' refusal, a contract and eight cardboard crates of records and cancelled checks were produced as evidence today in the federal court from where Senator James J. Davis is on trial for violating lottery laws.

Then, as court attaches were piling the bulky boxes on court room tables, the prosecution rapidly elicited testimony from a United States department of justice agent, Jacob Heffler, that $100,000 profits from the Moose 1930 charity ball and alleged lottery went to the Moose organization department.

It is the government's contention that the Pennsylvania senator is himself the organization department of the fraternal order. His official title is director general.

Copy of Cnotract

Theodore G. Miller, alleged head of the Moose propagation department who refused to testify previously because he is also under indictment in the case, produced the records.

A copy of the contract read to the jury set forth terms of the agreement between Miller and Bernard C. McGuire, also named in the indictments, on which the government contends the charity ball and alleged lottery were conducted.

It contained Miller's assertion that in making the contract he had the "knowledge and consent of the supreme council of the Loyal Order of Moose and its director-general, James J. Davis."

The prosecution had predicted it would make this point to prove Miller was in effect the agent of Davis in the project.

The defense has indicated it will contend Davis knew about the charity balls, but was ignorant of a drawing for cash prizes in connection with them.

The prosecution succeeded today in getting into evidence a receipt for an express package addressed to "J. J. Davis" of Pittsburgh and signed for by Jones.

This was proclaimed important by the prosecution as evidence to support its claim that the senator had full knowledge both about the charity balls and the drawings for cash prizes connected with them.

of interest, Curtis said the two "should go hand in hand."

"The one enriches the other, the one trades with the other; there is no conflict of interest," he declared.

Speaking in that part of Kentucky which depends largely for a livelihood on agriculture, tobacco, livestock, stone quarrying and oil, the vice president had an attentive audience.

After praising President Hoover's moves to stabilize currency when Great Britain went off the gold standard, Curtis told his hearers:

"Impair or destroy our ability to manufacture, strike down any of our great manufacturers, and the farmer would be the first to seriously feel the loss. Dismiss the army of operators from work shops and send them to great unoccupied and fertile lands of the west, and the farmer would not only lose just so many consumers or customers, but more than that, he would find them among his competitors in the field of production."

FAKED FAMILY; FATHER IN JAIL

Drew Groceries for Dead Wife and Children In Old Country

In order to secure plenty of groceries from the Escanaba city welfare department, Joseph Dalich, 48, of 1612 North 16th, claimed a wife and three children as his dependents. The wife was dead and the three children in the old country, but Dalich didn't mention that minor detail. His scheme worked for a while, but he was found out, and now he is doing a term of five days in the county jail for obtaining goods under false pretenses.

Investigation at the city hall revealed that Dalich's wife has been dead for some years, even though he was still drawing groceries for her. The son, 19, and daughters, 17 and 21, which he claimed as dependants, were found to be living in Croatia, and it was not considered likely that he had been sending groceries to them.

So Joseph has been sent to the county jail to eat temporarily, and his name has been removed from the city welfare lists permanently.

Frank J. Mileski Named Roosevelt Motor Club Head

At the last Democratic county meeting Frank J. Mileski, Democratic candidate for probate judge, was appointed by Gerald J. Cleary, chairman of the Delta county Democritic committee, to act in the capadty of president of the Roosevelt Motor Club of Delta county.

The Roosevelt Motor Club members will receive a handsome bronze emblem or attachment to the radiator fronts of their cars.

Robert D. Reynolds of North Carolina is national president of the Roosevelt Motor Club and the organization part for the state of Michigan is being handled by the Democratic State Central Committee, with Andrew J. Belanger, as state president.

The Democratic County Committee issued a warning yesterday against "outlaw groups" soliciting contributions and selling emblems and souvenirs, ostensibly under authorization from the national committee. The committee said it would appreciate information regarding individuals and organizations engaged in unauthorized traffic of this sort.

"The official automobile license plates and emblems for automobiles," Mr. Cleary said, "are being distributed through the Roosevelt Motor Clubs under a separate plan approved by the Democratic National Campaign Committee."

The smallest fog particles have been measured at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It was found that 25,000 of them could be placed on the head of a pin.

Still Missing

Dr. Charles Brancati Went and Never Came Back.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Colonel Raymond Robins, friend of President Hoover, has joined the ranks of the 50,000 persons who vanish annually in the United States. This is the third of a series of six stories on America's most famous mystery disappearances.

BY ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer

(Copyright, 1932, NEA Service)

Where is Dr. Charles Brancati? He came to America from Italy as a barber, worked his way through medical college in New York, turned to business and made a million dollars in some way that is not at all clear and then vanished as though the earth had swallowed him, leaving his present even a deeper mystery than his past.

It was on Nov. 19, 1928, that Dr. Brancati left the stately old Gouverneur Morris mansion in New York Bronx, for which he had refused an offer of $400,000 only a short time before. He said he was going downtown to his office. That was the last ever seen of him.

The authorities incline to the belief that Dr. Brancati engineered his own disappearance "for personal reasons." His brothers now say they are convinced that he was kidnapped and murdered.

Each theory seems to fit the known facts equally well. The subsequent linking of Dr. Brancati's name with various sinister activities might easily explain why he should choose to disappear; could just as well explain a motive for a murder. Various rumors have linked his name with a huge counterfeiting ring, with the Arnold Rothstein murder (which occurred just 16 days before Brancati's disappearance) and with the smuggling of narcotics on a tremendous scale.

Though the millionaire physician vanished on Nov. 19, Dr. Brancati's brothers did not report his disappearance to the police until the following April.

And in the meantime these strange things were happening:

From Passaic, N. J., Albany, Boston, Ottawa and London came a series of letters, telegrams and cablegrams, all signed with Dr. Brancati's name and ostensibly written by him. The letters were typewritten, but the signature looked very much like that of the missing physician.

The first communication—a telegram—came from Passaic the day after his disappearance. Addressed to Ercole Brancati, one of the brothers, it read: "AM HUNTING WITH FRIENDS STOP IF ANYBODY CALLS FOR ME WILL BE BACK IN ABOUT WEEK STOP WILL WRITE LATER. . . . CHARLES."

Ten days later came a telegram from Albany, asying he was there on business. Then a letter postmarked at Boston, which assured his brothers that he was "doing well" and would return soon. There were more of such letters and telegrams, followed by a cablegram from London which announced that Brancati had arrived there. Then came a letter from London, postmarked Dec. 26, which said he would be there several weeks.

That was the last that the brothers ever heard, so far as is known.

Now the triangular question arises: Did Dr. Brancati disappear voluntarily and write these letters and telegrams himself? Or was he kidnaped and forced to write them by his captors? Or was he murdered by men who slew him, then forged his name to this chain of missives?

There is no satisfactory answer.

But a still stranger thing happened:

A day or so after Dr. Brancati's disappearance on Nov. 19, 1928, his brokers received from Dr. Brancati a note which directed them to turn over to the bearer—one Luigi Romano—his $234.000 account which the brokers did. It is said that Dr. Brancati had introduced Romano to them the previous autumn.

Romano—who now has become a first-class man of mystery—drew out all but $9000 and deposited $225,000 in cash in a bank in New York's Italian section. In less than two weeks he had withdrawn the money from the bank. $25,000 at a time until only $292.82 remained. Then Romano vanished, adding another baffling chapter to the mysterious chain of events. No trace of Romano ever was found.

In April, when Dr. Brancati's brothers finally reported his disappearance, detectives searched the old mansion where the missing millionaire had lived.

In Brancati's bedroom they found three bullet holes in the ceiling and another in the mantelpiece. From woodwork near the mantel they dug a .38 caliber bullet.

In the room were a number of other things: three dozen bottles of ginger ale, a pair of woman's slippers, some medical books and surgical instruments, a lot of torn letters. One of these, written in Italian, addressed Dr. Brancati as 'You Big Villain' and threatened him because of an affair with a woman.

In November, 1929, Captain Thomas Brancati, for 30 years a police detective in Italy, came to America and conducted an unsuccessful search for his brother. He said he was convinced his brother had been kidnaped and later killed when the money was removed from his account. Later, Brancati's brothers petitioned the courts to declare the doctor dead so disposition could be made of his estate.

But before this, District Attorney McGeehan announced that he was no longer interested in the case, being convinced that Dr. Brancati effaced himself deliberately. If a crime had been committed, McGeehan added, it had not been committed in Bronx county.

Meanwhile, Assistant U. S. Attorney Alvin Sylvester dug deeper into reports that Dr. Brancati had been a partner in a huge drug ring. Others expressed the opinion that Brancati's flight had a connection with the murder of Arnold Rothstein, the big-time gambler, who was said to have been interested in narcotics on a wholesale scale.

But, dead or alive, Dr. Brancati is still a mystery.

TOMORROW: The strange disappearance of Hisashi Fujimura, 38, millionaire Japanese silk importer of New York, who vanished from an ocean liner near New York while returning from a gay "whoopee cruise" to Halifax with a beautiful blond show girl.

The sling shot habit has developed to a considerable degree during the past few weeks, creating a source of danger to anything or anybody who happens to be in range. Only a few days ago, a party of motorists were passing down the church hill, when a stone, whether hurled from a sling or by hand, struck the fender of the said car with much force. The driver of the car which happened to be passing and quickly swung off the highway into the ditch and only by reason of great care on the part of the driver was a serious accident averted.

Cranberry pickers are making their way to the various marshes north of town. Some of these are finding fairly good picking. Some of the pickers are offering their berries for sale.

Fred Ansell reports that a little earlier in the season he and his family picked three crates of blackberries. The fruit was in the very best of condition and was such as might be expected to bring premium prices. They were shipped to a Chicago firm and in due course Mr. Ansell received his check for thirty-nine cents for the three crates. The receiver paid the express charges but the shipper had to furnish the crates which cost thirty cents each. He also had to pay the cost of transportation to the shipping point at Cooks.

Charles Watson and a party of friends from Iron Mountain arrived here Tuesday and will spend the rest of the week cutting corn and filling the silo on the John Follo farm at Fayette.

BUSINESS IMPROVES

DESPITE what the pessimists might say in criticism, there is every reason to believe that business generally is on the upward trend.

One of the most encouraging indices of business improvement is the advance of commodity prices in recent weeks. This is reflected, too, in the cheerful bits of news that have been coming over the wires of the dependable and conservative Associated Press, telling of resumption of operations of industrial plants in various parts of the country, particularly in the East, to which the nation has been looking for the first signs of business revival.

Resumption of industrial production is the natural consequence of a rise in the level of commodity prices. Merchants will not stock up with goods when prices are falling because there always exists the fear in their minds that they will drop further. If they buy goods and the prices drop afterward, they would have only slight chance of disposing of the merchandise profitably.

But when prices go up, merchants quickly go to the markets and buy in large volumes, knowing there will be a chance for obtaining appreciable profits as the upward trend continues. A buying wave, in turn, results in the depletion of stocks in the manufacturers' hands. What happens, then? With their inventories depleted, manufacturers start the wheels of industry moving again and reengage labor to handle the instruments of production. Public confidence becomes stimulated, money circulates more rapidly, more men get jobs, wages go up and another depression drops back into history.

GOV. ROOSEVELT ON THE RAIL PROBLEM

"BOTH the Republican and Democratic parties are now committed to the adoption of constructive policies for the solution of the railroad problem," says the Railway Age in a current editorial. "The Republican party committed itself by the adoption of a sound plank in its national platform. The Democratic party has been committed by the speech delivered by Governor Roosevelt at Salt Lake City on September 17.

"Not in years," continues the Railway Age, "has any public man discussed the transportation problem with more intelligence and courage than did Governor Roosevelt on this occasion. He showed in his speech that he appreciates the indispensability of the railroads as a means of transportation, and the necessity, therefore, of giving them opportunity to make earnings sufficient to provide adequate employment at reasonable wages, to make adequate purchasses and to pay a fair return upon the securities that must be issued to raise needed capital. He showed he understands not only that the financial condition of the railroads has become desperate, but the reasons for this.

"Governor Roosevelt's discussion plainly implied the necessity of withdrawing all subsidies from carriers by highway, but did not touch upon the subsidization of carriers by water. He advocated the regulation of railway holding companies, and it may be inferred from his general tenor that he would increase the regulation of competing carriers to make it comparable with that applied to railways, rather than establish equality of regulation by greatly reducing or virtually abolishing regulation of railways. It is not surprising that he is somewhat indefinite as to how much regulation of railways should be reduced, as there are differences between railway officers upon this point; but his advocacy of more 'government encouragement and co-operation' and less 'restriction and repression' is encouraging. Nobody is objecting to reasonable regulation of railways. The objections being made to regulation are that, as applied by the Interstate Commerce Commission, it has been too restrictive and repressive, and that it is unfair and destructive of the public welfare to regulate almost every detail of railway management and operation and not apply similar regulation to competing carriers.

"Governor Roosevelt's speech will be read with great interest by owners of railway securities, railway managers and railway employees. It will be read with perhaps more interest by railway employees than by any other class because most of them have awakened to a realization that government policies that are ruinous to the railroads are also ruinous to them. Recently, also, the demoralization of markets for many kinds of commodities which subsidized and unregulated truck transportation has been causing has been arousing many producers and shippers to a realization that it is destructive of their interests, Governor Roosevelt has shown that his experience as a politician has given him unusual skill in appraising public sentiment, and the fact that he made such a speech as he did at Salt Lake City is an extremely good indication that it will be well received not only by railway employees, but by other classes having large voting strength.

"The next President of the United States will have much influence in determining national and state policies regarding transportation, but needed legislation must be passed, if at all, by Congress and the state legislatures. What, then, is going to be the attitude of the members of Congress and of state legislatures elected this fall regarding the transportation problem? The employees of the railways and of the many manufacturing companies that are largely or wholly dependent upon the railroads for business can, in great measure, determine the answer to this question by questioning candidates for Congress and for state legislatures between now and the first week in November, and making clear that they will vote against those who fail to make satisfactory answers.

"Now is the time for action. The principal thing needed to restore the earning, employing and purchasing capacity of the railways is to insure that in future they will be able to get all the traffic that they are economically best fitted to handle. The two things most essential to insure this are, first, withdrawal of all subsidies from competing carriers, and, secondly, either an increase in the regulation of other carriers, or a reduction of railway regulation which will give the railways the same freedom as their competitors as respects the rendering of service and the making of rates. Every person who is dependent upon the welfare of the railways for his own welfare should ascertain the attitude of candidates for Congress and the state legislatures regarding these matters, and vote accordingly."

"SLOW TIME" AGAIN

ESCANABA and several surrounding communities will return at midnight to Central Standard Time after working, eating, sleeping and playing under the Eastern Standard Time schedule during the summer months.

The change will afford the public an opportunity to make up the hour of sleep that was lost when the timepieces were advanced last spring. The shift back to slow time for the fall and winter months will not arouse any storm of protest for it is human nature to rebel against getting up in the cold and dark of early morning, and the extra hour that one will be allowed for remaining in a warm, cozy bed will be appreciated by all.

The question of whether "fast time" shall be in effect in the summer, however, invariably divides public opinion into two opposing camps. Those whose occupation requires they must stay inside during the day until 5 to 6 p. m. in most instances like the extra hour of sunlight that the Eastern Standard Time affords for working in the garden, motoring on the highways, or playing kitten ball, golf or some other sport in the outdoors. Complaint was heard at one time from railway workers because they necessarily must work on Central Standard Time, but this protest has diminished of late due to the fact that there is little activity in that industry. Farmers report they do not like the so-called "potato time."

But, anyhow, don't forget to set your clock back one hour when you retire tonight.

CALL of the WEST

(By NEA Service) By R. G. MONTGOMERY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

STAN BALL, an agent for cattle interests, faces ASPER DELO in his office. Asper is accused of killing men sent to check his timbering activities at Three Rivers. Ball announces he is making a personal check. Delo says he will personally see that he does not make the check.

Leaving the office, Stan saves a girl from kidnapers. She proves to be DONA DELO, Asper's daughter. When Stan learns her name he tells her he is STANLEY BLACK and slips away.

DUDLEY WINTERS, in love with Dona, agrees to go to Three Rivers and bring Asper back. Dona goes with him and at a little ranch place on the way Dudley puts a plan of marriage to Dona, hoping she will take this plan of getting Asper Delo to return. She agrees but holds back when Stan Ball, on his way to Three Rivers, steps out of the night and kisses her.

At Three Rivers they meet SWERGIN, Asper's timber boss, and he says he is ready to kill Ball, that Ball shot a ranger.

Dona decides to ride in the hunt for Ball. She catches a bad horse and has to try to ride him to keep up her pride.

Dona rides the roan. Swergin tells her she must not ride without a guard as Ball is a killer and is at large.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

DONA and Malloy rode around the corrals and when they were well out of sight of the main buildings above them the cowboy swerved to the left. They doubled back, following a wash that hid them from the camp. Dona had slipped the carbine loose in its scabbard. Malloy rode ahead with a careless swing that spoke of years in the saddle and the girl noticed that he carried no rifle but had a heavy six gun in a worn holster at his hip.

They were climbing out of the wash when a rider galloped from the timber and descended upon them amid a rattling shower of rocks. The rider was Swergin and he was angry.

"You take this girl back to camp," he shouted. "I'll ride along to see that you do it. You better not try any more sneaking tricks on me!"

Malloy sat his horse and an amused grin pulled at the corners of his wide mouth. He looked at Dona for acceptance or refusal and it was plain that what she wanted would be done. For a moment she considered. Her rapid appraisal of Swergin told her that he would not be denied without a fight. Malloy, she knew, would not sidestep any action the timber boss might start even to gun play. With a smile she motioned to her escort that they would go back.

They rode in silence to the camp where Swergin ordered their horses put away. Dona made no protest and she felt Malloy's eyes on her as he dismounted. She was not yet ready to put Swergin in his place.

Dudley was at the corral and it was plain that he was angry. He had a better horse saddled and had been asking questions of the corral boy. Dona felt a pang of conscience and was glad she had come back. Dudley would soon learn to ride and she must not treat him as though she did not want him. He dismounted and they walked up to the main building together.

"Trying to ditch me?" he asked. His voice was level.

"No, Dud, but I wanted to take a real ride." Dona was truly sorry.

"I'm going to ride out after you every time you leave camp. Maybe I'll make a good target but I refuse to be treated like a 10-year-old," Dudley said testily.

"It is folish for you to ride out alone or with any of the men," Dona protested. "You've never been in the mountain and you've never ridden or used a rifle. This man, Ball, is bad and he is desper-" She laid a hand on his arm. "You should see now, Dud, that I am at home in this country and is able as a man to take care of myself."

DUDLEY caught her hand and faced her about. He looked deep into her eyes. "I don't want to be a rotter, Dona, but you have me at a disadvantage. It isn't fair. What chance have I to be a man in your eyes unless I get out with the others and share the danger? I can't lie around camp." He captured her other hand.

Dona met his ardent gaze and did not try to free herself. For a long minute they looked into each other's eyes and Dona felt the old thrill beginning to lay hold of her heart. She felt the same fear, too, that would not let her be swept away by Dudley's eager glance. Swergin's voice rose from the corral where he was talking to Malloy.

"Anybody that is fool enough to ride up the Pass Creek trail will get a bullet from the bushes! That's where Gillette got it." Swergin's voice dropped to a snarl. It was plain that he was laying down orders to Malloy. The cowboy's answer could not be heard but it evidently had an edge of its own as Swergin burst forth in a fresh spurt of anger.

An accusing light came into Dudley's eyes. "You were going to ride to Pass Creek," he said, jerking Dona a little in his impatience.

She nodded. "I was foolish, I guess, but it didn't seem so dangerous to me."

"The next time you ride I go with you," he stated flatly.

ASPER DELO did not ride with the posse. He set out by himself with his rifle across his saddle. At the edge of the clearing surrounding the camp he pulled up beside a pile of logs. A man was working with an ax beside the pile. Asper hailed him.

Can you tell me where to hit the trail to Pass Creek?" he demanded.

The man straightened and looked Asper over. It was plain that he did not recognize his employer. "Up to the red rim." The man pointed to where a rim of red rocks broke out of the timber above. "Then a mile along the rim and you'll hit the trail. Takes you down a little canyon and through a strip of broken country." The man bent his gaze on the bit of his ax and prepared to return to his work.

Asper rode on at a brisk pace. As he neared the red rim he began taking all the cover he could and slowed his pace. Already the country began to grow rough. Great rocks rose out of the growth of aspens that had been left standing by the timber cutters. Asper grunted as he noted that all of the pine had been cut clean except for second growth and young stuff. The drag lines had wrought havoc with the country and it was eroding badly. Swergin was a bit too much of a close cutter. Asper observed, but he was able to handle the forest officials.

As he rode along the rim he was able to stay under cover fairly well. He proceeded with more caution as he got deeper into the broken country. Brush and rock piles offered excellent hideouts and he knew he was at a disadvantage should Ball be lying in hiding where he had to pass.

DUDLEY sat on the porch with Dona for half an hour. Then he went down to the corrals. He was

SWEETENING

We need a recipe for living,
We need another cookbook giving
The rules successfully to make
A life as well as mix a cake.
We have our rules for dough and batter
But living is another matter,
Yet there is not another thing
That needs so much of sweetening.

Ah, yes, with living, as with cooking,
We need a little forward looking.
Let's study living for awhile
And with our labor mix a smile.
When life is rather tasteless, it'll
Be wise to sweeten it a little.
There's really not another thing
Life needs as much as sweetening.

We have our customs culinary,
Yet more than that is necessary.
We need another recipe:
To sweeten life with sympathy,
To comfort hearts, to brighten faces,
And sweeten home and other places.
In life, like any other thing,
Put in a little sweetening.

NOTED ZOUAVES MARCH TONIGHT

Band and Patrol Visits Gladstone and Escanaba

The Ahmed Temple Band and Patrol, noted upper peninsula organization, whose visit to Escanaba has been awaited with much interest, will appear here this evening in a parade and exhibition drill, which will begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

The band which has a membership of thirty, and the patrol with an equal number of members, will be in Gladstone for a parade and exhibition during the afternoon. Following this the members will come to Escanaba for supper at the Hotel Ludington.

The parade, which follows the supper, will begin at 7:30 o'clock, the line of march from the Hotel Ludington on Ludington street to 14th street, and then back to the 600 block on Ludington, where the exhibition drill and maneuvers will take place.

The entire block will be roped off from traffic, and special lights will be installed on both sides of the street. It is also urged that merchants on Ludington street cooperate as far as possible in having signs and window lights turned on throughout the parade and exhibition, particularly those in the block set off for the drill.

The Shrine band will be accompanied by August P. Johnson of Negaunee, its manager, and the patrol will be captained by Carl Tauch of Marquette. The Illustrious Potentate of Ahmed Temple, Oscar E. Ole of Munising, will also be present.

Members of both the band and patrol will be attired in their Zouave uniforms and the parade and drill are expected to be one of the most colorful exhibitions seen in Escanaba in some time.

Black Bass Season Ends December 1st

With all trout streams and trout lakes closed to fishing Labor Day, anglers are turning to other waters for fall fishing for black bass, bluegills and other "pan" fish.

The black bass season will close December 31, but the season for all other game species will remain open until March 31 to permit taking through the ice.

Clammers will cease their 1932 operations September 30 when the mussel season closes.

Under a special license issued at the discretion of the Director of Conservation, ciscos, whitefish and carp may be taken with spear and artificial light in designated waters for a three months period beginning October 1.

Waters in which such spearing will be permitted are listed in the Digest of fishing laws under the list of local provisions alphabetically arranged by counties. The license fee is $1.00 and several hundred are issued annually. Ciscos and whitefish taken under such a license may not be sold. There are but a few counties in which such fishing is possible.

Aircraft and equipment exported by the United States in the first half of 1932 were valued at $1,635,679.

Communication

The National Economy League (Coolidge, Smith, Bryd, et al) and the Soldiers Bonus

Escanaba Daily Press:

The arguments, pro and con, regarding immediate payment of the Soldiers Bonus, have been well delivered.

It is needless to repeat, ways and means have been pointed out for payment without increasing the present deficit, and that it is the only practical solution that has been offered for the immediate relief of present conditions that gives due consideration to the welfare of the people as a whole and not simply the veteran as a class or Europe and cooperation.

Everybody, the taxpayer, Mr. Coolidge, Mr. Smith, Mr. Byrd, and the Veterans or taxpayers, and their taxpaying relatives, all have an abhorrence for war and its aftermath. This can be verified by asking any veteran, who had the sweet opportunity to taste of it, and the grateful citizen of the nation who observe the benefit of the payment of the Bonus and record their silence on the issue, and Coolidge, Smith, Byrd & Co. who passed up the opportunity to partake of the delicacies of war that they may be spared, now to take up matters of greater and more pressing importance, including opposition of the veterans request.

Richard E. Byrd, chairman of the National Economy League does abhor war. He was born in 1888 and after he "Once nearly gave up hope, nearly quit the Navy" he saw peace time service, and was aboard the Washington when "The war in Europe was bounding along at a high rate of speed in the fall of 1914." "Few of the officers believed this country would become involved"—"Still radio bullitins were eagerly distributed, discussed and argued ——"Then quite unexpectedly he was detailed to the Dolphin, the yacht of secretary of the Navy Daniels," it meant a fairly permanent station at Washington", "Men were scarce enough in Washington". "From the Dolphin, he was transferred to the Presidential yacht the Mayflower" and "The leg he had injured in line of duty still bothered him". "So he requested retirement" and "was officially found incapacitated, for active duty and placed on the retired list in 1916". . . . age 28. "The hot war clouds of Europe were spreading to the United States". (The quotations are from "The Life and Exploits of his life, an unbiased history by Charles Murphy in "Struggle" 1928) and "The Governor of Rhode Island rewarded him by making him commander of the States entire naval forces", and "He specialized in commercial economics". Then "Report for duties at Washington. . . . a swivel chair job! and he who had prepared for a mahogany desk". "He was frightfully disappointed but he packed his bag and went". "His record shows". . . . plea for reorganization of the Corps of Chaplins". "He was working night and day at this job. . . . he lost twenty-five pounds. . . . but he never gave up hope".

"He was commissioned a naval aviator in 1917". He assigned himself to the Crash Board, whose sad duty it was to discover the cause of aeroplane accidents. . . . Military flying was tough in those days. . . . It was fly or get out, and Byrd and his men were turning out flyers like clock work. The Germans just about controlled the skies. . . . but the Navy Department wouldn't hear of his going.

He was ordered to Halifax as commanding officer of a Naval Air Station. . . . war seemed far away, up there in Canada, preparing for a transatlantic flight. . . . the Germans were falling back, the chances of making the flight were nearly over. . . . Nov. 1918 . . . . The Armistice.

Richard E. Byrd was 29 years of age when his countbry entered of age when his country entered the above service he is a rear admiral retired at the tender age of 44 years and as chairman of the economy league is trying to lend his dignity to opposing payment of the bonus. Mr. Coolidge and Alfred E. Smith, co-partners, were at a robust age of 25 at the beginning of the Spanish-American war, so we have learned, but no war record.

Aspects of Depression Discussed by Goodman

Various causes of the economic depression and suggested roads for recovery were discussed in an address on the subject of "Our Industrial Revolution" by Atty. Booth B. Goodman before the Rotary club in his home city, Oakland, Calif. recently.

Attorney Goodman visited his brother, Austin Goodman, South 16th street, last week, making the trip both ways by airplane. En route home, he visited with his brother, B. J. (Bunny) Goodman, in Chicago. Attorney Goodman is a former Ishpeming resident, but has been practicing law in California for the last 17 years. He is a keen student of economic, social and political problems, and has gained considerable recognition in his profession.

"For three years the people have questioned the financial, industrial and political leaders of our country to learn from them the probable duration of the existing depression." Mr. Goodman said in his Rotary club talk. "We have assumed that these men, collectively or individually, understood the cause and could, therefore, prognosticate with some reasonable degree of certainty. Their answers have invariably been adopted as the basis of their logic the statement that this nation having arisen from other depressions within a reasonable time, will likewise arise from the present one. They advance no reason for the depression excepting over-production and fear, and offer no remedy save watchful waiting and the restoration of confidence.

Different Than Others

"I admit that over-production and fear are causes of our economic distress, but I deny that the present situation is parallel with that existing in past depressions and believe that I can demonstrate that time alone will not restore this nation to normal condition.

"In advancing these statements and the arguments supporting them, it is not my desire to dim any part of the silver lining of the clouds of despair and doubt, but I do so only because I feel that the people are convinced that conditions have not improved after three years and that necessary constructive measures should be adopted while time remains within which permanent relief may be brought to the millions unemployed and to the business of the nation as a whole.

"During the panic of 1893, more than 40 percent of the entire population were employed in agricultural pursuits. In the depressions antedating 1893, the numbers inhabiting the farms were much larger. The nation had a vast amount of new territory for development and the causes of the depression embodied no international features. The banking system of the country was not perfected as it is today. In that panic the large percentage of population, clinging to the land, remained in comparative comfort on their farms and calmly awaited the return of markets for their crops, while a large number of the remaining citizens went into the new territory and began or advanced the development of areas in the west. The result was new wealth and occupation which relieved the general distress and permitted the restoration of business.

"But look! Since 1893, the great empire of the west has been built and great enterprises such as railroads have been rebuilt several times, until the industrial structures of the United States have reached a standard where no further improvement seems humanly possible. We find that instead of 10 percent of the population living on the land, 20 percent now occupying the agricultural areas can produce an overabundance of food. Our cities are crowded with men who find themselves in the breadline after a few months of continued employment. These men have nowhere to go nowhere to turn no new empires to build nothing to rebuild and consequently we face a crisis unparalleled in our history.

New Industrial Revolution

"The plain truth is that we are going through an industrial revolution and a majority of our political, social and industrial leaders refuse to recognize the fact. Our condition is the result of unbalanced production resulting from an improper relation between our social and industrial structures. Our depression is the direct result of a continued attempt to apply to a mechanical and scientific age, economic principles which belong to the dead past. The last five decades have witnessed more progress in mechanical inventions than the five centuries preceding. Everywhere human power has been replaced by machine power. We cannot enter the smallest manufacturing establishment or business office without witnessing the invasion of mechanical agencies which in some great degree have supplanted human hands. In the mines, on the farms, in all factories and in all matters of business, manufacturing and construction, machines have supplanted men by the thousands.

"As early as the year of 1900 the excess of man power caused by the development of machinery was manifest. The problem was solved temporarily by the adoption of the eight hour work day in conjunction with the invention at the development of the automotive industry with its many co-related businesses. Now we are again overtaken with the same condition, without a great new industry to solve the problem by absorption of the surplus man power; with no new territory to settle and no new empires to either build or rebuild.

"The question arises. Is our civilization and our knowledge to prove a curse or a boon to humanity? Is it not a blessing to take the burdens of toil from the backs of the people?

Remedial Measures

"The remedy for our situation must be based upon the following truths which are self-evident: that there is no reasonable excuse for the existence of hunger and starvation in a land complaining of over-production; that no individual or group of individuals has the right to exploit mechanical inventions, scientific knowledge or industry to the detriment of the masses; that every man who is industrious and honest has a right to earn at least the necessaries of life; that there is a limit to the consumable production of manufactured goods or agricultural products and therefore that there is only a limited amount of work available to supply that demand; that this nation is within itself large enough and endowed with sufficient resources to permit the existence of its people in happiness and reasonable prosperity as a unit independent of the old world.

"One of the first steps necessary is the establishment of the shorter work day. It remains to be seen whether or not a six hour day or a work day of some other length of time would strike the required quotient.

"Next we find it necessary to regulate the basic industries as well as the public service corporations in the matter of the distribution of profits. In other words, the buying power of the consumer depends entirely upon the amount of money is distributed for labor and material.

"It is the money in circulation which makes commerce possible. Accumulated wealth is like stored water—it represents potential power but is impotent until released.

"The time when it can be said that the profits of any industry are a matter of personal concern to the owner thereof is passed. It may have been said with propriety in the pioneering days of industry, but with the high perfection of our industrial system, it has become as empty of persuasive power as the 'Divine right to rule' for after all, the control of business of the nation is, in fact, the control of the nation itself.

"Capital invested is entitled to a fair return, yet we know that many corporations and industries are purposely burdened with unreasonable salaries to officials, and other extravagances, for the express purpose of reducing the net profit and permitting those in control to obtain unearned benefits. Such matters are of public concern and should be regulated.

Criticizes Bureaucracy

"Our national and state governments are cursed with commissions which should be abolished. In support of my position I have only to call attention to the fact that our government has three distinct branches, namely: legislative, executive and judicial, and that the only branch which has maintained comparative dignity and freedom from coercion, political influence and bribery, is the judicial branch.

"I submit that the functions of commissions, such as the public service commissions, ought to be assigned to the courts and decisions should be rendered by the courts instead of by boards appointed by either the president or governor, which are subject always to coercion from various sources.

"In the present elections, aspirants for public office speak of but the smallest of immediately important things. We take it for granted that a change in administration will stimulate business, consume farm products and conform to the will of a majority of the people. We know that there is no excuse for the increase by billions of dollars of federal expenditures and that taxes levied to maintain useless, ineffective bureaus and commissions in Washington and elsewhere, and used to maintain factories and manufacturing plants which compete with private industry at a loss to the taxpayers and which must have originally been instituted to extend legalized political graft, by the furnishing of political positions, should be immediately abolished. We feel that expenses in government, such as the unreasonable use of franking privilges, should be curtailed; that the matter of expensive privileges exercised by members of congress and other officials, in using navy craft for transportation purposes, and similar apparently trifling but totally stupendous extravagances, should be promptly ended.

"It is not, however, in the national government alone that the burden of taxation has been unnecessarily increased. The cost of the state governments has, in most states, kept pace with national extravagance. We must return to first principles and remedy the defects of our interrelated social, industrial and business systems, which have produced our present suffering. We cannot borrow or

Dental Clinic Held At Bark River By Children's Fund

Twenty-two Bark River school children from families unable to pay for dental care had diseased teeth extracted at a clinic held Friday by the Children's Fund of Michigan. All the equipment necessary for the extractions was set up in an unused room of the Bark River school building. Dr. H. J. Miller was in charge.

According to Principal Paul Anderson of Bark River another clinic to care for a number of additional children and to finish the necessary extractions for children who require further attention will be held within three or four weeks. Many of the children cared for in Friday's clinic required so many extractions that it was impractical to do them all at one time.

INEXPENSIVE DECORATION

For inexpensive decorative foliage for your dining room, plant a row of grapefruit seeds, in a circle, close to the center of a rounded dish, filled with moistened earth. Within a few days plant another circle an inch beyond the first seeds. Keep repeating this process until the dish is comfortably filled. The resulting ferns will grow in a tapering, rounded effect that is more artistic than an even growth.

Non-Profit Homes To Help Students In Meeting Costs

Madison, Wis. (AP)—Houses run on a non-profit basis will help students to meet the cost of education at the University of Wisconsin.

Four homes acquired by the university will be turned over this fall to co-eds and three will be available for men. Each house will be run by a competent manager and the total cost of board and room is expected to approximate $30 a month.

The students will do all work except the cooking and it is estimated that each student will spent not more than three hours of work each week.

The principal advantage claimed for life in these houses are the reduced cost and greater opportunity for social recreation, in the opinion of the dean of women.

Favorite Recipe

Betty Ann

Here is an unusually fine recipe for candied citron received from Mrs. Raymond Reidy, following requests for it appearing in the Betty Ann department.

Candied Citron

Remove rind from citron, cut in one inch squares. Cover with warm water and cook slowly until tender. Drain.

Combine two cups sugar and one cup water. Boil to soft boil stage, about 238 degrees F. Add one cup of citron rind and simmer until clear, repeating this process until all of citron is used. Allow fruit to stand in syrup over night. Drain thoroughly, roll in granulated sugar and place on cake racks. Dry in a very slow oven, 250 F., until surface is firm.

Other fruits, cherries, figs, pineapple, and others may be candied the same way.

Mrs. Raymond Riedy.
1705 Third avenue south.

A delicious pickle recipe for Ripe Cucumbers is sent in by Mrs. John Ward in answer to a request printed in the Betty Ann deraptment.

Ripe Cucumber Pickles

Ten to twelve large sized ripe cucumbers, pared, then cut in half. With a teaspoon scrape out all the seeds, then let the cucumbers set in a weak brine over night. In the morning, or when you are ready to cook them, drain the cucumbers and place in a kettle. Cover well with a liquid composed of water and vinegar, equal amounts, and enough sugar to sweeten, and let boil until the cucumbers are tender enough to handle with a fork. Fill jars with these and pour liquid in each yar, then seal air-tight.

Mrs. John H. Ward,
814 Arbutus avenue,
Manistique, Mich.

A fine recipe for cider apple butter has been received from Mrs. Charles Cretens of Gladstone in answer to a recent request.

Cider Apple Butter

Use sweet cider of good quality and apples that cook easily. Boil cider down one-half. Wash, peel and core apples. Then boil together rapidly equal amounts of apples and boiled down cider. If boiling is slow apples are liable to scorch as they sink to the bottom.

After first two hours stir constantly to prevent burning. If butter becomes too thick before it is perfectly smooth, add a little more cider, and continue boiling and stirring. Add sugar to taste any time after stirring begins. Spice to suit taste but it is usually considered better if not too highly spiced. Seal hot.

Mrs. Charles Cretens,
Gladstone.

In request for a special request the Betty Ann department Friday secured Mrs. Elizabeth H. Brotherton's recipet for pickling pears. This recipe may also be used for peaches or crab apples.

Pickled Pears

Make a syrup of one pint vinegar, one quart sugar, some cinnamon bark and a few whole cloves.

After syrup has boiled, put in pears, and boil until tender. Seal in sterilized jars.

The same syrup and process is used in pickling peaches or crabapples. Do not remove skin of either of the three fruits.

Mrs. Elizabeth H. Brotherton,
721 First avenue south

Mrs. Hurley Wears Pale Rose Chiffon

Washington (AP)—Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, who seems to have adhered more than ever to her preference for pink this summer, wore at an outdoor event a dress of pale rose chiffon made on rather tailored lines.

Her wide-brimmed transparent straw hat of brown matched her brown suede slippers. She wore short, brown suede gloves with a rose of brown chiffon at her waist line. She carried a suede bag in the rose and brown note.

Relishes Aid In Enjoyment Of Every Meal

Since flagging appetites are whetted by novel flavors, the piquant sauce makes a definite contribution to the well-balanced menu. It's actual food value may be very small, but it makes the plainest pot-roast dinner or cold-meat supper palatable and interesting.

An infinite variety of these sauces can be made easily and inexpensively, so that the filling of the relish shelves of the preserve cupboard is not a forbidding task.

Dresden Relish

Six sweet red peppers, 1 sweet green pepper, 6 sweet yellow peppers, 6 onions, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 1 tablespoon mustard seed.

Remove stem ends and seeds from peppers. Peel onions. Put peppers and onions through food chopper. Put in sauce pan, cover with boiling water and let stand five minutes. Drain. Put into preserving kettle with sugar, salt, spices and vinegar. Bring to the boiling point and simmer until tender. It will take about thirty minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and seal. Store in a dark cool place.

Rummage Pickle

Two quarts green tomatoes, 1 quart ripe tomatoes, 3 large heads celery, 4 large green cucumbers, 3 large onions, 3 green peppers, 3 red peppers, 1 small head cabbage, ½ cup salt, 1 quart vinegar, 3 cups brown sugar, 1 tablespoon ground mustard, 1 teaspoon pepper.

Peel onions, remove seeds from peppers and pare cucumbers. Wash remaining vegetables. Chop and put into a large crock with salt sprinkled through layers of vegetables. Let stand thirty minutes and drain over night. In the morning put all the ingredients into preserving kettle and bring to the boiling point. Simmer twenty minutes and pour into sterilized jars. Seal and store in a dark cool place.

Chutney Sauce

Twelve sour green apples, 12 small green tomatoes, 3 green peppers, 3 medium sized Spanish onions, 1 pound seedless raisins, 6 tablespoons salt, ¼ pound green ginger root, 3 tablespoons mustard seed, 2½ cups dark brown sugar, 1½ quarts vinegar.

Wash tomatoes and remove stems. Chop coarsely. Sprinkle with two tablespoons salt and let drain over night. Pare, core and chop apples. Peel and chop onions. Remove seeds and pith from peppers and chop. Combine sugar, remaining salt and vinegar. Bring to the boiling point and boil five minutes. Add remaining ingredients and simmer until vegetables are tender and mixture is thick. It will take about an hour. Turn into sterilized glasses and seal.

If mint flavor is wanted add one cup minced mint leaves to chopped mixture when added to vinegar.

NEW DISCOVERIES CONFIRM VIRTUES OF BRAN IN DIET

Supplies "Bulk" and Vitamin B for Constipation; Also Iron for Blood

For ten years, now, millions have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a safe, pleasant way to overcome common constipation—with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from this condition.

Recent laboratory tests show that ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN contains twice as much blood-building iron, by weight, as beef liver.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like the "bulk" in lettuce. Inside the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming.

Think how much better it is to enjoy this delicious cereal than to take endless pills and drugs, which often lead to harmful habits.

Two tablespoonfuls daily—in serious cases with every meal—are usually sufficient. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Announcement To The Public

In order that we may more effectively serve you, we are changing our policy of doing business. The income of the average family has decreased and under present conditions the dollar must go farther than it has heretofore.

Credit costs, such as bookkeeping, bad debts, etc., are high. By eliminating credit service we shall effect certain economies, which it is our intention to pass on to our customers in the way of lower prices.

Therefore, beginning September 30th we shall operate on a cash basis, and the new cash prices will be effective on that date.

Delivery service will be continued on orders of sufficient size at regular cash and carry prices.

We take this occasion to thank our many customers for the patronage with which they have favored us, and assure them that the desire to better serve them has prompted the change in our methods of doing business.

We will be glad to talk over with you personally our new method of business, and we believe that when our plans are explained they will meet with your hearty approval.

CUT-OUT WINGS

Lawrence, Kas.—Ben Brown, local pilot, has constructed one of the most unusual airplanes ever seen here. It has controls overhead, a pusher propeller, and the motor is back of the pilot's seat in the center of the fuselage. The wings of the plane run in a triangle around the craft, and are cut out on each side of the cabin.

Providence, R. I.—More than figuratively was Myrtle Gould Whitford the light of George Corbishly's life. She lived in a lighthouse.

Corbishly is a young businessman of Riverside, R. I. Myrtle is the youngest daughter of Charles Whitford, keeper of the Cabin Point beacon in upper Narragansett Bay, half a mile off the mainland.

They used to meet at school and at parties in the town, and George was stricken early with her charms. Evenings he would sit in rapturous contemplation of the flashing beacon across the frothy water, though he found the light less dazzling than her eyes.

Then young Corbishly began rowing over to the Whitford's house. So did various rivals. But Myrtle soon discovered that the latter were fair-weather friends, while neither storm nor gale kept George from keeping his dates.

And so they were married. About 50 friends left the mainland the other day in dories and motorboats, with flowers and flower-girls, a minister and a best man, and a launch full of presents. The austere old lighthouse on its rocky, spray-swept base was transformed into a wedding bower. With infinite care, Mrs. Whitford had prepared a lighthouse cake and a wedding breakfast to be served on the runway surrounding the building high above the water.

It was on that runway that Myrtle, now 18, had learned to walk. Her parents were transferred to the Sabin Point light shortly before she was born.

The ceremony was held in the stone-walled living room. The lighthouse bell was rung, and an aunt of the bride played the wedding march while the party moved down from above. During the wedding breakfast on the balcony, passing ships sounded their signals and smaller craft encircled the light, whistling salutes to the bride and groom.

Then the lighthouse keeper's daughter and her husband went down to the confetti-strewn sea and rowed to the mainland, where he had a home prepared. After the honeymoon, in the mountains, they'll begin (yes, you guessed it) light housekeeping.

Peddlers May Sell Own Farm Produce Without Licenses

Several complaints have been made recently in regard to the selling of fruit on the streets by itinerant peddlers. According to Chief of Police John Peterson who has been keeping a close check on them, all of them either carried an affidavit showing that they had raised the produce on their own farms or otherwise are World War veterans who have taken out a license under the Veterans' Act permitting them to dispose of produce without an additional license fee.

According to the city ordinance on the subject, peddlers may sell produce which they have raised themselves without obtaining a permit and may dispose of their goods either direct or sell to stores. Although investigations on produce peddlers have been made throughout the summer, no violations have been found.

Falls In Heat Vent; Scalded About Arms

Alec Kalanges, employe at the Liberty Cafe, was scalded about the arms late Thursday afternoon when he fell into an open heating vent in the rear of the restaurant while carrying a container of boiling water. He was taken to the Shaw hospital where his injuries were dressed. Just how serious the burns are, cannot be determined until the bandages are removed, although yesterday morning he was reported to be resting easily at the hospital.

The accident occurred when a plumber who was working on the heat register, opened the vent and left the opening to obtain a tool. During the interim, Mr. Kalanges failed to remember that the vent was open and fell in while carrying the boiling water.

Collie Dog Warns Occupants Of Fire

The barking of a Collie dog perhaps saved the lives of four persons about 4 o'clock yesterday morning when the cottage belonging to Merwin White at Harrison Beach, Indian lake, caught fire, but was quickly extinguished by the local fire department with little damage resulting. The Collie aroused the occupants who in turn notified the fire department.

The fire was confined beneath the floor and burned through in only one small spot. It is believed to have been caused either by hot embers in the fireplace which in some manner came into contact with the floor, or by a smouldering cigarette beneath the cottage.

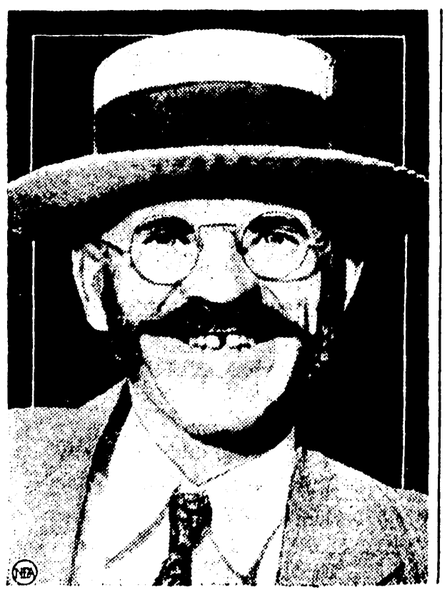
Anyone Who Talks Depression or Shaves in This Nebraska Town Gets Fined!



Stein Tonseth—the handlebar motif

Bill Steinberg—the full crop

Norfolk, Neb.—Whisker days are here again. Three thousand men are wearing them. Ten thousand friends are kidding them. And the section of Nebraska that was stricken by drought last winter is laughing so heartily it has almost forgotten its woes.

How long will the mustachios grow?

"Until good times come back," answer the longbeards.

The beard raisers formed a club a month ago, and you should see them now! The club was organized with two aims: to stop talk about hard times, and to raise funds for a harvest festival, Sept. 21 and 22. Both goals have been achieved, officers say, and the members are enjoying themselves so much they think they'll keep it up.

Kangaroo courts are held frequently. Anyone who talks about the depression gets fined. So does any man who laughs at a fellow member's face. In fact, you can get fined for almost anything, and the money all goes to the harvest festival that's going to be free to everybody.

Many business and professional men hesitated at first to join the club. Some were afraid they couldn't raise a good enough product. Others feared the jibes of neighbors.

But the minute the charter members appeared in public unshaven, nearly everyone started sleeping an extra five minutes and there have been preliminary contests already, with the womenfolk as judges, and the competition grows keener daily.

Two merchants who had been enemies for years met on the street. "You certainly look awful," one said. "You don't look so sweet either," the other retorted. Then they laughed and became friends again.

When the club was organized a rule was passed as to just how whiskers should be raised, how the connecting links of hair should join. But that bit of zoning legislation didn't last long. Now any kind of a beard on any part of the face goes.

The club has members all over northeastern Nebraska. There are branches in several towns, but Norfolk remains general headquarters.

Has this ruined Nebraska's barber shops? No, indeed. Barbers and beauty parlor operators have been busier than ever, talcuming

GO ON—START SOMETHING!

Just about as ugly a mug as you'd care to meet down a dark alley, but a beauty in the eyes of the judges. "The crovanspring" captured the best of breed (English bull) award for the 13th time at the Tuxedo Kennel Club Dog Show at Tuxedo Park, N. Y.

Flat Rock Couple Receive Broken Legs In Crash

Mrs. George Stratton and Fred Desotell, Flat Rock, were badly hurt yesterday morning when a car driven by Henning Nelson, also of Flat Rock, crashed into the rear of a buggy in which they were riding. Mrs. Stratton suffered a compound fracture of both legs and Desotell's left leg was broken.

The accident occurred near the North Western railway tracks in West Gladstone at 6:30 in the morning. Mrs. Stratton and Desotell were on their way to Gladstone with a load of vegetables and Nelson was also driving toward this city. Blinded by the morning sun, Nelson did not see the buggy until it was too late to stop. He could not turn around them because of cars approaching from the east. The buggy was completely demolished, but the horse was not hurt.

Nelson picked up Mrs. Stratton and rushed her to Gladstone, while another car picked up Desotell. After an examination here by Dr. A. H. Miller, the pair were taken to the St. Francis hospital at Escanaba.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Stratton and Desotell were slightly hurt in a runaway on the streets of Gladstone, the same horse, being driven yesterday, bolting when Desotell dropped a line. They were thrown to the pavement near the city hall and Mrs. Stratton was rendered unconscious. She was revived and returned to her home, when no serious injuries were found.

The drum and bugle corps will not appear with the band, it is announced, owing to the lack of uniforms. The uniforms have been ordered and should be available before the next game.

Preceding each game, last year, and also between the halves the band drilled on the field. This will not be done at the Newberry game, since many of the band members are new and sufficient drill has not yet been had.

JAIL TWO BOYS FOR BURGLARY

George Stemac and Gordon Chroge Admit Entering Home

George Stemac and Gordon Chroge, Gladstone youths, are in the county jail in Escanaba in default of $500 bonds fixed by Justice A. D. Alguire, yesterday, when the pair waived examination on a charge of breaking and entering in the night time. It was charged in the complaint that the pair broke into the home of Bert Erickson, Buckeye Addition, on the evening of Sept. 4. A lock on the basement door was broken.

The pair admitted to police that they had committed the crime. They declared that at the time they were drunk and did not know what they were doing.

The arrest followed prolonged investigation by Chief of Police Torval Kallerson. The pair were believed to have been involved in other crimes in the Buckeye Addition and when the arrests were made, they were questioned concerning the robbery of the Beaudry home and the oil station robberies committed some time ago. Both denied any knowledge of the other robberies, but readily confessed that they had broken into the Erickson home.

Chief Kallerson is continuing his investigation of the Beaudry robbery and expects to have definite evidence that will lead to the identity of the burglars within a short time.

THEATRES

For the first time since they completed "Dirigible," Jack Holt and Ralph Graves will appear as co-stars in another Columbia production, "A Dangerous Affair," which will open at the Rialto Theatre today.

These wise-cracking adventurers of "Submarine," "Flight" and "Hell's Island," emerge as light comedians in their newest screen venture. Jack Holt, as a police lieutenant, unravels a murder mystery, while Ralph Graves appears as a wise-cracking newspaper reporter who unwittingly starts it all.

"A Dangerous Affair" is said to be a real novelty in mystery stories because, despite the seriousness of the mystery involved, it often borders on downright comedy.

Supporting Holt and Graves in "A Dangerous Affair" are Sally Blane, Susan Fleming, Blanche Friderici, Tyler Brooke, Sidney Bracy, Estee Muir, William V. Mong and others.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Stocks pulled away from a sag in commodity prices during today's late trading an dclosed with a fair average gain. Turnover dropped to 2,213,790 shares.

U. S. Steel common, up 2¼ at the best, all but yielded this advance and then braced to close 1¼ higher. The preferred was somewhat stronger. Chrysler, in a large turnover, rallied a couple of points, closely followed by General Motors. American Tobacco "B," Case, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Western Union, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Northern Pacific and International Telephone showed gains of a point or beter.

Corn products, whose directors declared a regular dividend, was off. General Electric rallied nearly a point prior to its dividend declaration and then dropped back.

Strength of rails reflected Wall Street's confidence that tomorrow's car loadings report, covering the week ended September 17, would disclose a larger than seasonal gain and brokers' estimates, compiled from available returns, placed the probable jump at 80,000 cars or more. Nothing was earned during market hours as to the eastern consolidation meeting, so traders interested in rail shares did not lose sight of the fact that the executives were in session. Also, the street heard that an early formal announcement was likely on the appointment of a special commission to survey careful the entire carrier situation.

Curb Mart Works Irregularly Higher

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
(Associated Press Financial Editor)

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—The curb market worked irregularly higher today, although early gains were partly washed away when profit taking developed toward the close. Sales totaled 210,000 shares against 360,000 yesterday.

Electric Bond and Share rose 3 points at one time, but closed at 35 where it still retained a net gain of 1¼ points.

Cities Service was unchanged.

The oils were under moderate pressure, but held their ground tenaciously.

Newmont Mining lost a substantial fraction. The Ford issues were steady.

DUN'S REPORT

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—The weekly business reviews continued to write cheerfully of retail and wholesale trade accomplishments and prospects, although the disappointing status of steel operations and some other heavy industries makes less pleasant reading. However, Bradstreet's said the opinion gleaned from its reports was that "business is slowly beginning a fundamental recovery" which itself could only be slow. Dun's found no reversal of the movement toward greater activity, mentioning the hardening of prices as a favorable aspect of the current position.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Sept. 23—Breaks of more than a cent a bushel in wheat prices late today accompanied disappointment over fading of export demand. Increased selling here against purchases of wheat in other markets, Winnipeg in particular, tended further to pull values down, substituting net losses for earlier gains. An unofficial estimate that Argentina had increased her wheat area by 2,000,000 acres had a distinct bearish influence.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1-8 to ½ under yesterday's finish, corn also 1-8 to ½ down, oats ¼ off to 1-8 up, and provisions unchanged to five cents lower.

Corn and oats sagged with wheat and as a result of evidence that in the last three days 900,000 bushels of corn had been booked to arrive in Chicago.

Provisions finally reflected setbacks of hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat December, 53 to 53 1-8, 54½ to 5-8; May, 58 3-8 to ½, 59 7-8 to 60. Corn—December, 28 3-4 to 7-8, 29¼; May, 34¼, 34½.

Hydro-Electric Golden Jubilee At Appleton, Wis.

Ann Arbor, Sept. 23.—Hydro-electric power will be just 50 years old next Friday, September 30, states the Utilities Information Bureau of Michigan in calling attention to the significance of the golden jubilee celebration to be held upon that date at Appleton, Wis.

Before September 30, 1882, steam engines had been used exclusively to spin the crude generators furnishing current for arc lights and for Edison's newly invented incandescent lamps. Not until the tiny plant at Appleton went into operation on that historic day was the power of falling water harnessed to do what has proved to be its largest and most efficient job in the service of Mankind.

Michigan's first hydro-electric plant—so far as known—went into operation at Battle Creek in 1886, four years after the establishment of the Appleton station. It consisted of a dynamo brought from Jackson by W. A. Foote and J. B. Foote and belted to an old industrial water wheel turned by Kalamazoo river. This was the beginning of the hydro-electric system of Consumers Power company, now the largest producer of hydro-electricity in the state.

Michigan, while possessing less than one-half of one per cent of the total potential water power resources of the United States and ranking 30th among the states in this respect, according to the United States Geological Survey, has been particularly enterprising in making the most of its streams, ranking 13th in developed water wheel capacities.

Michigan has a total of 138 hydro-electric stations of 100 horsepower or more capacity.

At the present time 46.66 per cent of all the developed hydro-electric capacities in Michigan are located on the rivers flowing from the so-called Northern Uplands of the Lower Peninsula. Streams of the Upper Peninsula, including St. Mary's river, are next with 39.44 per cent of the developed capacities. The streams flowing from the Southern Highlands—which include Bunday and Irish Hills and the hills of Washtenaw, Oakland and Lapeer counties—descend from moderate elevations and have only 13.9 per cent of the total developed capacities.

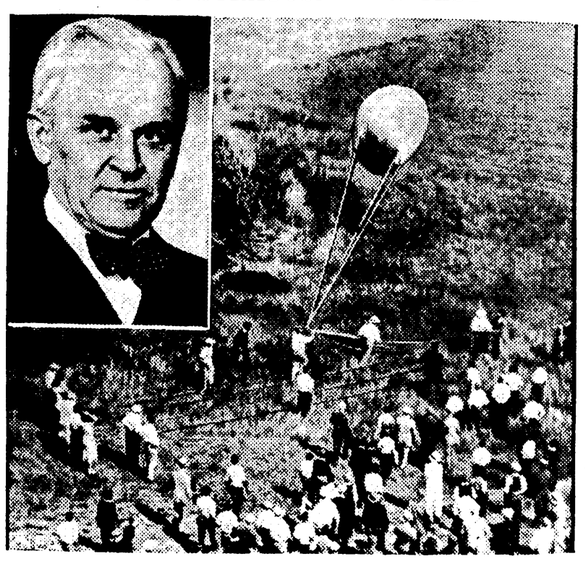
PLANS STRATOSPHERE TEST



A new test of the intensity of cosmic rays in the stratosphere is planned by Dr. R. A. Millikan, above, Nobel Prize physicist, who hopes to send a balloon 20 miles above the earth, twice as high as Professor Auguste Piccard's ascent. The balloon will carry a number of scientific instruments, each attached to a parachute. At the maximum height, the balloon will burst and the instruments return to earth by parachute. The general scene above shows the balloon being tested at Ellendale, N. D., where the flight will take place, under Dr. Millikan's direction.

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Strength of a number of railroad issues made for a rather bright picture in the bond market today, but when all of the final gains and losses were counted it was discovered that actually no headway had been made.

Gains of 1 to 3 or more points were scattered throughout the low-priced carrier section at one time. Extreme advances, however, failed to hold, and various higher grade bonds were barely steady.

Sales totaled only $10,630,000, par value, and the average for 60 corporate bonds was off one-tenth of a point.

Most of the utilities and industrials were slightly irregular.

United States obligations were a trifle easier.

The foreign group was generally stronger.

Marquette — Marquette county Republicans, holding their party convention here yesterday in the city hall, laid plans for carrying on one of the most intensive pre-election campaigns in years and named delegates and alternates to the state convention in Detroit on Thursday, September 29. Republican women, under the direction of Miss Augusta Primeau, vice-chairman of the county Republican organization, will play an active part in the effort to keep the G. O. P. party in power in November and the convention delegated its permanent chairman, Thomas Clancey, of Ishpeming, to appoint a "booster committee" of 10 men and 10 women to facilitate the work, following a suggestion made by Frank J. Jenks and augmented by Fred J. Schultheis, permanent county secretary.

eager to learn all he could and to get more practice at riding. Dona watched him idly. Her mind was busy with many thoughts. A man rode up and halted and Dona remembered him as one of the posse.

"Is my father, Mr. Delo, with your men?" she called.

The man shook his head. "He didn't go out with us. I'm looking for Swergin. Have you seen him?"

Dona replied that the timber boss had been at the corrals and the man rode on. By this time Dudley had a horse saddled and had mounted. Dona watched him ride around the corral and down the slope. She smiled. Dudley was game all right and eager to show her he was her equal. Then a disturbing thought crept into her mind. Had her father decided to ride the Pass Creek trail? Her own decision, prompted by Swergin's warning, made her almost sure that he had. And he had gone alone. That was the very thing he had wanted to do, to meet Ball single-handed and have it out. The thought so upset her that she left the porch and headed for the corrals.

She did not find Malloy or Swergin there but she saw the rider who had halted at the porch. He was turning his horse loose and dragging a saddle to the fence. She waited until he had gone, then entered the corral. Certainty that her father was in danger made her hurry. She caught the roan without trouble and swung the heavy saddle to his back. He seemed to have accepted her as master and did not fight when she mounted.

Dona rode straight across the clearing in the direction in which Malloy had indicated that Pass Creek lay. Seeing a man working at a pile of logs, she halted to ask directions. He straightened and looked at her curiously. He was Spanish and deliberate in his speech.

"Up to the red rim, then a mile along the rim and you hit the trail," pointed a sun-darkened arm toward the upper slopes. As an after-thought he added. "One rider went that way a half hour ago."

"Was he a big man on a gray horse?" Dona asked.

The man nodded and tried the edge of his ax blade on his thumb, then returned to his chopping.

Dona put the roan to a gallop and headed toward the red rim. She was sure now that her father had ridden straight into the locality where Ball was hiding. She did not pause to consider the danger into which she might be riding. She was sure Asper would ride slowly and that she could overtake him. Her plan was simple. She would catch up with him and he would return to camp rather than risk danger to her. She was so taken with this plan that she promised herself she would ride with him every day. That would be sure to keep him out of dangerous territory.

The trail became more broken and she entered rough country. Finally she reached the end of the rim and swung to the left down into the narrow canyon. She had not ridden a quarter of a mile down this trail until she realized that it was extremely dangerous for a hunter to follow. A man could hide above the trail on either side. He could cache his horse in the thick growth and waylay anyone who came past. She pictured Gillette riding down that trail and being ambushed. In sudden fear for her father Dona abandoned cover and rode at a gallop.

Eskymos and Parochials Will Clash Here Today

TEAMS REVIVE LONG RIVALRY

Intense Scrap Expected At Athletic Field; Kickoff at 2:30

Escanaba high school and St. Joseph high school football teams, evenly matched in weight and apparently in other respects, will try to reach some verdict as to which is the superior aggregation at the Escanaba athletic field this afternoon. The game is scheduled to start promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

For the past two seasons the two local prep squads have fought valiantly but futilely to come to some agreement, both games ending in scoreless ties. According to fans who have closely watched the two squads in practice sessions this season, however, today's game will not result in a deadlock. It is a common belief that a victory will result for one team or the other on the battlefield this afternoon but which squad it will be is a problem that partisan fans of both sides admit can not be solved until the final whistle is sounded by Referee W. A. Witte today.

St. Joseph has already tucked one victory away, defeating Vulcan in the opener here last Saturday, 19 to 0. For the Eskymos, today's battle is the opener and, incidentally, they figure it to be one of the toughest on their schedule.

Against Vulcan last week, the Parochials did not dig very deep into their bag of tricks. After stowing away the old ball game early in the fracas, the St. Joseph squad used only straight football plays, off tackle smashes and end runs. As a result the Escanaba coaches learned very little about what the Brunelle-coached team are likely to spring against the Eskymos today. They did learn, however, that in Beaumier, the Parochials have a speedy ball toter who could prove mighty troublesome and Coach Nordberg has worked his lineup on a defense which he figures will stop the flashly Purple halfback before he gets under way.

That both squars are eager for the battle and are pitched up to a point where no goading is necessary to make them fight to the last ditch for victory was evidenced on the practice fields during the week. A determined spirit was very much in display at both camps.

Both teams will have experienced backfields. St. Joseph boasts the same quartet of ballcters which carried the heavy burden for St. Joseph last year. Excepting Hebert, the Escanaba backfield is composed of players who won their stripes with the 1931 Eskymo team. Hebert was a reserve end last season who has been converted into a backfield man and who has filled the task very creditably. Finman is considered the real veteran of the Eskymos, however, and Coach Nordberg expects him to cut some fancy capers against St. Joseph. The Parochial backs outweigh the Eskymo backfield.

The forward lines of the two crews are also considered very well matched. The Eskymos are a trifle heavier than the Parochial line. New players compose both lines mainly.

Intense interest is apparent among the fans and indications point to a capacity crowd when the teams line up for the kickoff. Season sale tickets at the Escanaba high school have moved faster than in preceding years. These tickets which include reserved seats will be on sale at the Office Service company this morning. Single game ducats, of course, can be secured at the gate.

By the financial arrangements made by the two schools, each school will keep the funds derived from their advance student ticket sale. All adult admission receipts will be split between the two schools, after actual expenses have been deducted.

W. A. Witte of Appleton who refereed the St. Joseph-Escanaba game last year and who is rated one of the best in the business will be the referee again today. He will be assisted by two other Appleton officials, M. C. Steims, umpire; and L. A. Delforge, head linesman.

Parades by fans of both teams were held last evening. The St. Joseph wound up at the school where pep talks were given and the Escanaba parade ended on the lawn in front of the Escanaba high school where speeches and a short band concert were featured.

Detroit, Sept. 23 (AP)—Detroit pitchers held St. Louis to seven scattered hits in two games today, and the Tigers won the first, 6 to 2 and the nightcap, 12 to 0.

George Uhle pitched the first game, allowing four hits. He had good opposition from Irving Hadley until the seventh inning when the Tigers scored three runs.

In the second game it was Earl Whitehill who held the Browns scoreless. Hebert started for St. Louis, allowed four hits and as many runs in two-thirds of the first inning and was relieved by Gray.

Schuble hit a home run for Detroit in the fourth inning of the first game and Campbell drove in the circuit in the sixth for St. Louis.

Pittsburgh Loses To St. Louis, 8-4

St. Louis, Sept. 23 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals smashed out an 8 to 4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates today as they opened the final series of the 1932 season.

The victory came on the heels of the Cards' clean sweep of the three-game Cincinnati series earlier but with pennant hopes long faded, the winning streak drew only 500 paid admissions for today's contest.

P. Waner of the Pirates set a new National league record in bringing his total of two-base hits for the season to 61, bettering the mark set by Chuck Klein in 1930 with 59. Waner hit his 60th and 61st doubles today. The major league record for doubles is 66, made in 1931 by Earl Webb, then with the Boston Red and now with Detroit.

YANKS VOTE ON SERIES SPLIT

39 Persons Will Share In New York's Receipts

Boston, Sept. 23. (AP)—The New York Yankees, were in a generous frame of mind today when they voted on the division of their share of world series receipts, alloting portions to thirty-nine players, coaches and club attaches.

Manager Joe McCarthy, Coaches Jimmie Burke, Arthur Fletcher and Cy Perkins, and 22 players will receive a full share.

Pitcher Charlie Devins from Harvard, who did not join the club until June 29, was voted a half share as was Dusty Cooke, outfielder, who has been on the retired list because of an injured shoulder and Pitcher Gordon Rhodes of the Boston Red Sox, who was with the Yanks in the spring and for several seasons past.

Mascot Gets $350

Three-quarters of a share go to Road Secretary Mark Roth and to the club trainer, Dr. F. V. Plainter. The ground keeps at Yankee stadium, Walter Owens and the club house man, Fred Logan, each will be remembered with a flat sum of $1,000.

A $500 cut goes to Pitcher Ivy Paul Andrews of the Red Sox; Henry Johnson, Red Sox pitcher now ill in Florida; Johnny Murphy, Newark pitcher, and Ed Phillips, Newark catcher, all of whom were with the Yanks at one time or another this season.

Bat Boy Jimmy Mars and Mascot Eddie Bennett, who was injured in a traffic accident early in the spring, each gets $350.

OLIVET DROPS GRID SCHEDULE

Intra-Mural Athletics Will Be Stressed By College

Olivet, Mich., Sept. 22. (AP)—With "every student in some game" as the objective, Olivet college this fall is substituting a program of intra-mural athletics for intercollegiate football and sponsors of the plan hope that it will become the permanent policy of the college.

Explaining the plan, Dr. James S. King, president of the college emphasized that Olivet has not withdrawn from the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic association although the tentative football schedule, which had not been approved by the administration pending a final decision on putting the new program into effect has been cancelled.

Play Speed Ball

It is probable, Dr. King said, that Olivet will engage in intercollegiate basketball this winter. Whether the college returns to intercollegiate competition in other sports, notably football, he said, depends upon the success of the present program.

Six intramural teams already are engaged in speed ball, a game combining some features of football, basketball and soccer. The game is not as tough as football, requires no costly uniforms, but is filled with action. It is an outdoor game, played on a football field.

There are eleven intramural volley ball teams and several handball teams as well. A notable feature is that faculty members, as well as students, are engaging in the sports. The fall program will be climaxed by a tournament about Armistice Day. There are teams for co-eds as well as men students.

There are two outstanding reasons, Dr. King explained, for the change in policy.

"First," he said, "was a feeling on the part of the administration and students as well, that small colleges should not go to the expense of intercollegiate athletics to the extent that they have gone in the past.

"Second, was a growing feeling among faculty members particularly that every student should be engaged in some athletic activity. In other words, every student should be engaged in some game. Heretofore, 300 student have been on the sidelines whil eleven students played a game.

"Under the new policy every student, unless excused by a physician, will engage in athletics, girls as well as boys. It is a program of health as well as physical education. The physical education department's personnel will remain practically intact, with the addition of some assistants.

"We believe we are pioneering among Michigan colleges in this field of expanded intra-mural activities. It is the result of more than a year's study by a faculty committee headed by Dr. George E. Forster. That committee has worked out to the point where it was considered worth while to try it out and see how it works. If it works well, it will be continued. If not, we probably will go back to intercollegiate competition."

Read This Before You Pan Officials

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—The Associated Press presents the following list of "don'ts" for football fans witnessing tomorrow's openers:

1 If your favorite halfback gets away on a long run, but slips and falls just when it looks like a certain touchdown, don't draw a bead on the official who blows his whistle and stops the young man's wild career right there. It's one of the new rules.

2 If the substitutes seem to flow in more freely than ever, slowing up things and threatening you with a cold supper, don't think you have stumbled in on a practice scrimmage. The coach can substitute a man every quarter now, twice as often as before.

3 If the linesman you admired so greatly last season for the clever way he had of smacking an opponent on the back of the head, gets fined 15 yards for doing the same thing this year, don't blame the official. The player can't do that any more; must keep his arms still and shove the other fellow down, unless he can prove the other and vastly more efficient lick merely was intended to get his rival out of the way, not punish him. It's a boon to centers.

4 If you wonder why they have abandoned the "flying wedge" that used to thrill you on the kick-off, don't think the coach is passing up a bet. Five members of the receiving team must remain in front of the 45-yard line under the new regulation, making it next to impossible to "gang up" around the ball carrier.

5 If on the kick-off some husky grabs the ball and sends a drop kick soaring down the field, don't think he is trying to grab a quick three points with a field goal. It's a legal kick-off now.

6 And, if the players look not so slim and lithesome as of yore, don't think they have been dieting. It's the new equipment, with more padding about the knees and hips and elbows and shoulders, designed to cut down the list of injuries.

Keilmen Meet Strong Newberry Squad Today

SPARTANS PLAY ALMA GRIDDERS

Crowley Plans to Use Reserve Squad in Opener

East Lansing, Mich., Sept. 23 (AP)—Michigan State and Alma college will meet here tomorrow afternoon in the opening football game of the season for each and the twenty-second in history between the two schools.

The game will bring a new move in the recent history of the Spartan gridiron with the announcement today by Coach James H. Crowley that a reserve team will start the game and be given the responsibility for winning it. With this move will vanish the famous tradition of the "iron man" eleven which fought its way to national recognition for State last year.

Kircher at Quarter

Although little is known of Alma's strength this year, coaches have not regarded the season's opener as a tough spot on their schedule. The State team has been drilled all week against Michigan formations and plays.

State's regulars probably will see at least a few minutes of action during the game. Crowley is anxious to see his best eleven work out under typical game conditions.

In the twenty one years the two teams have met, Michigan State has been the victor eighteen times and Alma once. Two of the games resulted in ties.

Probable starting lineup:

STATE	POS	ALMA
Baker	LE	Dawson
Reardy	LT	Wilkas
Lay	LG	Bacon
Butler	C	Henshaw
Ferrari	RG	Leadbetter
Brakeman or Squier	RT	Smith
Klewicki or Keast	RE	Clock
Kircher	QB	Kahn
Armstrong	LH	Jacobson
Reynolds	RH	Muscott
Kowalch	FB	Drury

Indians and Chisox Stage Wild Battle

Cleveland, Sept. 23 (AP)—With rookies in both lineups, the Indians and Chicago staged a wild afternoon in which the Tribe merged victor by a score of 13 to 6 today.

The White Sox used five pitchers, including Manager Lew Fonseca himself, who retired the side in order in the sixth inning. Joe Vosmik hit a home run with two men on base and Wesley Ferrell got credit for his 23rd triumph of the year.

Score by innings:
Chicago 000 015 000 — 6 11 1
Cleveland 305 005 00x — 13 13 5
Walsh, Gallivan, Chamberlain, Fonseca, Kimsey and Grube; Ferrell, Brown and Pytlak.

Walter Brown May Be Threat To Cubs

Boston, Sept. 23 (AP)—Walter Brown, big Yankee right hander, established himself as a possible world series threat today by pitching New York to a 3 to 0 victory over the Red Sox. He allowed only seven hits and fanned six.

It was the eleventh shutout registered by a Yankee moundsman this year and the 154th of the season for the Yanks without their having been blanked. All three New York runs were slightly tainted. Earl Combs "sneaked" in with the first during a rundown play. Tony Lazzeri scored on an error and Joe Sewell came home on a wild pitch.

The first sandwich is said to have been made in the seventeenth century.

COLLEGE GRID SEASON OPENS

Reduced Admissions Is One of Features For 1932

BY ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—College football embarks on its first major offensive of the 1932 campaign tomorrow with two salient thoughts in mind—first, that the generally reduced ticket prices will keep the cash customers interested; and second, that the substantially revamped playing rules will effectually check the casualty lists, grown to critical proportions in 1931.

The preliminary maneuvers will be interesting, but probably not conclusive, either as to indicating which way the financial winds will blow this fall or what may be expected in competitive performances. Other features of the current sporting whirl, including the world series, as well as the "set-up" character of most preliminary games combine to defer a real test of football's ability to weather the storms around it.

Expenses Slashed

Having fallen off, roughly, from 25 to 30 percent on the average within the last three years, gate receipts this season, with reduced ticket prices, hardly can be expected to amount on the whole to more than 50 to 60 percent of the "peaks" reached in 1928-29. Anticipating this, however, all colleges and schools have slashed their budgets by cutting down training expenses, equipment costs and, in many instances, the size of squads.

The shock of nearly 50 deaths over the country, traceable to football directly or indirectly in 1931, resulted in sweeping rules changes which will be watched with unusual interest. Without extracting any of the fundamental virility or attractiveness of the sport, the rules-makers have done a job calculated to make the game safer, especially for school boys. Banishment of the kickoff "wedge" and flying tackle, stricter regulations governing the use of hands and prevention of "piling on," under the new dead-ball rule all contribute further safeguards against injury.

Tomorrow's schedule indicates few forward strides in the agitation to eliminate "set-up" or "breather" games for the big fellows.

Southern California's powerful Trojans take on the Utah Indians, champions of the Rocky Mountain conference, at Los Angeles. Down south, Captain "Biff" Jones, the former West Point coach, turns his Louisiana State Tigers loose against the strong Texas Christian outfit from the Southwest conference. Two Southern conference contests, Kentucky-Virginia Military and Sewanee-South Carolina, are booked.

Otherwise the big teams will go out mainly for the exercise. Chicago, playing Monmouth, is the only Big Ten team in action before October 1. In the east, Yale, Princeton and Harvard, as well as Navy and Army, do not go on trial until next week. The Big Six and most southwest elevens also have another week for practice.

Pittsburgh's Panthers draw Ohio Northern for the opening touchdown dash. Cornell, Dartmouth, Columbia, Colgate, Syracuse and Rutgers also swing into action in the eastern sector. The Pacific Coast and Southern conferences, both of which play longer schedules, furnish a wide range of activity tomorrow.

Athletics Assured Of Second Position

Philadelphia, Sept. 23 (AP)—Although they couldn't win their fourth straight American league pennant, the Athletics assured themselves of the second-place cut if the world series proceeds today as defeating the Washington Senators, 8 to 4, in the first game of a series.

After today's victory, the Athletics were sure to finish at least a game ahead of Washington and get a considerably larger share of the series money, usually something over $1,000 a man for the second place team.

Al Simmons hit his 35th homer of the season in the fourth inning. Mule Haas of the A's and Joe Kuhel of Washington also hit for the circuit during the course of the game.

Daylight Saving Time, or Eastern Standard Time, has been in effect during the summer onths. Constitution Changes Coming Up for Vote at Next Election

Vital changes in the state constitution, the basic law of the state, are to be voted on at the general presidential election in November.

Through the medium of the initiative petition the voters have seen fit to submit five proposed amendments dealing with the liquor question, tax limitation, and legislative reapportionment, all controversial questions.

The state legislature in 1931 adopted resolutions which caused the secretary of state to certify for inclusion on the ballot proposals to restrict the power of the governor to pardon first degree murderers, to limit the privilege of the citizen in voting bond issues, and proposing a change in regard to qualifications of electors.

Would Wipe Out Dry Clause

Because of the highly controversial nature of the proposal, the prohibition law amendment, as advocated by the Crusaders, the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, and the Michigan Moderation league, has received the largest share of advance publicity.

Briefly, the amendment would wipe out the bone dry clause of the state constitution and substitute a section permitting establishment of a liquor control commission and a tax on sales. The proposal allows for a majority vote by counties to prohibit sale. It does not recognize the fact that the federal constitution prohibits traffic in liquor. Its proponents contend that the amendment would merely pave the way for future congressional action and would obtain an indicative vote on the liquor question.

The state supreme court refused to accept a motion which would have enjoined the secretary of state from placing the proposal on the ballot. The court made no comment.

Tax Limit Plan Advanced

The secretary of state, in accordance with a legislative resolution, has numbered the proposals in the order in which they will appear on the ballot. The prohibition change is number one.

A limitation proposal in regard to taxation, advanced by "The Michigan Farmer," is to appear on the ballot designed to restrict generally taxes assessed against property for all purposes in any one year to not over 15 mills, excepting taxes levied for payment of interest and principal on obligations incurred.

The proposed amendment is not as drastic as it might at first appear inasmuch as it allows for an increase up to 15 mills for a period not to exceed five years when a two-thirds vote of the assessing district electors is secured. It also exempts higher assessments under city charters.

Might Bring New Tax

The direct result of such an amendment, it is believed, would be to cause either an increase in assessed valuation or adoption of a new form of tax such as the income tax.

Legislative reapportionment is the subject of the third proposal, advanced as "The Michigan Plan."

Terms of state senators would be increased from two to four years with the present senatorial districts becoming permanent with population as a basis of apportionment abandoned, half of the membership being chosen every two years.

Apportionment of the house of representatives would be radically changed. The basis would be that of population with the membership remaining at 100, the representatives being chosen as nearly as possible by counties with no one county containing less than the ratio of population.

No one representative district would be allowed to elect more than four representatives. Seventeen representatives are now chosen from the first Wayne district, causing much confusion.

Would Force Reapportionment

Apportionment would be made mandatory upon the legislature at the first regular or special session following each decennial federal census or if the legislature failed to complete such an apportionment the duty would fall upon the secretary of state.

Proponents of the plan believe it would give the less populous sections of the state fair and adequate representation in the senate while the populous sections would be assured fair representation in the house of representatives.

Objections to the proposal have come from the northern counties which advance the complaint that such a form of apportionment would not only give the southern counties overwhelming strength but would bestow upon several of the larger industrial counties, if joined in a common cause, majority control.

Would Exempt Homesteads

A fourth amendment advanced would exempt from taxation homesteads valued to the extent of $3,000 and household goods to the cash value of $1,000.

In some townships homesteaders with few exceptions would be exempt from taxation should this amendment carry. The tax burden would be distributed among a very few persons whose properties exceeded the arbitrary exemption value.

Declaration by the owner of the cash value of the property would be an executed offer to sell.

It is difficult to estimate the now taxable property which would be taken from the rolls should this amendment carry.

The state legislature advanced a proposal which would permit the electors of a township to cast their ballots in a convenient polling place established within the limits of a city which has been incorporated from territory formerly a part of the township.

Reprieve Measure Up

Agitation for capital punishment, prevalent during the 1931 session of the legislature, resulted in adoption of a compromise measure proposing an amendment to the constitution prohibiting the governor from granting reprieves, commutations, or pardons to first degree murderers. Provision is made, however, for granting new trials upon discovery of new evidence.

The legislature also proposed an amendment limiting the number of persons voting expenditure of public money or the issue of bonds to persons owning taxable property or the lawful husbands or wives of such persons.

Act 55, Public Acts of 1931, which imposes a tax in the form of a license fee on oleomargarine will also be placed before the voters for judgment.

The 1931 legislature passed a law wnich would require payment of a license fee of $100 by manufacturers or wholesalers of oleomargarine and a fee of $5 by retailers. Enforcement of the acts was stopped by action of interests demanding a referendum.

COMSTOCK PAYS A BRIEF VISIT

Candidate for Governor And Congress Talk At Escanaba

Arriving in Escanaba late Friday noon because of a meeting at Iron Mountain, William A. Comstock, Democratic candidate for governor of Michigan, gave a brief address before a gathering at the Delta hotel which included all of the Democratic nominees for county office, members of the Democratic county committee and local party leaders.

Introduced by John K. Stack, Jr., chairman of the meeting, the candidate spoke on efficiency in state government and outlined prospects for the Democratic party in state, national and county campaigns this fall.

Mr. Comstock charged the present Republican administration of the state with spending more money than was being received in taxes and declared that by rigid economy expenditures could be so reduced that the state property tax could be abolished. A governor who will economize will be unpopular, said Mr. Comstock, adding that "but it's got to be done and it is going to take a man who will roll up his sleeves at Lansing and work 18 hours a day."

Mr. Comstock did not have Escanaba on his schedule for this visit to the peninsula, but promised to return in two weeks to speak in Escanaba, Manistique, Sault Ste. Marie and other cities in the eastern half of the peninsula. He was met at Spalding yesterday by Gerald J. Cleary, chairman of the county Democratic committee, and left immediately after the meeting here for Menominee, where he addressed a mass meeting last night. H will go on to Milwaukee by train, and proceed to Detroit by airplane today. Beginning with October, he annouced that he would speak over the radio from Detroit every Monday and Tuesday evening.

Prentiss Brown of St. Ignace, selected as keynoter for the Democratic state convention and as temporary chairman for the gathering, was also a visitor in Escanaba yesterday, and addressed the group at the Delta hotel on current state politics and problems. He is a candidate for congress from the 11th district on the Democratic ticket.

John Jacobinski Will Offer Alibi

Minneapolis, Sept. 23 (Special)—Launching its efforts to save John Jacobinski from conviction on a charge of slaying Gordon Wilson, Chicago business man, in the Minneapolis loop July 5, Attorney Fred A. Ossanna late Thursday said the defense would offer an alibi, supported by a group of witnesses.

These witnesses, he said, would testify that Jacobinski was in a dentist's office on the day of the shooting and during the time Wilson's slayer was being hunted, that he didn't wear clothing as described by prosecution witnesses, that he was not in towns named by the state and that he did not know how to drive an automobile.

Jacobinski is an alleged member of the quartet which robbed the bank in Hermansville, Mich., a few months ago.

Classes to Help Hard of Hearing Will Start Soon

Through the efforts of interested individuals, adult evening classes for citizens of Escanaba and vicinity who are suffering from impaired hearing are to be conducted at the new Junior high school under the direction of Miss Olga Schneikert, who has charge of the oral deaf classes in the Escanaba public schools. Members of the adult class will be taught lip reading, recognized as the quickest and surest method to permit those whose hearing has been impaired either by disease or acident, to forget their affliction.

The adult class is now being organized by Miss Schneikert and those who desire to enroll are requested to notify her by telephoning 631-J. The classes will be conducted for one hour, two evenings of each week, during the fall and early winter seasons and it is expected that a considerable number will take advantage of this new community service to be established here.

One of those interested in the organization of the proposed evening adult classes for citizens of impaired hearing has offered the following reasons for undertaking this course of instruction:

"If my ears cannot hear, my eyes will, if I give them the necessary training. Very few people realize the latent power of the eyes to conduct sound impressions to the brain."

"It will force me to throw off that stupefying habit of inattention, that my deafness has brought upon me. My whole mind will become quickened, refreshed and specially trained."

"Lip reading will relieve, in a large measure, the nervous strain of trying to understand speech, with disabled ears alone."

"I may be able, with lip-reading, to hold or secure a good position in the business world. It will give me new confidence in myself.

"I may, thereby, make it vastly easier for my family and my friends to converse with me."

"I can add to my pleasure in motion pictures, by being able to read the lips of the film actors.

"I may thus learn, without fear or embarrassment, to converse and to transact business with strangers."
